40 Reported Dead, 8 In Ohio

Tri-State District Starts Huge Snow-Digging Task

By The Associated Press

With an army of highway crewmen in the vanguard, residents of northern Ohio and western Pennsylvania tackled today the monumental job of digging out from one of the worst snowstorms in years.

At least 40 storm-connected deaths were reported, most of them resulting from heart attacks while shoveling snow or from traffic accidents.

In Ohio alone there were 18 known deaths.

Thousands of motorists, truck drivers and bus passengers were stranded by the storm that started Thursday, deposited up to 27 inches of snow and sent drifts as deep as 20 feet.

The fortunate found refuge in farmhouses or emergency Red Cross shelters set up in public buildings. Others spent 24 or more hours in their vehicles.

On U.S. 21 between Akron and Cleveland, where the granddaddy of all traffic tieups developed, Anders Anderssen of Bath, Ohio, a truck driver, told a reporter who came by with a Red Cross team that brought food and drink: "I've been here since 4:30 p.m. Thursday and have gone exactly three miles. You just sit and sleep. There's nothing else you can do."

That was Friday night. The Ohio Highway Patrol estimated 5,000 vehicles were caught in that jam over a 10-mile section of hilly road south of Brecksville.

The problem of highway crews was complicated earlier by strong winds that sent drifts across the highway, by stalled vehicles and later Friday night by a freezing rain.

Some 2,000 persons were caught on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, where a 160-mile section was closed for hours. Their vehicles were herded into service areas until crews could get one lane of the turnpike open. The section of turnpike was closed at 1:30 p.m. and and wasn't opened to new traffic until 11:30 p.m.

In western Pennsylvania, Mrs. Gertrude Hixon, 25, of R.D. 1, Scottdale, gave birth to a daughter in an automobile stalled in the snow.

Near Moundsville, W. Va., some 25 motorists and bus passengers spent 24 hours in farmhouses along U.S. 250 before rescuers could plow through seven miles of snow to reach them.

Other states hit by the heavy snow and wind were New York, Maryland and Michigan. Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia also had snow.

A layer of snow up to two feet deep covered southwestern New York as the aftermath of a storm that closed schools, disrupted traffic and brought three deaths.

In Ohio, Cleveland was partially paralyzed, with more than 15 inches of snow — its worst snowstorm in 12 years. All schools and many businesses were shut down.

The Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. worked to restore power to thousands of homes cut off by fallen power lines. At the height of the storm, 40,000 homes were without power, the company reported.

Brunswick, a small community less than 20 miles southwest of downtown Cleveland, was isolated. With telephone service out, Mayor Carl Miller declared a state of emergency.

Findlay and Fostoria, in northwestern Ohio, also were declared states of emergency. At Findlay, south of Toledo, Mayor William Carlin said the emergency was declared primarily because of stranded motorists. At Fostoria, 15 miles from Findlay, Mayor Phil Brubaker said some 300 motorists were stranded.

In Wake Of Explosion

Body Of Miner Sighted; Other 36 Still Missing

Deadly Gas Slows Task Of Rescuers

Small Fires Also Hamper Teams 650 Feet Underground

BULLETIN
CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP) — A funeral director reported today that the bodies of three of 37 trapped miners have been found deep in the Robena No. 3 mine of U.S. Steel Corp.

CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP)—An advance rescue team sighted today the body of one of 37 miners trapped 650 feet underground by an explosion. Pockets of deadly methane gas and small fires delayed rescuers from reaching the body.

Fate of the other 36 miners trapped in Thursday's explosion remained unknown.

The identification of the body was not known.

James B. Girod, assistant general superintendent of the mine, said at a midmorning news conference, "Our progress may seem slow, but we are encountering gas which we must move and a few small fires."

He said the base of rescue operations was approximately 4,800 feet from the mine face but that rescue units have explored within 4,000 feet of the face. The body was reported 3,900 feet from the face.

"We must explore 1,700 feet of headway for every 100 feet we advance," Girod explained.

A mine official relayed news of the discovery of the body to a handful of relatives and friends standing by.

Adam Bronakoski, whose son, Albert, 19, was among those trapped, said the group received the information without visible reaction.

"What could we do?" he asked. "It's a temporary setback; I still have hope."

The discovery came in the third day of round-the-clock operations by specially trained eight-man rescue units at the Frosty Run shaft of U.S. Steel's Robena No. 3 mine, located about 50 miles southwest of Pittsburgh.

Probing cautiously with as much speed as possible in a desperate race against time, the rescuers made good progress Friday night and early today.

In one three-hour period Friday night, they advanced 1,000 feet.

Officials had pointed out that there was no way of telling where any of the trapped men might be in relation to the spot where the blast occurred.

Girl Slaying 8th In Boston In 6 Months

String Of Unsolved Murders Of Women Confronts Police

BOSTON (AP)—Police in suburban Winthrop are confronted today with what appears to be the eighth unsolved slaying of Greater Boston women in six months.

The latest victim is Margaret Cadigan, 17, runnerup in a 1962 Boston archdiocesan competition for queen of the Catholic Youth Organization.

She was found dead Friday night on the bedroom floor of the Winthrop home she shared with her family.

Detective Lt. Frank Perrone said of the Cadigan girl's death, "It looks like homicide."

The body of the pretty drum majorette and drill team captain was fully clothed, but her dress was up to her waist.

Her head was immersed in a pressure cooker half-filled with water. A pajama bottom was around her neck and there was a cut on the left side of her neck. A blood-stained 12-inch knife was near the body.

Lt. Perrone said the girl could have died from any one of three means: strangulation, drowning or from the throat slash. A medical examiner was expected to give an official verdict of the death at a later time.

Like the other seven women victims, Miss Cadigan was alone at home at the time of her death.

Most of the earlier victims were linked in some way with hospitals. Two were nurses, one a physiotherapist and others had been patients shortly before their deaths.

Miss Cadigan was interested in nursing and had worked in a hospital as a nurse's aide.

Police fear a madman is on the loose, picking women as his victims and strangulation as his means of killing.

Police said Miss Cadigan was home alone for about 20 minutes Friday night. Death came in that period.

The most recent victim, until Miss Cadigan's death, was Sophie Clark, 19, of Englewood, N.J., who was studying medical and hospital technology in Boston.

Authorization Given On Palestine Project

EAST PALESTINE — Mayor Robert Harding has been advised by the Federal Health, Education and Welfare Department to award a contract to the Kaiser Construction Co. of Canfield for a new sewage treatment plant here.

Kaiser's bid of $269,700 was the lowest of seven received about a month ago and sent on to the Chicago offices of the government agency.

The government will pay 30 per cent, $80,910, of the actual construction costs.

The mayor and other city officials will meet Thursday with representatives of the firm to study some provisions of the bid before formally signing a contract.

Family Loses Clothing In 2nd St. Blaze

Most of the clothing of a W. 2nd St. couple, the parents of six children, was destroyed by a fire of undetermined origin late Friday night in a bedroom clothes-press.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Cowdery Jr., 223 W. 2nd St., and their children escaped injury in the fire which filled most of the home with smoke although the blaze was confined to a second - floor bedroom.

Firemen said the fire started on a shelf in the closet and was discovered as the children were preparing for bed shortly after 10.

The parents lost most of their clothing and persons desiring to make donations may call or leave the articles at the Central Fire Station.

The alarm was turned in by Miss Karole Kapp, a neighbor, firemen said.

The department was called at 1:34 p.m. yesterday to the home of Eugene Roberts, 251 W. 7th St., to quell a fire.

Firemen said a sweater fell on a heating stove and was destroyed but no other damage was indicated. The building is owned by Robert Lowther of Wellsville.

A backfire in a carburetor was blamed for a fire in an auto operated by Bud Lane, 719 Cain St., at 12:47 p.m. yesterday at Cain St. and St. Clair Ave.

The fire extended from the engine compartment to the dash, firemen said.

Hawaii Sounds Alert For Volcano Eruption

HILO, Hawaii Islands (AP)—Scientists were alerted today for unpredictable Kilauea volcano, the mountain that belched fire three times Friday.

Island residents were edgy when the three eruptions spewed molten lava up to 200 feet into old crater pits.

ITU Strikes 4 Papers In New York City

4 Other Of Major Dailies Shut Down In Printers Walkout

NEW YORK (AP)—The International Typographical Union went on strike today against four New York City newspapers. Four other major dailies immediately announced shutdowns and a fifth was publishing only editions for out-of-town circulation.

Thus more than 5½ million readers will be left without their regular daily newspapers in the city unless there is a quick settlement of the situation. Prospects for this appeared dim.

All four morning papers published as usual before the printers set up picket lines shortly after 2 a.m.

The lone paper continuing with partial publication was the Long Island Press, in Jamaica, Queens. A spokesman said it was publishing editions distributed outside the city in Nassau and Suffolk counties on Long Island. Its Queens editions were not issued.

Six other craft unions, whose contracts also expired at midnight Friday, did not strike but announced support of the printers. The American Newspaper Guild, made up of writers, which last month struck the Daily News for eight days, is pledged to support the craft unions.

The News, the nation's largest newspaper with 2 million-plus circulation during the week and more than 3 million on Sunday, was struck again today. The other three were the Times, Journal-American and World-Telegram & Sun.

The union did not strike the Herald Tribune, Daily Mirror, the Post, the Long Island Press or the Long Island Star-Journal.

The strike came amid hopeful signs that the threat of a second blackout of newspapers here in four years was abating.

4 Children In Family Of 11 Perish In Fire

SOUTH BEND, Ind (AP)—Four children in a family of 11 burned to death this morning as a predawn fire razed their two-story farm house north of here.

Sheriff's deputies said three boys and a girl, children of Mr. and Mrs. James Dover, died in their upstairs bedroom as flames destroyed the frame home.

Dover, his wife and seven other children fled into below-freezing temperatures in their night clothes.

The first deputies on the scene said they found Dover hysterical and had to restrain him from dashing back into the blazing house.

Street Crews Clear Snow In Downtown

East End District Also Cleaned; Road Opening Completed

City street crews went home at noon today for a deserved rest after clearing the downtown and East End of the piled snow from Thursday's storm.

They worked almost continously since 5 p. m. Thursday following the most severe snowstorm to strike the Tri-State area in over 10 years.

Safety - Service Director Robert Owen said the crews handled emergency calls this morning, particularly those from isolated areas served by only one road.

Using only its own men and city - owned equipment, the crews cleared accumulated snow from the downtown business district and a section of the East End business area, the director said.

The downtown area cleared of snow included 5th and 6th Sts. from Broadway to Jackson St.; Jackson between 5th and 6th; Washington St. from 4th to 6th; Broadway from 5th St. to St. Clair Ave., and most of Mulberry St. in the East End, Asst. Supt. Ed Bowersock, said.

Bowersock commended motorists for moving their cars so the work could proceed virtually unimpeded. A parking ban had been imposed after 11 last night by the director and Mayor Bert H. Goodballet.

It was not necessary to tow away any parked autos, Bowersock said, and most merchants aided by clearing sidewalks before the crews started to work.

The city's mechanized street sweeper was a big aid in picking up snow along the curbs. In addition, a highlift was used to scrape the snow into mounds and then load it into three street department trucks.

The city parking lot adjoining City Hall was cleared yesterday but parked cars halted attempts

BEAVER FALLS — Firemen continued battling a blaze involving three or four homes in Freedom this morning but apparently all occupants escaped unharmed. Freezing temperatures hampered the departments.

Uprising Controlled

Revolt On Island Of Borneo Erupts

BRUNEI (AP)—A revolt for independence broke out in the darkness before dawn today in this British-protected sultanate on the island of Borneo. Britain rushed tough Gurkha troops from Singapore but the royal government appeared to have the uprising under control.

Seven persons were reported killed in the first skirmishes between the rebels and the forces of the sultan, Sir Omar Ali Saifuddin.

The rebels attacked oil installations manned by 200 Britons, Dutch and Australians in this capital. But there were no reports of casualties or serious damage. The installations pump out 4 million tons of oil a year.

The rebels also were reported to have attacked installations in Seria, a major oil installation about 45 miles southwest of here.

(In Kuching, capital of the neighboring British territory of Sarawak, the government announced the situation in Brunei was under government control and that order had been restored. It said, however, the situation was still serious at Seria and in nearby Kuala Belait.)

In Manila, A. M. Azahari, leader of Brunei's strongest political party—the Parti Rakyat (People's party)—proclaimed himself revolutionary prime minister of Brunei and also of two neighboring territories, North Borneo and Sarawak.

North Borneo police reported they exchanged fire with Brunei rebels at Weston near the North Borneo-Brunei border this morning. They reported no casualties.

Azahari said his rebels numbered 20,000 to 25,000 and operated as the Tentera Nasional Kalimantan Utara (North Borneo National Army), elements of which have been previously identified as pro-Indonesia. Indonesia owns part of this island off Southeast Asia.

British army sources in Singapore said 280 Gurkhas had left there aboard eight troop transports on a 700-mile flight to Brunei. They said more would follow Sunday.

The sultan told Brunei's 80,000 residents in a radio address the revolt was launched by what he called an "unlawful unit of army members."

On Tour Of Atomic Site

Kennedy Getting Appeal For 'Moonbound' Engine

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—President Kennedy well past the halfway mark on a cross-country tour, is getting a budget-season appeal for more funds to build a moonbound nuclear rocket engine.

Kennedy was to get the second half of a double exposure to Project Rover—the nuclear engine program—at the atomic test site at Jackass Flats, Nev., today. First, however, he arranged to attend a Catholic feast day Mass at an Air Force chapel here before flying to Nevada.

The chief executive was given the first half of the Rover story —and a thinly disguised plea for financial support—at Los Alamos, N.M., Friday. Scientists are designing the engine at Los Alamos and testing it at Jackass Flats.

Rover advocates hope their engine, still in the dream stage, will be chosen to lift the first American to the moon—an event now planned for sometime in the 1970s. Perhaps significantly, the White House listed as the prime reason for Kennedy's trip a desire to hear about Rover firsthand.

The journey also coincided with the time when the President is putting finishing touches on a new federal budget going to Congress next month. Also, it came as some officials were urging a slowdown in the moon program to save funds.

Nuclear rocket engines were not the only presidential concern, however. Kennedy spent more than three hours Friday at Strategic Air Command headquarters outside Omaha, Neb., being briefed on SAC's emergency plans.

Cut In Rates Seen For Gas Users Of Area

Agreement Before Federal Agency May Mean 3-Cent Slash

Customers of the Ohio Valley Gas Co. in East Liverpool, Wellsville and unincorporated areas in Columbiana County served by the utility may find the cost of gas cut by 3 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

Walter D. Betsch of Columbus, Ohio Valley vice president in charge of rates, estimated that the share applicable to the East Liverpool, Steubenville and Bellaire division of the utility may reach $500,000 under terms of an agreement submitted Friday to a Federal Power Commission examiner in Washington.

Ohio Valley is a part of the Columbia Gas System. Columbia companies, which also operate in six other states, would receive a total of $38,40,000 share of $134 million refund from the Tennessee Transmission Co., which is a major pipeline supplier of natural gas to more than 100 other gas utilities.

Betsch said the agreement must receive FPC approval before it can become effective. In addition, FPC approval of certain issues in a pending rate case of the United Fuel Gas Co. of Charleston must be obtained before the exact amount of Ohio Valley's share of the refund can be determined, he explained.

Should Ohio Valley's share approximate Betsch's estimate, he said the effect would be to reduce the cost of gas to customers about 3 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for one year.

In addition to Columbiana County, communities and unincorporated areas in Belmont, Harrison, Jefferson and Monroe Counties would benefit to the same extent, he said.

The agreement is designed to close out a 5-year wholesale gas rate fight in which the Columbia companies have opposed three

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph McD. Mitchell, the Newburgh, N.Y., city manager who gained nationwide prominence by applying stringent welfare rules there, was arrested Friday on bribery charges.

"I am confident that the facts will conclusively establish my innocence of all the charges that have been made against me," Mitchell, 40, said in a statement preceding his apperance in Manhattan Criminal Court today.

Mitchell was arrested in Newburgh Friday by detectives from Manhattan Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan's office. He was accused of asking $20,000 from two Monticello, N.Y., real estate men — twin brothers—to rezone property they owned in Newburgh.

Also arrested in the case was Lawrence J. DeMasi Jr., 42, of Lyndhurst, N.J., accused by Hogan of being the go-between in accepting the money.

DeMasi, who runs a real estate and insurance agency in Hillsdale, N.J., was picked up by Hogan's men Friday in a midtown Manhattan hotel after he purportedly took the $20,000 there from twin brothers Stephen and Joseph Wahrhaftig.

Mitchell, after his arrest at Newburg's city hall, was brought to New York where he and DeMasi were booked Friday night on charges of asking, receiving or agreeing to accept a bribe, taking unlawful fees—both felonies — and conspiracy, a misdemeanor.

Mitchell was released in $10,000 bail.

40 Reported Dead, 8 In Ohio

Tri-State District Starts Huge Snow-Digging Task

By The Associated Press

With an army of highway crewmen in the vanguard, residents of northern Ohio and western Pennsylvania tackled today the monumental job of digging out from one of the worst snowstorms in years.

At least 40 storm-connected deaths were reported, most of them resulting from heart attacks while shoveling snow or from traffic accidents.

In Ohio alone there were 18 known deaths.

Thousands of motorists, truck drivers and bus passengers were stranded by the storm that started Thursday, deposited up to 27 inches of snow and sent drifts as deep as 20 feet.

The fortunate found refuge in farmhouses or emergency Red Cross shelters set up in public buildings. Others spent 24 or more hours in their vehicles.

On U.S. 21 between Akron and Cleveland, where the granddaddy of all traffic tieups developed, Anders Anderssen of Bath, Ohio, a truck driver, told a reporter who came by with a Red Cross team that brought food and drink: "I've been here since 4:30 p.m. Thursday and have gone exactly three miles. You just sit and sleep. There's nothing else you can do."

That was Friday night. The Ohio Highway Patrol estimated 5,000 vehicles were caught in that jam over a 10-mile section of hilly road south of Brecksville.

The problem of highway crews was complicated earlier by strong winds that sent drifts across the highway, by stalled vehicles and later Friday night by a freezing rain.

Some 2,000 persons were caught on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, where a 160-mile section was closed for hours. Their vehicles were herded into service areas until crews could get one lane of the turnpike open. The section of turnpike was closed at 1:30 p.m. and and wasn't opened to new traffic until 11:30 p.m.

In western Pennsylvania, Mrs. Gertrude Hixon, 25, of R.D. 1, Scottdale, gave birth to a daughter in an automobile stalled in the snow.

Near Moundsville, W. Va., some 25 motorists and bus passengers spent 24 hours in farmhouses along U.S. 250 before rescuers could plow through seven miles of snow to reach them.

Other states hit by the heavy snow and wind were New York, Maryland and Michigan. Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia also had snow.

A layer of snow up to two feet deep covered southwestern New York as the aftermath of a storm that closed schools, disrupted traffic and brought three deaths.

In Ohio, Cleveland was partially paralyzed, with more than 15 inches of snow — its worst snowstorm in 12 years. All schools and many businesses were shut down.

The Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. worked to restore power to thousands of homes cut off by fallen power lines. At the height of the storm, 40,000 homes were without power, the company reported.

Brunswick, a small community less than 20 miles southwest of downtown Cleveland, was isolated. With telephone service out, Mayor Carl Miller declared a state of emergency.

Findlay and Fostoria, in northwestern Ohio, also were declared states of emergency. At Findlay, south of Toledo, Mayor William Carlin said the emergency was declared primarily because of stranded motorists. At Fostoria, 15 miles from Findlay, Mayor Phil Brubaker said some 300 motorists were stranded.

Body Of Miner Sighted; Other 36 Still Missing

Deadly Gas Slows Task Of Rescuers

BULLETIN

CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP) — A funeral director reported today that the bodies of three of 37 trapped miners have been found deep in the Robena No. 3 mine of U.S. Steel Corp.

CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP)—An advance rescue team sighted today the body of one of 37 miners trapped 650 feet underground by an explosion. Pockets of deadly methane gas and small fires delayed rescuers from reaching the body.

Fate of the other 36 miners trapped in Thursday's explosion remained unknown.

The identification of the body was not known.

James B. Girod, assistant general superintendent of the mine, said at a midmorning news conference, "Our progress may seem slow, but we are encountering gas which we must move and a few small fires."

He said the base of rescue operations was approximately 4,800 feet from the mine face but that rescue units have explored within 4,000 feet of the face. The body was reported 3,900 feet from the face.

"We must explore 1,700 feet of headway for every 100 feet we advance," Girod explained.

A mine official relayed news of the discovery of the body to a handful of relatives and friends standing by.

Adam Bronakoski, whose son, Albert, 19, was among those trapped, said the group received the information without visible reaction.

"What could we do?" he asked. "It's a temporary setback; I still have hope."

The discovery came in the third day of round-the-clock operations by specially trained eight-man rescue units at the Frosty Run shaft of U.S. Steel's Robena No. 3 mine, located about 50 miles southwest of Pittsburgh.

Probing cautiously with as much speed as possible in a desperate race against time, the rescuers made good progress Friday night and early today.

In one three-hour period Friday night, they advanced 1,000 feet.

Officials had pointed out that there was no way of telling where any of the trapped men might be in relation to the spot where the blast occurred.

Girl Slaying 8th In Boston In 6 Months

String Of Unsolved Murders Of Women Confronts Police

BOSTON (AP)—Police in suburban Winthrop are confronted today with what appears to be the eighth unsolved slaying of Greater Boston women in six months.

The latest victim is Margaret Cadigan, 17, runnerup in a 1962 Boston archdiocesan competition for queen of the Catholic Youth Organization.

She was found dead Friday night on the bedroom floor of the Winthrop home she shared with her family.

Detective Lt. Frank Perrone said of the Cadigan girl's death, "It looks like homicide."

The body of the pretty drum majorette and drill team captain was fully clothed, but her dress was up to her waist.

Like the other seven women victims, Miss Cadigan was alone at home at the time of her death.

Most of the earlier victims were linked in some way with hospitals. Two were nurses, one a physiotherapist and others had been patients shortly before their deaths.

Miss Cadigan was interested in nursing and had worked in a hospital as a nurse's aide.

Police fear a madman is on the loose, picking women as his victims and strangulation as his means of killing.

Police said Miss Cadigan was home alone for about 20 minutes Friday night. Death came in that period.

The most recent victim, until Miss Cadigan's death, was Sophie Clark, 19, of Englewood, N.J., who was studying medical and hospital technology in Boston.

Also arrested in the case was Lawrence J. DeMasi Jr., 42, of Lyndhurst, N.J., accused by Hogan of being the go-between in accepting the money.

DeMasi, who runs a real estate and insurance agency in Hillsdale, N.J., was picked up by Hogan's men Friday in a midtown Manhattan hotel after he purportedly took the $20,000 there from twin brothers Stephen and Joseph Wahrhaftig.

Mitchell, after his arrest at Newburg's city hall, was brought to New York where he and DeMasi were booked Friday night on charges of asking, receiving or agreeing to accept a bribe, taking unlawful fees—both felonies — and conspiracy, a misdemeanor.

Mitchell was released in $10,000 bail.

Street Crews Clear Snow In Downtown

East End District Also Cleaned; Road Opening Completed

City street crews went home at noon today for a deserved rest after clearing the downtown and East End of the piled snow from Thursday's storm.

They worked almost continously since 5 p. m. Thursday following the most severe snowstorm to strike the Tri-State area in over 10 years.

Safety - Service Director Robert Owen said the crews handled emergency calls this morning, particularly those from isolated areas served by only one road.

Using only its own men and city - owned equipment, the crews cleared accumulated snow from the downtown business district and a section of the East End business area, the director said.

The downtown area cleared of snow included 5th and 6th Sts. from Broadway to Jackson St.; Jackson between 5th and 6th; Washington St. from 4th to 6th; Broadway from 5th St. to St. Clair Ave., and most of Mulberry St. in the East End, Asst. Supt. Ed Bowersock, said.

Bowersock commended motorists for moving their cars so the work could proceed virtually unimpeded. A parking ban had been imposed after 11 last night by the director and Mayor Bert H. Goodballet.

It was not necessary to tow away any parked autos, Bowersock said, and most merchants aided by clearing sidewalks before the crews started to work.

The city's mechanized street sweeper was a big aid in picking up snow along the curbs. In addition, a highlift was used to scrape the snow into mounds and then load it into three street department trucks.

The city parking lot adjoining City Hall was cleared yesterday but parked cars halted attempts

Uprising Controlled

Revolt On Island Of Borneo Erupts

BRUNEI (AP)—A revolt for independence broke out in the darkness before dawn today in this British-protected sultanate on the island of Borneo. Britain rushed tough Gurkha troops from Singapore but the royal government appeared to have the uprising under control.

Seven persons were reported killed in the first skirmishes between the rebels and the forces of the sultan, Sir Omar Ali Saifuddin.

The rebels attacked oil installations manned by 200 Britons, Dutch and Australians in this capital. But there were no reports of casualties or serious damage. The installations pump out 4 million tons of oil a year.

The rebels also were reported to have attacked installations in Seria, a major oil installation about 45 miles southwest of here.

(In Kuching, capital of the neighboring British territory of Sarawak, the government announced the situation in Brunei was under government control and that order had been restored. It said, however, the situation was still serious at Seria and in nearby Kuala Belait.)

In Manila, A. M. Azahari, leader of Brunei's strongest political party—the Parti Rakyat (People's party)—proclaimed himself revolutionary prime minister of Brunei and also of two neighboring territories, North Borneo and Sarawak.

North Borneo police reported they exchanged fire with Brunei rebels at Weston near the North Borneo-Brunei border this morning. They reported no casualties.

Azahari said his rebels numbered 20,000 to 25,000 and operated as the Tentera Nasional Kalimantan Utara (North Borneo National Army), elements of which have been previously identified as pro-Indonesia. Indonesia owns part of this island off Southeast Asia.

British army sources in Singapore said 280 Gurkhas had left there aboard eight troop transports on a 700-mile flight to Brunei. They said more would follow Sunday.

The sultan told Brunei's 80,000 residents in a radio address the revolt was launched by what he called an "unlawful unit of army members."

Kennedy Getting Appeal For 'Moonbound' Engine

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—President Kennedy well past the halfway mark on a cross-country tour, is getting a budget-season appeal for more funds to build a moonbound nuclear rocket engine.

Kennedy was to get the second half of a double exposure to Project Rover—the nuclear engine program—at the atomic test site at Jackass Flats, Nev., today. First, however, he arranged to attend a Catholic feast day Mass at an Air Force chapel here before flying to Nevada.

The chief executive was given the first half of the Rover story —and a thinly disguised plea for financial support—at Los Alamos, N.M., Friday. Scientists are designing the engine at Los Alamos and testing it at Jackass Flats.

Rover advocates hope their engine, still in the dream stage, will be chosen to lift the first American to the moon—an event now planned for sometime in the 1970s. Perhaps significantly, the White House listed as the prime reason for Kennedy's trip a desire to hear about Rover firsthand.

The journey also coincided with the time when the President is putting finishing touches on a new federal budget going to Congress next month. Also, it came as some officials were urging a slowdown in the moon program to save funds.

Nuclear rocket engines were not the only presidential concern, however. Kennedy spent more than three hours Friday at Strategic Air Command headquarters outside Omaha, Neb., being briefed on SAC's emergency plans.

Cut In Rates Seen For Gas Users Of Area

Agreement Before Federal Agency May Mean 3-Cent Slash

Customers of the Ohio Valley Gas Co. in East Liverpool, Wellsville and unincorporated areas in Columbiana County served by the utility may find the cost of gas cut by 3 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

Walter D. Betsch of Columbus, Ohio Valley vice president in charge of rates, estimated that the share applicable to the East Liverpool, Steubenville and Bellaire division of the utility may reach $500,000 under terms of an agreement submitted Friday to a Federal Power Commission examiner in Washington.

Ohio Valley is a part of the Columbia Gas System. Columbia companies, which also operate in six other states, would receive a total of $38,40,000 share of $134 million refund from the Tennessee Transmission Co., which is a major pipeline supplier of natural gas to more than 100 other gas utilities.

Betsch said the agreement must receive FPC approval before it can become effective. In addition, FPC approval of certain issues in a pending rate case of the United Fuel Gas Co. of Charleston must be obtained before the exact amount of Ohio Valley's share of the refund can be determined, he explained.

Should Ohio Valley's share approximate Betsch's estimate, he said the effect would be to reduce the cost of gas to customers about 3 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for one year.

In addition to Columbiana County, communities and unincorporated areas in Belmont, Harrison, Jefferson and Monroe Counties would benefit to the same extent, he said.

The agreement is designed to close out a 5-year wholesale gas rate fight in which the Columbia companies have opposed three bids made by Tennessee for higher rates.

Gas

Since 1957, Columbia has contended that Tennessee's rate structure required Columbia companies to pay part of the cost incurred by Tennessee to serve other areas. The stipulation submitted yesterday recognizes the position taken by Columbia, Betsch said.

The refund covers the period from July 14, 1957, through Sept. 30, 1962, and includes interest to Nov. 25.

In addition, Tennessee has agreed to make no new rate increase filing before Jan. 1, 1964.

The agreement followed months of negotiation among Tennessee, its customers, intervenors and the FPC staff.

The utility has a proposal before the Ohio Public Utilities Commission for an 18 per cent rate boost for East Liverpool customers.

Midland Gas Users To Share In Refund

The Peoples Natural Gas Co., which serves the Midland area, and two other Western Pennsylvania utilities will pay about $9 million in refunds to customers if the Federal Power Commission approves a $134-million wholesale gas rate settlement which has been presented to it.

The settlement would end a five-year wholesale gas rate fight in which forces including the three gas firms, the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission and the City of Pittsburgh opposed three bids for higher pipeline gas rates by Tennessee Gas Transmission Co.

Based on terms of the settlement, estimated refunds to the three Pittsburgh companies would be: Equitable Gas Co., $3.5 million; Peoples Natural Gas Co., $3 million, and Columbia Gas of Pennsylvania, $2.5 million.

Peoples meanwhile has announced plans for a $550,000 headquarters site in Hempfield Township, near Greensburg, next summer for its Central Division operations. Division Manager E. Fred Lockard said work will begin shortly on the new facility. About 150 employes will work from the new building, which will house a customer service center, home service auditorium and kitchen, business office, warehouse and shop facilities.

Gas

bids made by Tennessee for higher rates.

Since 1957, Columbia has contended that Tennessee's rate structure required Columbia companies to pay part of the cost incurred by Tennessee to serve other areas. The stipulation submitted yesterday recognizes the position taken by Columbia, Betsch said.

The refund covers the period from July 14, 1957, through Sept. 30, 1962, and includes interest to Nov. 25.

In addition, Tennessee has agreed to make no new rate increase filing before Jan. 1, 1964.

The agreement followed months of negotiation among Tennessee, its customers, intervenors and the FPC staff.

The utility has a proposal before the Ohio Public Utilities Commission for an 18 per cent rate boost for East Liverpool customers.

Midland Gas Users To Share In Refund

The Peoples Natural Gas Co., which serves the Midland area, and two other Western Pennsylvania utilities will pay about $9 million in refunds to customers if the Federal Power Commission approves a $134-million wholesale gas rate settlement which has been presented to it.

The settlement would end a five-year wholesale gas rate fight in which forces including the three gas firms, the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission and the City of Pittsburgh opposed three bids for higher pipeline gas rates by Tennessee Gas Transmission Co.

Based on terms of the settlement, estimated refunds to the three Pittsburgh companies would be: Equitable Gas Co., $3.5 million; Peoples Natural Gas Co., $3 million, and Columbia Gas of Pennsylvania, $2.5 million.

Peoples meanwhile has announced plans for a $550,000 headquarters site in Hempfield Township, near Greensburg, next summer for its Central Division operations. Division Manager E. Fred Lockard said work will begin shortly on the new facility. About 150 employes will work from the new building, which will house a customer service center, home service auditorium and kitchen, business office, warehouse and shop facilities.

Optimistic Look To Future

Pope Closes First Phase Of Ecumenical Council

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII, showing the strain of illness, closed the first phase of the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council today with an optimistic look to the future.

He said he hoped the council would conclude its work in a year and that he anticipated it would bring benefits for Christian unity.

The 81-year-old Pope addressed the 2,200 council fathers in St. Peter's Basilica.

It was their last gathering before a nine-month recess that will end Sept. 8.

Pope John told them they had made a good beginning in the council's work, and then he ventured something he had never done before — an expression of a possible target date for the council's conclusion.

Many prelates have said the council could last years at its present pace.

The pontiff made clear he thought differently.

"There is hope," he said, "that the conclusion awaited by all our faithful children may be reached in the glory of the Incarnate Son of God in the joy of Christmas in the centenary year of the Council of Trent."

That centenary year would be 1963. The Council of Trent met from 1545 to 1563.

The council fathers—cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops and bishops assembled from around the world—devoted most of their final session to a pontifical Mass celebrated by Enio Cardinal Marella, archpriest of St. Peter's.

Pope John did not go to the basilica until after the Mass. He is convalescing from an aggravated stomach disorder, possibly an ulcer, and serious anemia. His doctor visited him just before he went to the basilica.

He did not mention his illness in his 2,200-word speech.

Resolution Adopted

Domestic Peace Corps Proposed By Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Creation of a domestic Peace Corps should be given careful consideration since it involves risks as well as great promise, reports a rural areas development advisory committee.

The 34-member group, appointed by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, adopted a resolution to this affect at the windup of a two-day meeting late Friday.

Clarence J. McCormick of Vincennes, Ind., former undersecretary of agriculture and chairman of the group, said the members urged consultation on the proposal with all elements of the national community.

"If such a program is launched," the committee said, "we strongly urge that leaders in rural America be consulted at an early stage so that rural America can make its fullest contribution to the program, as well as secure maximum benefits from the program."

The committee said such an organization could be effective only insofar as it strengthens and reinforces work of existing public and private groups within local communities.

"There is hope," he said, "that the conclusion awaited by all our faithful children may be reached in the glory of the Incarnate Son of God in the joy of Christmas in the centenary year of the Council of Trent."

That centenary year would be 1963. The Council of Trent met from 1545 to 1563.

The council fathers—cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops and bishops assembled from around the world—devoted most of their final session to a pontifical Mass celebrated by Enio Cardinal Marella, archpriest of St. Peter's.

Pope John did not go to the basilica until after the Mass. He is convalescing from an aggravated stomach disorder, possibly an ulcer, and serious anemia. His doctor visited him just before he went to the basilica.

He did not mention his illness in his 2,200-word speech.

Although issued locally, the permits are required by state law. Fees are varied, based on restaurant seating capacity. The nursing home permits are also issued on the basis of capacity.

Septimus Cook, sanitarian, is in charge of the issuance of the food service operation licenses.

Dayton Youth, 19, Slain By Policeman

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A 19-year-old Dayton youth was shot to death during an argument with a special policeman outside a dance hall on Dayton's West Side Friday night.

Police are questioning the policeman, James Gamblin, 41, who works for Emett-Watts Police Agency, in the shooting of Elliott Thomas Jr.

Thomas and an unidentified companion were ordered to leave the dance in the assembly hall at the Arlington Apartments after they became disorderly. Outside, Thomas got into an argument with the policeman, hired to keep order at the dance.

Police Lt. Robert Reed said Thomas pulled a gun and the police officer may have shot in self-defense.

Trial Of 10 Slated Monday On Gambling

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—With a full jury seated after three days, the trial of 10 men on charges growing out of operations of a nationwide gambling syndicate will get under way in federal court here Monday.

The jury panel of 12 was completed Friday.

Government and defense attorneys estimate the trial will last 6 to 12 weeks.

A federal grand jury indicted the 10 men on chares of defrauding the government of gambling excise taxes and also excise taxes on telephone calls by unauthorized use of long distance lines.

The 10 men include Robert and Benjamin Lassoff and Myron Decklebaum, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Resolution Adopted

Domestic Peace Corps Proposed By Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Creation of a domestic Peace Corps should be given careful consideration since it involves risks as well as great promise, reports a rural areas development advisory committee.

The 34-member group, appointed by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, adopted a resolution to this affect at the windup of a two-day meeting late Friday.

Clarence J. McCormick of Vincennes, Ind., former undersecretary of agriculture and chairman of the group, said the members urged consultation on the proposal with all elements of the national community.

"If such a program is launched," the committee said, "we strongly urge that leaders in rural America be consulted at an early stage so that rural America can make its fullest contribution to the program, as well as secure maximum benefits from the program."

The committee said such an organization could be effective only insofar as it strengthens and reinforces work of existing public and private groups within local communities.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department reports that 154,777 farms have been signed up so far to divert 1,684,852 wheat acres to conservation uses under a special voluntary 1963 program.

In a progress report on the program, the department said the winter signup period will continue through Dec. 14. Spring wheat acreage will be signed up early next year.

Acreage signed up for diversion during the two-week period between Nov. 15-29 amounted to 745,704 acres on 54,245 farms with allotments or small farm bases on farms signed up to date. The small farm base applies to farms with less than 15 acres of wheat.

The Chancellor's Day In The Sun

Announcement of the impending retirement of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer came as no surprise to West German political leaders or, in fact, to the entire Western World.

Mr. Adenauer has been under pressure for some time from his own Christian Democratic party to relinquish the reins in favor of a younger man.

THE WEST GERMAN chancellor has lost considerable political strength in the last two years and has been under heavy fire for the part his defense minister, Franz Josef Strauss, played in the recent crackdown on the news magazine Der Spiegel.

Nearing 87, Mr. Adenauer has shown unmistakable signs of losing some of the grip he has held on West Germans since he took over the chancellorship 13 years ago. While he appears to have retained much of the respect that has been his in world affairs, internal troubles have continued to mount to the point of open dissatisfaction.

WHILE THE CHANCELLOR undoubtedly has reached the point where retirement would be in the best interests of West Germany, the free world should not lose sight of his great contributions in the battle to keep communism at arm's length.

He has helped to build West Germany into a vital link in NATO, and the bond of friendly relationship he has forged with President DeGaulle of France has eliminated one of the traditional perils to a united and defensible Western Europe.

While the shadows on his illustrious career are lengthening, his day in the sun is reflected brightly over the Free World.

Sometimes It's A Mystery

There used to be a mystery about the ability of Harry Bridges, the West Coast labor leader, to stay in this country and lead the life of Riley.

Some kind of government proceeding against him was going on 14 of the 18 years since the first deportation warrant was issued against him in the early '30s. Federal agencies tried to throw him out as an alien and failed. Attempts to take his citizenship away on grounds that he had perjured himself in getting it were flops. Technicalities always saved him.

Bridges is supposed to have exclaimed at one time, "It's not an abuse of due process that I'm suffering from. I've got due process coming out of my ears."

Bridges never was headed off. Even an act of Congress designed to grease the skids for his deportation couldn't do the job.

Another case of incredible ability to stay put is building up to major proportions. Frank Costello, convicted in 1954 on charges of income tax evasion and "denaturalized" in 1959 after his release from prison, moved one small step toward deportation this week when a government order for that purpose was upheld by the United States Court of Appeals. But he may never take another.

Here again is the mystery of men who give the illusion of being stronger than the government and its instrumentalities of justice. Costello is going about his business as did Bridges, though in both instances the entire power of government had been set against them. For $10,000 bail, he is permitted to do as he pleases. By the time due process has run its course, he may be as free as Bridges, though it will be on a technicality, not on a principle.

When someone "fights city hall" for a good cause, it stirs us to the fiber of our being. When Bridges, Costello and others do it as demonstration of their power to hold government at bay, it scares us. Could it be true in this republic that some men can only be touched by the law, never pinned?

Anyone Can Make A Guess

The Department of Labor is trying to find out where 150,000 extra teen-agers came from in November. They boosted the national idle rate from 5.5 per cent to 5.8 per cent and made November the high unemployment month for 1962.

The department has touched on all the obvious theories except one. It hasn't looked for the reason in its calculating machines. That is as likely as another obvious theory —that 150,000 extra teen-agers applied for Christmas rush employment. A government that writes checks with extra ciphers is not infallible.

Each year when school lets out, hundreds of thousands of high school and college students are added to unemployment totals, though they are not in fact bona fide unemployed persons because they are not in the full-time job market.

This is the weakness of unemployment statistics. They do not reveal who is in the full-time job market and who is willing to take a job if the right one comes along. A teen-age girl looking for something to supplement an allowance has the same statistical impact as a teen-age boy who has dropped out of school to support a widowed mother—or one who has been suspended from college for bad deportment.

And in no case do the statistics reflect an actual count of unemployed persons, nothing but projections based on spot checks. Who knows? Someone might have sampled the unemployment situation in a Boys Town and projected it into 150,000 extra unemployed teen-agers.

Hot Hair

Miami police think professional thieves made off with 200 wigs and 20 pounds of human hair because the heavy demand for wigs among the representatives of the affluent society down there has made transplanted hair a hot item.

Their theory might be right. Those of us who have lost our hair couldn't care less. Our interest in this case lies elsewhere.

From now on, we will ditch the theory we are prematurely bald. We will level with our detractors: We have sold our hair to buy a wig for a girl friend. And if she has read her O.Henry, too, she will sell her hair to buy a wig for us. Baby it's cold outside.

Cotton Corners

By Truman Twill

Dear Nephew: Did you ever realize what could be done if everybody learned about horizontal classification? Of course not.

You don't know what horizontal classification is. I invented the phrase after reading your latest letter.

You were separating people into groups and ranking some groups higher than others. That is perpendicular classification.

It shows you hold some people in higher regard than others. It is based on a personal standard of superiority — or you can call it a standard of inferiority — that goes from top to bottom and from bottom to top.

When you apply this, only the people who grade out at the top are going to be pleased. The ones on the bottom are going to be sore, because you have shown what you think of them by making them the low men on your totem pole.

This doesn't happen in horizontal classification, which is like the side-by-side bins where hardware stores keep nails. Everything is on the same plane. All nails are equal in rank.

They are separated according to characteristics. This makes sense because a customer wants what he needs. He does not want all the nails mixed together, but neither does he want them classified in a way that makes the kind he asks for inferior to another kind.

Do you see what I mean about horizontal classification? Do you see how silly it is to jump to the conclusion that no classification is possible just because someone objects to perpendicular classification?

When I go to the work bench to pick out a bit to drill a hole I open the box where the bits are kept. There they are, horizontally classified. No one bit is superior to any other bit; everything depends on what the bits are going to be used for.

This is the way I wish all of us would learn to think about other people in this country, instead of grading them from top to bottom with the implications of inferiority connected with being on the bottom.

It all depends on what you need. If I am looking for someone to work a problem in mathematics I go to the bin where mathemeticians are kept. If I'm looking for a fellow with a strong back to do a job that needs a strong back, I look in the bin where we keep athletes.

I bear in mind also that my mathematician may be able to double as an athlete and my athlete may do double duty as a mathematician. This shows why it makes no sense to classify people arbitrarily from top to bottom on a totem pole indicating quality.

There are times when I would put loyalty and guts above all other qualities. For some situations nothing is more important than enthusiasm and so on.

Think about horizontal classification. It will surprise you how many things will clear up if you classify people according to their characteristics instead of what you think of their value.

Your aunt has been looking at this over my shoulder and says to tell you to look for me among the tacks. Pay no attention to her. Call me "Spike." Regards to the folks.

Surprise!

It's The Old, Old Story Again

By Raymond Moley

In the weeks which intervene between a nationwide election and the beginning of the congressional session in January, a condition prevails in the news-gathering and printing industry which, often in the past I have called the news gap. Space has to be filled, and if nothing newsworthy is happening, two courses are open to our esteemed profession of journalism. Either we speculate about what will happen or we must blow up little things to fill our columns.

Some years ago when I served as research director of the New York Crime Commission,I projected an inquiry into what was called "crime waves."

It seemed that there was always a spate of news about crime in the period when the days were growing shorter and wintry temperatures were closing in. Sentimentalists believed that, since the rigors of climate were growing more severe, poor people were driven by hunger and cold to despoil their fellow citizens of items of property by felonious methods.

THOSE WERE the piping days before the depression, and I doubted this sentimental theory. In purusing my researches I found that the police records failed to validate the existence of an increase in crime in those weeks.

Further researches indicated clearly that what was happening was not a crime wave, but a wave of crime news. For crime is always with us, and it can always be used to fill gaps in the news.

At this season, when the streets and stores are filled with shoppers, automobiles are clogging the streets and highways, and the true spirit of Yuletide is buried in harassed wishing for the 26th of December, political commentators are, among others, worried by the lack of events to fill their alloted space.

Two subjects are always at hand, even in the most breathless holiday quiet. One is the so-called rift in the Republican party. The other is speculation about who will or should be designated as the burnt offering in the next presidential election. Of course, there also is the coming deficit to comment upon and, this year, the possibility of a tax cut.

I have already considered the latter two in these essays. The deficit will be whopping. But anyone who tries to estimate its size is wasting his time. Certainly, it will have as little relevance to what the President announces in his budget message as estimates of the age of Archie Moore. It will be whatever anyone chooses to guess, and your guess is likely to be as accurate as that of the President.

THE POSSIBILITY of a tax cut and what the nature of a possible tax cut will be are equally speculative. Maybe we shall know something about that when the flowers bloom again in northern latitudes, perhaps not until the dog days in August.

Now so far as the "rift" in the Republican party is concerned, this is stale news. Indeed, it is not news at all. As far back as 1896, when Republicans were selecting a presidential candidate there was a most vicious contest between the Hanna faction, which was backing McKinley, and the Eastern-Wall Street people, who were supporting Thomas B. Reed, speaker of the House.

The division was between the banking interests who were internationally minded, favored free trade and a gold standard, and interests who believed in protection and were not wholly orthodox in the money question. Republican divisions on other issues persisted for many years.

With the great differences in the constituencies of the states, these differences will remain. Sen. Javits is a product of the voting majority in New York, just as Sen. Kuchel represents the peculiar interests of California.

Differences are inevitable in a national party and must be lived with. They do not necessarily mean the dissolution of the party. The Democrats have like divisions.

Those who envision a homogeneous party constitutency are pursuing a vain hope. These differences are matters to be lived with and measurably adjusted by the processes of nomination and party compromises.

SPECULATION about a candidate in 1964 is an idle exercise If the Republican party organizations in the states are overhauled and improved, any one of several candidates has a chance to win. Without such improvements, no candidate can win.

So in these days of scant news, let us appraise what we read with a reminder that in only a few weeks we shall have Congress with us again. That is always amusing and sometimes genuinely interesting.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW:

I read in The Review where the Jaycees have urged the city to consider a "master plan".

This is to move the city forward to greater prosperity, full employment and attract industry.

This is wonderful if it can be done, which I doubt, for it is a definite thought toward progress for our area.

Then I read where the Clark Race dance was turned down and that they couldn't rent Memorial Auditorium. The lack of chaperones was given as the reason, but I believe it was because no money would be forthcoming to this town.

I think this is wrong because it gives our teen-agers a place in our town and something to remember.

So in order to start toward prosperity, I think we should start first and help our teen-agers.

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW:

I read in this week's Review where Midland Council has reenacted the borough wage tax.

I am one of the many workers who was taken by the earlier occupation tax which has since been ruled illegal. Pennsylvania's own courts ruled against this $10-a-year levy.

We workers of both states—Ohio and Pennsylvania — would like to see this $10 that was ruled out rightfully returned with interest to each and every one who was subject to this illegal take.

Whither Stevenson?

By David Lawrence

Magazine Article Clouds Future For Adlai

Poor Adlai Stevenson! Twice he was the Democratic party's presidential nominee and lost. Once he was talked of for secretary of state in President Kennedy's Cabinet. He lost out there, too. Now the former governor of Illinois, who is this country's ambassador to and official spokesman in the United Nations, can't be exactly sure just where he stands. Will he lose out in that post, too?

David Lawrence

A furor has been caused by a magazine article which quotes anonymous officials as implying that Mr. Stevenson was an appeaser in the recent Cuban crisis. Naturally, this is reported to have impaired, for the moment anyway, Mr. Stevenson's prestige at the U.N. so the White House issues words of consolation to Mr. Stevenson and tells the public in strong words that Mr. Kennedy's ambassador to the U.N. still is a trusted adviser of the President of the United States.

In these days of "manipulated" news, one doesn't know what denials and reassurances really mean. The people generally — including many reporters — are suspicious that all is not well. It's recalled that last year there were persistent news stories intimating that Chester Bowles would leave his post as under secretary of state. Denials came from the White House but the change was made just the same a little later.

THE QUESTION is being raised as to whether the same tactics are being used now to ease Mr. Stevenson out of his U.N. post.

Who is back of the agitation for the removal of Mr. Stevenson? There are rumors of "palace intrigue" and of a "Washington vendetta."

One report has it that the plan was or still is that McGeorge Bundy, a very able adviser to the President and former dean at Harvard, is being groomed to become secretary of state in place of Dean Rusk, who, in turn, is to go to the U.N. as ambassador. It isn't clear what post Mr. Stevenson would get.

The rumors still are purely theoretical speculation and, for a while at least, will be dismissed as groundless.

Nobody can ignore the fact that there is an unstable situation surrounding the advisers to the President. The Cabinet as such has been relegated to an unimportant position as an advisory body. Certain Cabinet members—such as the secretaries of the treasury, state, and defense—sit in the big meetings, but the idea of giving first rank to a Cabinet council of 10 eminent persons, formally designated for confirmation by the Senate, has seemingly been abandoned. Most of the advisers hold office by appointments that do not require Senate confirmation.

What really happened at the top-level conferences relating to Cuba? The Saturday Evening Post article—written by Stewart Alsop and Charles Bartlett, two able reporters who are close friends of President Kennedy — merely quoted an anonymous participant in the high councils of the administration as saying:

"Adlai wanted a Munich. He wanted to trade the Turkish, Italian and British missile bases for the Cuban bases."

IT ISN'T clear whether Mr. Stevenson just wanted the subject of "trades" put on the agenda or whether he really recommended such a course. Some "trading" apparently was done, as is evidenced by a speech by U Thant, secretary general of the U.N., who referred the other day to the Cuban agreement of recent weeks as having been an example of compromise and of the principle of give and take.

Now, it is a bit unfair to Mr. Stevenson to picture him as an appeaser just on the basis of someone else's interpretation of his comments or basic thinking.

There seems no doubt that, in the atmosphere created in New York by the neutralists in the Asian and African countries who want America's money and rarely ever vote along with us, the ideas of that group will somehow rub off on American representatives at the U.N.

Mr. Stevenson has an agile mind. While he must know that appeasement doesn't pay, he is one of the school of thought which sees some virtue in marathon negotiations. He probably did no more in the high council proceedings than sketch the idea of possible negotiation within which a settlement might be achieved. For it must not be forgotten that all these conferences being talked about took place in the context of a possible nuclear war.

THESE EXPLANATIONS, however, may not satisfy those who clamor for something convincing from the White House on the subject. Chalmers M. Roberts, able writer for the Washington Post, says the magazine article has been "widely taken in Washington as a hatchet job of uncertain instigation designed to force Stevenson's resignation."

The same newspaper comments editorially that it is wrong for anyone to infer that the President "might resort to a disreputable journalistic circumlocution reminiscent of a Byzantine palace conspiracy."

The Washington Evening Star, with a sense of detachment from the whole melee, asks in an editorial "Who Managed the Leak?" and then, with tongue in cheek, says:

"It is all very confusing. Under a system of managed news, nobody is ever quite sure of the aims of such management. Was it, in this case, to discredit Mr. Stevenson, or to discredit him in order to provide an opportunity to praise him? We do not know. We trust, however, that the White House will follow established precedent. FBI agents should be assigned immediately to interview The Saturday Evening Post reporters in an effort to find out who said what, and why."

Anti-Trust Blues

By Ben Weberman

A tough anti-trust policy pursued by the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission has business men upset over confusing but vigorously enforced regulations.

In a sense, many corporate executives now feel that they are boxed in a "damned if you do and damned if you don't" situation with too strong competition hit for creating monopolistic conditions and too little competition failing to meet the anti-monopoly standards.

Irving K. Lipkowitz, director of economic affairs of Reynolds Metals Co., says the battle is not alone for lawyers and corporate executives, but one which requires the efforts of economists as well.

For many companies, already big in the so-called "concentrated" industries, the possibility of anti-trust action is an added risk of growth, no matter how beneficial such expansion could be to the national economy in terms of better or cheaper products and more jobs.

"Is responsibility a mere euphemism for anti-bigness or is it the price a big company pays for the opportunity to use its economic strength, no matter how innocently developed and no matter how constructively applied?" he asked.

The business economist, he declared, could be most useful to the community as well as to industry in narrowing the gap between anti-trust doctrine and actual business practice.

Milton Handler, Columbia University professor of law and noted anti-trust barrister, pointed out in his 15th annual review for the New York City Bar of anti-trust developments that one of the burning issues on the enforcement front today is the manner in which the Federal Trade Commission has been exercising its powers of investigation.

In the St. Regis Paper case, the commission won the right to compel production of copies of Census Bureau reports which stated on their face that they "cannot be used for purposes of taxation, investigation or regulation." The Supreme Court ruled that, although the originals filed with the government were confidential, the retained copies were not.

The commission, he pointed out, then held the first public investigational hearing in its history which allowed counsel for the company to advise his client, although it could not cross-examine, bring in evidence or otherwise participate in the proceeding.

When officials of Kroger Co. questioned both the constitutional and statutory basis for public hearings without full representation of counsel, the FTC broadened its hearing to include the question of whether the agency "should report to the Congress concerning the need for additional remedial legislation bearing on this pricing problem."

The Chancellor's Day In The Sun

Announcement of the impending retirement of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer came as no surprise to West German political leaders or, in fact, to the entire Western World.

Mr. Adenauer has been under pressure for some time from his own Christian Democratic party to relinquish the reins in favor of a younger man.

THE WEST GERMAN chancellor has lost considerable political strength in the last two years and has been under heavy fire for the part his defense minister, Franz Josef Strauss, played in the recent crackdown on the news magazine Der Spiegel.

Nearing 87, Mr. Adenauer has shown unmistakable signs of losing some of the grip he has held on West Germans since he took over the chancellorship 13 years ago. While he appears to have retained much of the respect that has been his in world affairs, internal troubles have continued to mount to the point of open dissatisfaction.

WHILE THE CHANCELLOR undoubtedly has reached the point where retirement would be in the best interests of West Germany, the free world should not lose sight of his great contributions in the battle to keep communism at arm's length.

He has helped to build West Germany into a vital link in NATO, and the bond of friendly relationship he has forged with President DeGaulle of France has eliminated one of the traditional perils to a united and defensible Western Europe.

While the shadows on his illustrious career are lengthening, his day in the sun is reflected brightly over the Free World.

Sometimes It's A Mystery

There used to be a mystery about the ability of Harry Bridges, the West Coast labor leader, to stay in this country and lead the life of Riley.

Some kind of government proceeding against him was going on 14 of the 18 years since the first deportation warrant was issued against him in the early '30s. Federal agencies tried to throw him out as an alien and failed. Attempts to take his citizenship away on grounds that he had perjured himself in getting it were flops. Technicalities always saved him.

Bridges is supposed to have exclaimed at one time, "It's not an abuse of due process that I'm suffering from. I've got due process coming out of my ears."

Bridges never was headed off. Even an act of Congress designed to grease the skids for his deportation couldn't do the job.

Another case of incredible ability to stay put is building up to major proportions. Frank Costello, convicted in 1954 on charges of income tax evasion and "denaturalized" in 1959 after his release from prison, moved one small step toward deportation this week when a government order for that purpose was upheld by the United States Court of Appeals. But he may never take another.

Here again is the mystery of men who give the illusion of being stronger than the government and its instrumentalities of justice. Costello is going about his business as did Bridges, though in both instances the entire power of government had been set against them. For $10,000 bail, he is permitted to do as he pleases. By the time due process has run its course, he may be as free as Bridges, though it will be on a technicality, not on a principle.

When someone "fights city hall" for a good cause, it stirs us to the fiber of our being. When Bridges, Costello and others do it as demonstration of their power to hold government at bay, it scares us. Could it be true in this republic that some men can only be touched by the law, never pinned?

Anyone Can Make A Guess

The Department of Labor is trying to find out where 150,000 extra teen-agers came from in November. They boosted the national idle rate from 5.5 per cent to 5.8 per cent and made November the high unemployment month for 1962.

The department has touched on all the obvious theories except one. It hasn't looked for the reason in its calculating machines. That is as likely as another obvious theory —that 150,000 extra teen-agers applied for Christmas rush employment. A government that writes checks with extra ciphers is not infallible.

Each year when school lets out, hundreds of thousands of high school and college students are added to unemployment totals, though they are not in fact bona fide unemployed persons because they are not in the full-time job market.

This is the weakness of unemployment statistics. They do not reveal who is in the full-time job market and who is willing to take a job if the right one comes along. A teen-age girl looking for something to supplement an allowance has the same statistical impact as a teen-age boy who has dropped out of school to support a widowed mother—or one who has been suspended from college for bad deportment.

And in no case do the statistics reflect an actual count of unemployed persons, nothing but projections based on spot checks. Who knows? Someone might have sampled the unemployment situation in a Boys Town and projected it into 150,000 extra unemployed teen-agers.

Hot Hair

Miami police think professional thieves made off with 200 wigs and 20 pounds of human hair because the heavy demand for wigs among the representatives of the affluent society down there has made transplanted hair a hot item.

Their theory might be right. Those of us who have lost our hair couldn't care less. Our interest in this case lies elsewhere.

From now on, we will ditch the theory we are prematurely bald. We will level with our detractors: We have sold our hair to buy a wig for a girl friend. And if she has read her O.Henry, too, she will sell her hair to buy a wig for us. Baby it's cold outside.

Cotton Corners

By Truman Twill

Dear Nephew: Did you ever realize what could be done if everybody learned about horizontal classification? Of course not.

You don't know what horizontal classification is. I invented the phrase after reading your latest letter.

You were separating people into groups and ranking some groups higher than others. That is perpendicular classification.

It shows you hold some people in higher regard than others. It is based on a personal standard of superiority — or you can call it a standard of inferiority — that goes from top to bottom and from bottom to top.

When you apply this, only the people who grade out at the top are going to be pleased. The ones on the bottom are going to be sore, because you have shown what you think of them by making them the low men on your totem pole.

This doesn't happen in horizontal classification, which is like the side-by-side bins where hardware stores keep nails. Everything is on the same plane. All nails are equal in rank.

They are separated according to characteristics. This makes sense because a customer wants what he needs. He does not want all the nails mixed together, but neither does he want them classified in a way that makes the kind he asks for inferior to another kind.

Do you see what I mean about horizontal classification? Do you see how silly it is to jump to the conclusion that no classification is possible just because someone objects to perpendicular classification?

When I go to the work bench to pick out a bit to drill a hole I open the box where the bits are kept. There they are, horizontally classified. No one bit is superior to any other bit; everything depends on what the bits are going to be used for.

This is the way I wish all of us would learn to think about other people in this country, instead of grading them from top to bottom with the implications of inferiority connected with being on the bottom.

It all depends on what you need. If I am looking for someone to work a problem in mathematics I go to the bin where mathemeticians are kept. If I'm looking for a fellow with a strong back to do a job that needs a strong back, I look in the bin where we keep athletes.

I bear in mind also that my mathematician may be able to double as an athlete and my athlete may do double duty as a mathematician. This shows why it makes no sense to classify people arbitrarily from top to bottom on a totem pole indicating quality.

There are times when I would put loyalty and guts above all other qualities. For some situations nothing is more important than enthusiasm and so on.

Think about horizontal classification. It will surprise you how many things will clear up if you classify people according to their characteristics instead of what you think of their value.

Your aunt has been looking at this over my shoulder and says to tell you to look for me among the tacks. Pay no attention to her. Call me "Spike." Regards to the folks.

Surprise!

It's The Old, Old Story Again

By Raymond Moley

In the weeks which intervene between a nationwide election and the beginning of the congressional session in January, a condition prevails in the news-gathering and printing industry which, often in the past I have called the news gap. Space has to be filled, and if nothing newsworthy is happening, two courses are open to our esteemed profession of journalism. Either we speculate about what will happen or we must blow up little things to fill our columns.

Some years ago when I served as research director of the New York Crime Commission,I projected an inquiry into what was called "crime waves."

It seemed that there was always a spate of news about crime in the period when the days were growing shorter and wintry temperatures were closing in. Sentimentalists believed that, since the rigors of climate were growing more severe, poor people were driven by hunger and cold to despoil their fellow citizens of items of property by felonious methods.

THOSE WERE the piping days before the depression, and I doubted this sentimental theory. In purusing my researches I found that the police records failed to validate the existence of an increase in crime in those weeks.

Further researches indicated clearly that what was happening was not a crime wave, but a wave of crime news. For crime is always with us, and it can always be used to fill gaps in the news.

At this season, when the streets and stores are filled with shoppers, automobiles are clogging the streets and highways, and the true spirit of Yuletide is buried in harassed wishing for the 26th of December, political commentators are, among others, worried by the lack of events to fill their alloted space.

Two subjects are always at hand, even in the most breathless holiday quiet. One is the so-called rift in the Republican party. The other is speculation about who will or should be designated as the burnt offering in the next presidential election. Of course, there also is the coming deficit to comment upon and, this year, the possibility of a tax cut.

I have already considered the latter two in these essays. The deficit will be whopping. But anyone who tries to estimate its size is wasting his time. Certainly, it will have as little relevance to what the President announces in his budget message as estimates of the age of Archie Moore. It will be whatever anyone chooses to guess, and your guess is likely to be as accurate as that of the President.

THE POSSIBILITY of a tax cut and what the nature of a possible tax cut will be are equally speculative. Maybe we shall know something about that when the flowers bloom again in northern latitudes, perhaps not until the dog days in August.

Now so far as the "rift" in the Republican party is concerned, this is stale news. Indeed, it is not news at all. As far back as 1896, when Republicans were selecting a presidential candidate there was a most vicious contest between the Hanna faction, which was backing McKinley, and the Eastern-Wall Street people, who were supporting Thomas B. Reed, speaker of the House.

The division was between the banking interests who were internationally minded, favored free trade and a gold standard, and interests who believed in protection and were not wholly orthodox in the money question. Republican divisions on other issues persisted for many years.

With the great differences in the constituencies of the states, these differences will remain. Sen. Javits is a product of the voting majority in New York, just as Sen. Kuchel represents the peculiar interests of California.

Differences are inevitable in a national party and must be lived with. They do not necessarily mean the dissolution of the party. The Democrats have like divisions.

Those who envision a homogeneous party constitutency are pursuing a vain hope. These differences are matters to be lived with and measurably adjusted by the processes of nomination and party compromises.

SPECULATION about a candidate in 1964 is an idle exercise If the Republican party organizations in the states are overhauled and improved, any one of several candidates has a chance to win. Without such improvements, no candidate can win.

So in these days of scant news, let us appraise what we read with a reminder that in only a few weeks we shall have Congress with us again. That is always amusing and sometimes genuinely interesting.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW:

I read in The Review where the Jaycees have urged the city to consider a "master plan".

This is to move the city forward to greater prosperity, full employment and attract industry.

This is wonderful if it can be done, which I doubt, for it is a definite thought toward progress for our area.

Then I read where the Clark Race dance was turned down and that they couldn't rent Memorial Auditorium. The lack of chaperones was given as the reason, but I believe it was because no money would be forthcoming to this town.

I think this is wrong because it gives our teen-agers a place in our town and something to remember.

So in order to start toward prosperity, I think we should start first and help our teen-agers.

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW:

I read in this week's Review where Midland Council has re-enacted the borough wage tax.

I am one of the many workers who was taken by the earlier occupation tax which has since been ruled illegal. Pennsylvania's own courts ruled against this $10-a-year levy.

We workers of both states—Ohio and Pennsylvania — would like to see this $10 that was ruled out rightfully returned with interest to each and every one who was subject to this illegal take.

Whither Stevenson?

Magazine Article Clouds Future For Adlai

Poor Adlai Stevenson! Twice he was the Democratic party's presidential nominee and lost. Once he was talked of for secretary of state in President Kennedy's Cabinet. He lost out there, too. Now the former governor of Illinois, who is this country's ambassador to and official spokesman in the United Nations, can't be exactly sure just where he stands. Will he lose out in that post, too?

David Lawrence

A furor has been caused by a magazine article which quotes anonymous officials as implying that Mr. Stevenson was an appeaser in the recent Cuban crisis. Naturally, this is reported to have impaired, for the moment anyway, Mr. Stevenson's prestige at the U.N. so the White House issues words of consolation to Mr. Stevenson and tells the public in strong words that Mr. Kennedy's ambassador to the U.N. still is a trusted adviser of the President of the United States.

In these days of "manipulated" news, one doesn't know what denials and reassurances really mean. The people generally — including many reporters — are suspicious that all is not well. It's recalled that last year there were persistent news stories intimating that Chester Bowles would leave his post as under secretary of state. Denials came from the White House but the change was made just the same a little later.

THE QUESTION is being raised as to whether the same tactics are being used now to ease Mr. Stevenson out of his U.N. post.

Who is back of the agitation for the removal of Mr. Stevenson? There are rumors of "palace intrigue" and of a "Washington vendetta."

One report has it that the plan was or still is that McGeorge Bundy, a very able adviser to the President and former dean at Harvard, is being groomed to become secretary of state in place of Dean Rusk, who, in turn, is to go to the U.N. as ambassador. It isn't clear what post Mr. Stevenson would get.

The rumors still are purely theoretical speculation and, for a while at least, will be dismissed as groundless.

Nobody can ignore the fact that there is an unstable situation surrounding the advisers to the President. The Cabinet as such has been relegated to an unimportant position as an advisory body. Certain Cabinet members—such as the secretaries of the treasury, state, and defense—sit in the big meetings, but the idea of giving first rank to a Cabinet council of 10 eminent persons, formally designated for confirmation by the Senate, has seemingly been abandoned. Most of the advisers hold office by appointments that do not require Senate confirmation.

What really happened at the top-level conferences relating to Cuba? The Saturday Evening Post article—written by Stewart Alsop and Charles Bartlett, two able reporters who are close friends of President Kennedy — merely quoted an anonymous participant in the high councils of the administration as saying:

"Adlai wanted a Munich. He wanted to trade the Turkish, Italian and British missile bases for the Cuban bases."

IT ISN'T clear whether Mr. Stevenson just wanted the subject of "trades" put on the agenda or whether he really recommended such a course. Some "trading" apparently was done, as is evidenced by a speech by U Thant, secretary general of the U.N., who referred the other day to the Cuban agreement of recent weeks as having been an example of compromise and of the principle of give and take.

Now, it is a bit unfair to Mr. Stevenson to picture him as an appeaser just on the basis of someone else's interpretation of his comments or basic thinking.

There seems no doubt that, in the atmosphere created in New York by the neutralists in the Asian and African countries who want America's money and rarely ever vote along with us, the ideas of that group will somehow rub off on American representatives at the U.N.

Mr. Shnoo's Zoo

BY LUCRECE BEALE

CHAPTER SIX

"Where are we going?" asked Mr. Shnoo as he and Santa left Shnoo's Zoo behind and started down the road leading poor Honeybun on a rope.

"There's an elf in Santa Land named Dr. Kernoodle," said Santa. "He has a wonderful way with sick animals. I think he can help Honeybun."

"Oh, I hope so!" said Mr. Shnoo, rubbing his fingers through the brown bear's fur. "But, oh dear, I don't think she can go that far. Look! She is staggering already."

Honeybun swung her hurt head back and forth. She seemed ready to give up and lie down right there in the road.

Santa said, "Don't worry. We'll go by sea — the way I came. It's a very fast and restful trip."

—:—

MR. SHNOO got behind Honeybun and gently pushed her along. "A voyage should do her good," he said. "She was on a ship once before, when she was a cub."

"It's not exactly a ship," said Santa, tugging on Honeybun's rope. "It's a Blue-Scaled Scholar."

"Blue-Scaled Scholar! What is that?"

"You'll see soon enough."

And sure enough Mr. Shnoo did see, for they came, by and by, to the end of the road and there was the river. Waiting at the edge of the river was an enormous fish covered with sky - blue scales. He was big as a tug boat and his mouth when he opened it was as large as a small front porch.

"Come in," said Santa and he led Honeybun and the astonished Mr. Shnoo right into the gaping jaws of the Blue-Scaled Scholar.

The mouth snapped shut behind them and Mr. Shnoo didn't know what to do. It was all so dark and scary. He heard Santa calling to him and he could see a light far ahead.

He pushed Honeybun down a slippery, slidey passageway until he came into a lighted sitting room. The walls and floor were red and the furniture was quite modern with lots of comfortable sofas covered with puffy pillows.

THERE WERE books on shelves along the walls. Santa went straight to one of the shelves and picked up a book. It was called "Three Little Fish and How They Grew".

"He likes to be read aloud to," said Santa. "That is why he is called Scholar, I expect."

He sat down on a sofa, put on his spectacles and opened the book to Page 634. He began to read. The room started to move gently up and down as the Scholar moved out toward sea. Honeybun curled up on some pillows behind the sofa. She did not seem at all alarmed to find herself in such strange surroundings.

Waiting at the edge of the river was an enormous fish.

But Mr. Shnoo was very puzzled. He sank down on a sofa but he couldn't keep still. He kept jumping up and down and examining things.

Finally Santa put down his book and said, "Why are you so fidgety? What is the matter?"

"I have been thinking," said Mr. Shnoo. "I have never seen so remarkable a creature. I must have a Blue - Scaled Scholar for my zoo."

SANTA SHOOK his head. "They do not live in captivity. In fact, no mortal eye other than yours has ever seen one. If you tell anyone about it you will be told you were dreaming."

"And perhaps I am," said Mr. Shnoo, rubbing his eyes. But a moment later he knew he wasn't because the voyage came to an abrupt end. Mr. Shnoo stood up so suddenly he bumped his head quite hard on the ceiling.

The great mouth of the Scholar opened and Santa and Honeybun and Mr. Shnoo walked out. They were on the beach of a snow-covered land.

Mr. Shnoo knew right away it was Santa Land because there was a big red sleigh waiting there and dancing around the sleigh were hundreds of tiny elves come to welcome Santa home.

Santa greeted all his little workers and fussed with them a little for being away from their work. Then he told them about Honeybun. The elves were sorrowful to see so sad a bear.

Gently they lifted Honeybun onto the sleigh. When Honeybun was settled comfortably, Santa and Mr. Shnoo got in beside her. Then each elf took his place on the ropes and all together they gave a mighty tug until suddenly —Zip! Away they sped over the snow!

The East Liverpool Area Men's Republican Club spent $290 in the campaign preceding the Nov. 6 general election, it was shown in a report filed Friday with the County Election Board.

Filed by John E. Johnston, secretary treasurer, the sworn statement said the club had overall receipts of $327. A balance of $37 will be retained for use in future campaigns, the report said.

The commissions will be sent to Clerk of Courts Carl L. Stacey, where the successful office - seekers may obtain them about Dec. 15. Without a commission, an office - holder cannot qualify. Fees have been paid so far by Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard, County Judges Luther Donbar and James L. MacDonald and Commissioner James Boyd.

Mr. Shnoo's Zoo

BY LUCRECE BEALE

CHAPTER SIX

"Where are we going?" asked Mr. Shnoo as he and Santa left Shnoo's Zoo behind and started down the road leading poor Honeybun on a rope.

"There's an elf in Santa Land named Dr. Kernoodle," said Santa. "He has a wonderful way with sick animals. I think he can help Honeybun."

"Oh, I hope so!" said Mr. Shnoo, rubbing his fingers through the brown bear's fur. "But, oh dear, I don't think she can go that far. Look! She is staggering already."

Honeybun swung her hurt head back and forth. She seemed ready to give up and lie down right there in the road.

Santa said, "Don't worry. We'll go by sea — the way I came. It's a very fast and restful trip."

—:—

MR. SHNOO got behind Honeybun and gently pushed her along. "A voyage should do her good," he said. "She was on a ship once before, when she was a cub."

"It's not exactly a ship," said Santa, tugging on Honeybun's rope. "It's a Blue-Scaled Scholar."

"Blue-Scaled Scholar! What is that?"

"You'll see soon enough."

And sure enough Mr. Shnoo did see, for they came, by and by, to the end of the road and there was the river. Waiting at the edge of the river was an enormous fish covered with sky - blue scales. He was big as a tug boat and his mouth when he opened it was as large as a small front porch.

"Come in," said Santa and he led Honeybun and the astonished Mr. Shnoo right into the gaping jaws of the Blue-Scaled Scholar.

The mouth snapped shut behind them and Mr. Shnoo didn't know what to do. It was all so dark and scary. He heard Santa calling to him and he could see a light far ahead.

He pushed Honeybun down a slippery, slidey passageway until he came into a lighted sitting room. The walls and floor were red and the furniture was quite modern with lots of comfortable sofas covered with puffy pillows.

THERE WERE books on shelves along the walls. Santa went straight to one of the shelves and picked up a book. It was called "Three Little Fish and How They Grew".

"He likes to be read aloud to," said Santa. "That is why he is called Scholar, I expect."

He sat down on a sofa, put on his spectacles and opened the book to Page 634. He began to read. The room started to move gently up and down as the Scholar moved out toward sea. Honeybun curled up on some pillows behind the sofa. She did not seem at all alarmed to find herself in such strange surroundings.

Waiting at the edge of the river was an enormous fish.

But Mr. Shnoo was very puzzled. He sank down on a sofa but he couldn't keep still. He kept jumping up and down and examining things.

Finally Santa put down his book and said, "Why are you so fidgety? What is the matter?"

"I have been thinking," said Mr. Shnoo. "I have never seen so remarkable a creature. I must have a Blue - Scaled Scholar for my zoo."

SANTA SHOOK his head. "They do not live in captivity. In fact, no mortal eye other than yours has ever seen one. If you tell anyone about it you will be told you were dreaming."

"And perhaps I am," said Mr. Shnoo, rubbing his eyes. But a moment later he knew he wasn't because the voyage came to an abrupt end. Mr. Shnoo stood up so suddenly he bumped his head quite hard on the ceiling.

The great mouth of the Scholar opened and Santa and Honeybun and Mr. Shnoo walked out. They were on the beach of a snow-covered land.

Mr. Shnoo knew right away it was Santa Land because there was a big red sleigh waiting there and dancing around the sleigh were hundreds of tiny elves come to welcome Santa home.

Santa greeted all his little workers and fussed with them a little for being away from their work. Then he told them about Honeybun. The elves were sorrowful to see so sad a bear.

Gently they lifted Honeybun onto the sleigh. When Honeybun was settled comfortably, Santa and Mr. Shnoo got in beside her. Then each elf took his place on the ropes and all together they gave a mighty tug until suddenly —Zip! Away they sped over the snow!

Work Starts For Mission

Construction has started on a new building to be used by the Port Homer Mission, and the congregation is hoping to hold the first service in the covered basement by Christmas.

The group of interdenominational faith is erecting the structure on the Hollow Rock - Sugar Grove Rd., not far from the community.

The old meeting site was in a building owned by Peerless Clay Corp. and it is to be abandoned because of the new path of a section of the Route 7 "super-road."

Sub - flooring has been laid and a concrete floor poured. The congregation plans to hold services this winter in the covered basement and may erect the framework for a new building later.

James Conrad of Wellsville is the minister, and the congregation numbers about 45. The work completed thus far has been donated by Port Homer area residents.

Events Set In Churches Of District

Maj. William Hathorn of the Salvation Army has announced that during the winter months the street meeting on Sunday will be held at 6:15 p. m. instead of 7, and the salvation meeting at 7 instead of 7:30 p.m. at the citadel.

Mrs. Jennie Eckert of East Liverpool will be the worker for services Sunday and Monday at 7:30 p. m. at the First Spiritualist Church.

Work Starts For Mission

Construction has started on a new building to be used by the Port Homer Mission, and the congregation is hoping to hold the first service in the covered basement by Christmas.

The group of interdenominational faith is erecting the structure on the Hollow Rock - Sugar Grove Rd., not far from the community.

The old meeting site was in a building owned by Peerless Clay Corp. and it is to be abandoned because of the new path of a section of the Route 7 "super-road."

Sub - flooring has been laid and a concrete floor poured. The congregation plans to hold services this winter in the covered basement and may erect the framework for a new building later.

James Conrad of Wellsville is the minister, and the congregation numbers about 45. The work completed thus far has been donated by Port Homer area residents.

Events Set In Churches Of District

Maj. William Hathorn of the Salvation Army has announced that during the winter months the street meeting on Sunday will be held at 6:15 p. m. instead of 7, and the salvation meeting at 7 instead of 7:30 p.m. at the citadel.

Mrs. Jennie Eckert of East Liverpool will be the worker for services Sunday and Monday at 7:30 p. m. at the First Spiritualist Church.

Lions At Midland Will Cheer Blind

Plans were made to aid the blind when the Midland Lions Club's Board of Directors met Thursday night at Deramo's Restaurant with Leslie B. Roach, president, in charge.

Bill Robertson was named chairman, and Paul Adams, vice chairman, for a party at the Pennsylvania Association of the Blind in Beaver Falls in late January.

A contribution of $25 was authorized for the Lighthouse of the Blind in New Brighton. A $10 bond was purchased from the Beaver County Tuberculosis Association.

The club's annual Christmas party will be held Thursday night at 7 at Deramo's, with each member to bring a gift for the Beaver County Children's Home. Wives will be guests.

Snow

to clear the former Ceramic Theater site, Bowersock said.

A snowplow was sent back to the new freeway today to clean the roadway more thoroughly and particularly along the curbs on the ramps to prevent motorists from straddling the curbs, Bowersock said.

In addition, more cinders were scattered on the ramps, the assistant superintendent said.

Three trucks and crews worked from 5 p. m. Thursday until 1 a. m. Friday spreading ashes and salt and two continued to work throughout the night as one crew was sent home.

Two snow plows were put to work yesterday morning as the snow covered the ashes and salt as fast as they were spread and high winds caused drifting, particularly on the freeway and the ramps at the West End interchange.

The bridge across W. 8th St. also caused the department considerable trouble as it remained slick despite at least three applications of salt.

There may be more snow tonight but the Tri - State district escaped with only a light fall Friday as highways crews entered into the cleanup phase. An additional 4 to 5 inches had been forecast.

The forecast for Northern Ohio is for scattered flurries this afternoon with the possibility of snow or general flurries later tonight and Sunday.

Meanwhile, crews of the Leetonia garage of the Ohio Highway Department tackled the last of the state routes that had been blocked by drifts from the severe storm, which produced nearly 10 inches of snow.

James Deluce, superintendent, said bulldozers were used this morning instead of truck plows to pierce drifts that remained on Route 172 from Moultrie Chapel to the Stark County line and on a section of Route 558 between Salem and Franklin Square.

Nearly a dozen roads were partially blocked yesterday but all had been cleared overnight except the 2-mile stretch of 172 and about 300 feet of 558 and Deluce said it was expected they would be opened by noon.

The crews totaling about 40 men with 15 trucks have been working around the clock since Wednesday, when the first snow fell in the tardy winter storm. The district had enjoyed Indian Summer for a week and a half.

Deluce said Routes 7 and 30, 62 west, 14 and A-14, 45 and 39 were open today and passable but slippery in spots. When the last of the drifts are removed, the trucks will start spreading salt and cinders to remove the glaze that followed the temperature drop to below freezing.

Rogers Hill on Route 7, which was clogged with traffic until mid-afternoon Friday, was reported very slippery again today.

The traffic was tied up on the hill until about 2 p. m. yesterday.

Truckers and other motorists who were stranded on the hill were served coffee, soup and sandwiches at the Rogers Community Hall.

Mayor Robert McCreary, who was unable to get to work himself, opened the community building early yesterday morning to serve hot coffee to those who were stranded.

Later, members of the auxiliary of the volunteer fire department aided in preparing and serving soup and sandwiches. They said some 30 to 40 stranded persons were given dinners.

The highway crews were encouraged as the high winds that had caused the drifting began to wane last night. They had reached a velocity of 30 to 35 mph. with heavier gusts. The forecast is for a low of 25 to 30 tonight. The downtown had 25 at 6 a. m.

The Columbiana County Highway Department at Lisbon said all county roads are open except for sections of the Mechanicstown and Chambersburg Rds. and crews expected to have them cleared before noon.

The Lisbon State Highway Patrol reported all state highways in good shape, although some were icy in spots. Some secondary roads remain clogged. Officers said only one minor accident has been reported since Friday morning. A tractor - trailer truck slid into a ditch near the Pennsylvania state line on Route 14. The only tieup today was on Route 7 near North Lima.

Crews from the Pughown Garage of the West Virginia State Road Commission still are on the job today clearing snow drifts from secondary roads in Hancock County.

Heavy equipment from the M. & E. Construction Co. of New Cumberland has been pressed into service to help remove the drifts.

Julian Wilson, supervisor, said crews have opened one-way traffic lanes on Washington School Rd., Locust Hill Rd., and a road from Pughtown to the Carson Oil Fields near Hardins Run.

The county's primary roads are open, but remain slick with ice and chains are advised, Wilson said.

Beaver County's main roads were reported in "very good shape" today while about 15 per cent of the secondary and rural roads remained closed.

The Beaver County division of the Pennsylvania State Highway Department at Rochester said its crews have been working for two days, only taking a rest of four hours in every 20. They still are working.

Abandoned cars have delayed opening of secondary roads. Cars have had to be moved to allow graders through.

The Wintersville State Highway Patrol said all the main highways in its area are open, although slippery in spots. Route 213 from Route 152 to Hammondsville remains blocked with drifts and Route 152 between Dillonvale and Smithfield also is clogged.

Wellsville Methodist Men Will Give Dinner

The Methodist Men will hold a coverdish supper Monday at 6 p. m. at the Wellsville Central Methodist Church.

Snow

to clear the former Ceramic Theater site, Bowersock said.

A snowplow was sent back to the new freeway today to clean the roadway more thoroughly and particularly along the curbs on the ramps to prevent motorists from straddling the curbs, Bowersock said.

In addition, more cinders were scattered on the ramps, the assistant superintendent said.

Three trucks and crews worked from 5 p. m. Thursday until 1 a. m. Friday spreading ashes and salt and two continued to work throughout the night as one crew was sent home.

Two snow plows were put to work yesterday morning as the snow covered the ashes and salt as fast as they were spread and high winds caused drifting, particularly on the freeway and the ramps at the West End interchange.

The bridge across W. 8th St. also caused the department considerable trouble as it remained slick despite at least three applications of salt.

There may be more snow tonight but the Tri - State district escaped with only a light fall Friday as highways crews entered into the cleanup phase. An additional 4 to 5 inches had been forecast.

The forecast for Northern Ohio is for scattered flurries this afternoon with the possibility of snow or general flurries later tonight and Sunday.

Meanwhile, crews of the Leetonia garage of the Ohio Highway Department tackled the last of the state routes that had been blocked by drifts from the severe storm, which produced nearly 10 inches of snow.

James Deluce, superintendent, said bulldozers were used this morning instead of truck plows to pierce drifts that remained on Route 172 from Moultrie Chapel to the Stark County line and on a section of Route 558 between Salem and Franklin Square.

Nearly a dozen roads were partially blocked yesterday but all had been cleared overnight except the 2-mile stretch of 172 and about 300 feet of 558 and Deluce said it was expected they would be opened by noon.

The crews totaling about 40 men with 15 trucks have been working around the clock since Wednesday, when the first snow fell in the tardy winter storm. The district had enjoyed Indian Summer for a week and a half.

Deluce said Routes 7 and 30, 62 west, 14 and A-14, 45 and 39 were open today and passable but slippery in spots. When the last of the drifts are removed, the trucks will start spreading salt and cinders to remove the glaze that followed the temperature drop to below freezing.

Rogers Hill on Route 7, which was clogged with traffic until mid-afternoon Friday, was reported very slippery again today.

The traffic was tied up on the hill until about 2 p. m. yesterday.

Truckers and other motorists who were stranded on the hill were served coffee, soup and sandwiches at the Rogers Community Hall.

Mayor Robert McCreary, who was unable to get to work himself, opened the community building early yesterday morning to serve hot coffee to those who were stranded.

Later, members of the auxiliary of the volunteer fire department aided in preparing and serving soup and sandwiches. They said some 30 to 40 stranded persons were given dinners.

The highway crews were encouraged as the high winds that had caused the drifting began to wane last night. They had reached a velocity of 30 to 35 mph. with heavier gusts. The forecast is for a low of 25 to 30 tonight. The downtown had 25 at 6 a. m.

The Columbiana County Highway Department at Lisbon said all county roads are open except for sections of the Mechanicstown and Chambersburg Rds. and crews expected to have them cleared before noon.

The Lisbon State Highway Patrol reported all state highways in good shape, although some were icy in spots. Some secondary roads remain clogged. Officers said only one minor accident has been reported since Friday morning. A tractor - trailer truck slid into a ditch near the Pennsylvania state line on Route 14. The only tieup today was on Route 7 near North Lima.

Crews from the Pughown Garage of the West Virginia State Road Commission still are on the job today clearing snow drifts from secondary roads in Hancock County.

Heavy equipment from the M. & E. Construction Co. of New Cumberland has been pressed into service to help remove the drifts.

Julian Wilson, supervisor, said crews have opened one-way traffic lanes on Washington School Rd., Locust Hill Rd., and a road from Pughtown to the Carson Oil Fields near Hardins Run.

The county's primary roads are open, but remain slick with ice and chains are advised, Wilson said.

Beaver County's main roads were reported in "very good shape" today while about 15 per cent of the secondary and rural roads remained closed.

The Beaver County division of the Pennsylvania State Highway Department at Rochester said its crews have been working for two days, only taking a rest of four hours in every 20. They still are working.

Abandoned cars have delayed opening of secondary roads. Cars have had to be moved to allow graders through.

The Wintersville State Highway Patrol said all the main highways in its area are open, although slippery in spots. Route 213 from Route 152 to Hammondsville remains blocked with drifts and Route 152 between Dillonvale and Smithfield also is clogged.

The 11 o'clock double-ring ceremony was conducted by Fr. William Hohman, pastor. Ferns banked the altar, which was decorated with bronze vases filled with white chrysanthemums, calla lilies and green ferns. Family pews were marked by white satin bows.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of bouquet taffeta and Venice lace with a scoop neckline, trimmed with lace and sequins, and long sleeves.

The design featured a Basque bodice and full bouffant skirt of re-embroidered applique and self roses, accented at the back with a butterfly bow that fell into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of bouffant illusion was attached to a queen's crown of lace with pine wheel rosettes and pearl drops. She carried a bouquet arrangement of white Fuji mums, heather and ferns.

Flower girls, Jennifer and Jane Simpson, sisters of the bride, wore white silk bouffant dresses with lace headbands and carried yellow daisy sprays.

Red Chinese To Pull Out, Nehru Says

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru said today the Chinese Communists apparently plan to withdraw their armed forces from northeast India but want to retain two civlian outposts in Indian territory.

Nehru made a short statement in Parliament.

Questions about his reaction to the Chinese plans were not permitted.

"According to present indications the Chinese armed forces will withdraw many miles beyond any McMahon line but they want to keep civil posts at Dhola and Longju," Nehru said.

The McMahon line forms the northeastern border that is claimed by India. China refers to the line, drawn in 1914 by a British official named McMahon, as "the illegal McMahon line" and says the border is 100 miles to the south in places. This amounts to a claim of some 36,000 square miles of Indian territory.

Nehru said he could understand the confusion that has arisen because of the dispute between India and China over where the McMahon line runs. The Chinese version "is four to five miles below our McMahon line," he said.

He apparently referred to the line at a place near the Bhutan border.

But regardless of this difference the Chinese have said they would withdraw their armed forces 12½ miles north of the line. Nehru said.

It was around Dhola, just east of the junction of India, Tibet and the Himalayan kingdom of Bhutan that the fighting began in September as a forerunner of the Chinese invasion in October.

The Chinese claim Dhola is on their side of the McMahon line. India says it is south of the highest watershed in the area which Nehru claimed was the principle on which McMahon set his line.

The Chinese have promised to withdraw their invasion armies from northeast India but claim the battle line in the northwest is their rightful border. Nehru has refused to accept this claim. India still has not confirmed Chinese reports that a withdrawal is under way from the front positions of the invasion armies but says there is some thinning out of rear Chinese troops.

Kirsten Flagstad, 67, Famed Soprano, Dies

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Kirsten Flagstad, the famed Norwegian Wagnerian soprano and former star of the Metropolitan Opera in New York, died here Friday night. She was 67.

Director John Caspersen of the Oslo government-run hospital, Rikshospitalet, said that she died there at 8 p.m.

"She had been here for several months," he said.

He refused to give the cause of death.

Born to a musical family July 12, 1895, near Oslo, Miss Flagstad started her singing career as a child with a part in Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado." She began her operatic career when she was 18.

A few years later, New York banker Otto Kahn heard her sing "Tosca" in Oslo's National Theater and passed the word to the Metropolitan that this was a singer worth watching.

She made her debut at the Metropolitan in 1935 as Sieglinde and followed it up four days later as Isolde. New York critics described her performance with such phrases as "transcendentally beautiful."

Until 1941, Miss Flagstad was the Met's leading Wagnerian soprano. She returned home to German-occupied Norway during the war to join her husband, Henry Johansen, a wealthy lumberman. He died in 1945 of a lung ailment before being brought to trial on charges of economic collaboration with the Nazis. He had pleaded innocent to the charges.

When Miss Flagstad returned to the United States in 1947 for a concert tour, pickets paraded outside halls in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, protesting her conduct during the war.

She issued a formal statement after the tour saying that she had no dealings with the Nazis and did not support them in any way. She said the only singing she did during the war was in Sweden and Switzerland, neutral countries.

She made other postwar appearances at the Metropolitan and at New York's Carnegie Hall. When she appeared in a farewell performance at the Met in 1952 in the title role of Gluck's opera Alcestis, she received 13 curtain calls.

The singer announced her final retirement from the opera in 1953 in London. She was quoted as saying she wanted to retire while still able to sing her best.

12 U.S. Families Back At Guantanamo Base

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba (AP)—A few of the forlorn and deserted houses of this U.S. naval base have come to life again, signaling the return of the first of the 2,800 dependents evacuated at the height of the Cuban crisis.

A military transport plane brought in 12 families Friday, the vanguard of about 1,400 dependents due to return before Christmas.

It was a happy mob scene when the big plane rolled finally to a stop, with the men hopping on one foot and then the other waiting for the doors to swing open.

In his anxiety to greet his wife, Lt. Cmdr. R. M. Averett of Bossier City, La., bowled over a photographer and galloped up the steps while his 7-year-old son, Mark, shouted, "Daddy, daddy."

All told, there were 15 children among the families reunited.

In the crowd of hundreds of cheerful, jostling men waiting to greet the women and children were the base commander, Rear Adm. Edward J. O'Donnell, and entertainer Perry Como and his entire troupe.

Some of those waiting were not married, but everybody agreed it was nice to have the girls around again and hear the children yelling. The arrival of the plane sparked one of the biggest single house-cleaning operations in the history of the base as the men swept, mopped, dusted, made beds and cut grass.

For the 12 lucky fathers lipstick smudges were a mark of distinction and none moved to wipe them off.

Civic Leaders Urge End To Paper Strike

CLEVELAND (AP)—An appeal for a quick end to the strike against Cleveland's two major daily newspapers was issued by a group of seven civic leaders Friday.

The group, headed by Mayor Ralph S. Locher, asked that the walkout, now in its second week, be ended so the papers can resume publication by Monday. The civic group also offered its services in any way possible to help settle the differences between the papers and the striking unions.

The morning plain Dealer and the afternoon Cleveland Press and News have not published since delivery drivers of Teamsters Local 473 started picketing the newspaper plants Nov. 29. The Cleveland Newspaper Guild joined the walkout the following day.

Representatives of the Guild and the publishers met briefly Friday, but a Guild spokesman said there was no progress. Another session was set for 4:30 p.m. Monday with Federal Mediator Gilbert J. Seldin.

Negotiations between management and the Teamsters are in recess, subject to call.

The civic group issued a statement, saying:

"The turbulent nature of our times in both national and international areas, the problems with which in our home communities we are constantly beset, all cumulatively underscore the imperative necessity of newspaper information, opinion, counsel and guidance."

It cited the disastrous northern Ohio snowstorm as an instance in which the newspapers are badly needed.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Junior and senior high school youngsters who excel in science studies will be brought to Columbus Feb. 22-23 to hear some of the nation's top scientists, President A. F. Forance of the Ohio Science Education Association says.

It will be the first statewide attempt by the association to salute outstanding science students, he said, although a similar program has been carried on in southwest Ohio for four years.

In making the announcement Friday during the annual fall conference of the association at Ohio State University, Forance said each science teacher probably will be asked to select one outstanding student. School systems will be asked to meet the cost of the teacher and student attending, he added.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Child Shouldn't Drowse At Homework

Many parents who can provide a comfortable room for each child feel they have a perfect place for him to study. He is away from interruption by other members of the family. These parents may strictly require the child over eight or ten years of age to go to his room at a regular hour each evening. They may assume that if he's there he surely will be working effectively at his lessons, but they may rarely check to see how he is using his time. In this room, there may be a radio and a TV set and, almost surely, it is a child's bedroom where there is a comfortable bed and an easy chair. Unless this child has learned good habits of studying, he may have the radio or TV tuned on much of the time.

Dr. Garry Meyers

WHILE IT IS possible to do some kinds of intellectual work against music from a radio, it's hardly likely it can be done well against a TV program. While either is going, the child may be lolling in an easy chair or lying on the bed, a combination likely to make him feel sleepy.

Perhaps the biggest hindrance to good study habits by the child, especially the teen-ager is going to sleep over a book. Any parent can, by occasional, casual checking, ascertain whether the child does so. If the practice occurs, even now and then, it can become hazardous to good study habits.

Suppose your boy or girl in junior or senior high often studies on his bed or in an easy chair. You can be pretty sure he or she will fall asleep over the book.

If you wish to correct this habit you will appeal to the child to study only at a desk while sitting in a straight chair. Failing to be persuasive, you might consider requiring this child to do his homework or a certain portion of it in another part of the house, probably in the kitchen, where there is no bed or couch and no easy chair. Sometimes you might do your own reading and studying with him.

SOME SCHOOL CHILDREN, living in a crowded home, may exercise better study habits than many other children living in a luxurious, spacious home.

Some parents may get desirable relaxation reading in the family's midst, while lying on the davenport or cot or lounging in an easy chair, but if this parent often falls asleep, he or she sets a bad example for the young student.

The practice of many a parent, especially the father, of going to sleep while among the family group is usually very unwholesome for all the family. When the parent feels tired and sleepy, he had better go off to bed.

My bulletins, "Parents and The Child's Homework" and "Home Helps for Poor Readers I and II", may be had by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

Midland Routs Ambridge, 57-29, For 2nd Straight

Sallis Racks Up 17 As Perkins Loops 14

Paced by veteran Bill Sallis and teammate Gary Perkins, Midland rolled to an early lead and went on to thrash Ambridge, 57-29, Friday night at Midland.

Coach Hank Kuzma's Leopards breezed to their second straight victory following an overtime decision over East Liverpool's Potters in their opening game.

After a 2-2 tie in the opening minutes, the Leopards took command and were never in serious trouble.

Sallis, 6-2 senior, and Perkins, 5-10, scored 20 of Midland's 24 points in the first half and each finished in double figures to lead the attack.

Ambridge made it close only once, shaving Midland's 24-8 lead to 25-16 with two and a half minutes gone in the third quarter. The Leopards went nine minutes without a field goal and Ambridge cut away the huge lead.

But Midland found the range when Ron Alston entered the lineup in the third quarter and with aid from Sallis, moved the Leopards to a lead of more comfortable proportions, 42-27.

Ambridge, now 1-2, managed only two points in the fourth quarter as Henry Slappy, Norm Vanlier and Ray Hoppa turned in strong defensive games for Midland. The visitors saw two starters leave on personals in the final period.

Sallis finished with 17 points and Perkins had 14 for Midland. Alston also hit in double figures with 10.

The Leopards hit 23 of 70 field goal attempts for 33, while the losers hit 13 of 54 for 26%. Sallis speared eight rebounds for Midland, while Alston, Slappy and Flasco had seven each.

Midland won the reserve game, 44-34, behind 12 points by Gary Shannon and 11 by Pete Cilli.

Coaches Offer System To Pick Grid Champ

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A system for choosing the state's scholastic football champions which would give teams extra credit for wins over tougher opponents has been proposed to the Ohio High School Football Coaches Association.

The system, devised by Leo Strang of Massillon, would break Ohio Class AA teams into four divisions according to school size with the four top teams in each meeting in playoffs.

Under the proposed system, a school would get points not only for games it wins but also for games won by teams it beats. This, Strang says, will measure better teams by the type of opposition they play. Teams that pile up wins over losing teams would not get as much credit as would teams that beat other successful teams, he added.

In the point system, if team "A" beats team "B" it gets two points. Then it also gets two points for every game won by team "B." If "B" wins all the rest of its 10 games, Strang explained, "A" could pile up as many as 20 points for its win over "B" alone. But if "B" loses the rest of its games, "A" gets only two points for the win.

Strang's divisional breakdown places schools with 1,000 or more students in the top bracket, followed by those with 750-1,000, 500-750 and 250-500. Schools with less than 250 students play Class A football and would not be involved in the proposed point system.

At the coaches' meeting here, southern Ohio coaches are selecting the South team for next summer's North-South all-star grid classic. The North also was to have been selected today but the snowstorm that paralyzed the area prevented most of the northern coaches from attending the meeting. They plan to meet next weekend in Cleveland.

AAU-NCAA Federation War Back In Full Swing

CHICAGO (AP) — The war between the national Amateur Athletic Union and the NCAA-sponsored U.S. Track and Field Federation was back in full swing today.

The federation Friday accused the AAU of "bad faith" and announced it was proceeding "full speed with its broad, progressive track and field program for all age groups."

Executive director Charles (Chick) Werner of the federation released a resolution stating the federation's governing council regretted that an expected agreement between the sparring factions could not be implemented because of the "AAU's repudiation at their Detroit convention of the Olympic house documents which were developed in good faith."

The reference was to the Nov. 12-13 meeting between the AAU and federation in New York called by Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy at which time a truce was declared.

However, federation officials claim the AAU endorsed a coalition plan at the Detroit convention last weekend but charged it was not the same as the one agreed upon in New York.

"They (the AAU) had displayed such bad faith there's no chance for the coalition to be revived," Werner said. "Sooner or later there has to be a point of no return and this seems to be it."

Werner said there was no suggestion made at the federations meeting yesterday to determine if Kennedy might wish to arrange another meeting between the two groups.

In New York, Col. Donald F. Hull, executive director of the AAU, released a statement that the NCAA is attempting "to screen the basic facts in the existing controversy."

"The International Olympic Committee rules positively require that each United States track and field participant in the Olympic Games must belong to the recognized governing body in this country, in this case the AAU," Hull said.

"The NCAA will not permit their student-athletes to belong to the AAU or to participate in AAU meets. This policy of the NCAA denies the track and field men qualification necessary for Olympic participation. I believe this policy to be legally and morally wrong," Hull said.

Cumberland Posts 2nd Straight As Newell Drops First Tilt, 64-38

Slow starting Newell didn't score a field goal in the first quarter and New Cumberland jumped off to a big lead and wound up with a 64-38 victory over the Vikings Friday night at New Cumberland.

The Blue Raiders chalked up their second straight victory while Newell dropped its first encounter after two wins.

Fred Farrell converted two fouls for Newell and that was all the scoring by the Vikings in the first eight minutes as New Cumberland moved out to a 13-2 lead. Coach John Kuzio's team was on top 28-15 at halftime and led 43-28 after three periods.

Ken Freshwater was the big gun for the winners with 17 points. He was the only Blue Raider to gain the double figures.

Newell had shown a balanced scoring attack in its two previous victories but Sam Simmons with 10 points was the only Viking in the double numbers.

In the reserve game, Newell defeated the New Cumberland jayvees, 49-26, as Denny Smith, Dave Gibas and Neil Rayle each had eight points. Blake netted the same number for New Cumberland.

Griffith Puts Title On Line

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Emile Griffith of New York risks his world welterweight title tonight and will enter the ring as a solid favorite to retain it against Jorge Fernandez of Argentina.

A crowd of around 6,000 is expected to attend the 15-round fight in the Las Vegas Convention Center, and television fans around the nation can see it via the ABC network, starting at 10 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

For Griffith, a 23-year-old native of the Virgin Islands, this will be the second defense in his second reign over the 147-pound division.

Fernandez, 27, can view his chance as the climax of more than two years of effort to get Griffith into the ring again.

In 1960, the then little known Griffith twice outpointed the Argentine, the first time on a controversial split decision, the second by unanimous verdict. Both were 10-round fights staged in New York.

The betting people in this community like Griffith by odds of 12-5. To some observers, the margin seems a little hazardous.

Fernandez is a veteran of 81 fights. He has lost but five and claims to have knocked out 51 opponents.

Griffith, who regained the championship with his fatal 12th round knockout over Benny (Kid) Paret in New York last March, retained the title on a 15-round decision in Las Vegas July 13 over Ralph Dupas of New Orleans.

Oilers, Bills Continue Title Chase In AFL

By The Associated Press

The American Football League's Eastern Conference takes over the spotlight this weekend, beginning with today's game in New York between the Titans and Buffalo Bills in which the Bills try and put together their first winning season.

Houston and Boston continue their chase for the division title Sunday, with the two-time champion Oilers at home to winless Oakland while Boston has a much tougher chore at hand in San Diego against the Chargers. Western Division king Dallas plays host to Denver in the other game.

Buffalo, with a 6-6-1 record, winds up its 1962 season. A victory would not only get the first winning season in its 3-year AFL history, but would also assure Buffalo of third place.

The game matches the league's busiest rushing offense, led by record-maker Cookie Gilchrist against the aerial antics of the Titans' Lee Grosscup and Johnny Green. Gilchrist set a league rushing mark last week, totaling 953 yards so far, and the Bills set a team mark with 2,196 yards.

Houston, with a 9-3 record, is heavily favored over the Raiders, winless in 12 games this season and 18 since last year. With San Diego on the rise and the Patriots battered by injuries, Houston could get its third straight title if Boston loses.

Cleveland Hoping To Climb In NFL Battle In New York

CLEVELAND (AP) — It has been said that statistics often lie. But they're telling the truth about the Cleveland Browns' mediocre football season.

Figures released by the National Football League show no Browns leading any individual departments. Nor does the team lead in any of the 54 offensive and defensive statistical classifications.

Still, they hope to climb in Sunday's game against the Giants in New York.

Jim Brown, with 90 points on 15 touchdowns, got none last Sunday and fell to third place in scoring. Don Chandler, Giants' placekicking and punting ace, moved into second place behind Jim Taylor of Green Bay.

Brown, the NFL's leading ground gainer five straight seasons, slipped to fourth place in rushing as Don Perkins ran by him with 92 yards in Dallas' 45-21 victory over Cleveland. Brown, held to 29 yards in eight carries, has a season total of 806 yards in 194 tries.

Frank Ryan, who replaced injured Jim Ninowski at quarterback, is in a respectable fourth place among the passers. With a 59.6 completion percentage, Ryan has thrown 10 touchdown passes. His 90 completions have gained 1,274 yards.

Ross Fichtner is tied for second in pass interceptions with seven, and Gary Collins is sixth in punting with a 43.9-yard average.

Skins, Colts Clash Today

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Washington Redskins, hoping to cap a Cinderella season with a second place finish in the National Football League's Eastern Conference, can't afford a stumble today when they meet the Baltimore Colts in Baltimore.

The game, to be televised nationally, will launch the NFL's next-to-the-last weekend, which the Green Bay Packers can use to nail down at least a tie for their third straight Western Conference title.

The Redskins, fourth now with a 5-5-2 record, must win both of their remaining games and hope that the second-place Pittsburgh Steelers and the third-place Cleveland Browns lose at least once.

The Steelers, with a 7-5 record, are in Philadelphia against the Eagles while Cleveland, now 6-5-1, plays in New York against the Eastern champion Giants.

Green Bay takes its 11-1 mark to San Francisco where a victory automatically gets at least a tie for the Western title. If the Detroit Lions, who are 10-2, lose to Minnesota, the Packers will clinch the title and set up the second straight Giants-Packers title encounter, this one in New York on Dec. 30.

In other Sunday NFL activity, Los Angeles is at Chicago and Dallas plays at St. Louis.

J. G. Spink, Baseball's Unofficial Voice, Dies

ST. LOUIS (AP)—J. G. Taylor Spink, the "unofficial conscience of baseball," is dead, but the legacy of his progressive policies, cleanliness and honesty for the growth of baseball remain.

Spink, publisher of the Sporting News since 1914, died in his home here Friday after being ill for more than a year.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon.

The gruff-spoken Spink, known for his 16-hour work days, was one of the newspaper industry's prominent figures through the Sporting News, referred to as the Bible of Baseball. He also published the Sporting Goods Dealer, a trade magazine, and an assortment of record books.

But it was through his "bible" that Spink became known as the voice of baseball through his crusades for its betterment. The internationally-known sports weekly became a spokesman to which players, officials and fans turned for information and leadership.

Spink used the publication to battle against the Federal League player raids on the American League in 1914. He used it to help uncover the Black Sox scandal of 1919. He used it to fight for the minor leagues as well as the majors. And he strongly supported baseball in foreign countries and in the sandlots of America.

Old Pro Ramsey Sparks Celtics' Win Over Lakers

By The Associated Press

Old pro Frank Ramsey can do 'most anything demanded of him on a basketball court. He can run, score, play the corners or backcourt, rebound, handle the ball—just about anything you need.

One of the things he does best is come off the bench.

He did it twice Friday night, each time triggering an important scoring burst for the Boston Celtics that helped the defending National Basketball Association champions defeat Los Angeles 126-112.

Syracuse romped over Chicago 149-129 in Rochester and Detroit beat San Francisco 123-116 in the other games. The loss was the ninth straight for San Francisco.

Ramsey, long known as "the best sixth man in basketball," personally nailed down the Celtic triumph with his fourth period appearance. Boston had a shaky 107-100 lead when the former Kentucky ace re-entered the game. He struck for six quick points and Boston had a secure 113-102 lead. The Celts weren't in trouble again.

Midland Routs Ambridge, 57-29, For 2nd Straight

Sallis Racks Up 17 As Perkins Loops 14

Paced by veteran Bill Sallis and teammate Gary Perkins, Midland rolled to an early lead and went on to thrash Ambridge, 57-29, Friday night at Midland.

Coach Hank Kuzma's Leopards breezed to their second straight victory following an overtime decision over East Liverpool's Potters in their opening game.

After a 2-2 tie in the opening minutes, the Leopards took command and were never in serious trouble.

Sallis, 6-2 senior, and Perkins, 5-10, scored 20 of Midland's 24 points in the first half and each finished in double figures to lead the attack.

Ambridge made it close only once, shaving Midland's 24-8 lead to 25-16 with two and a half minutes gone in the third quarter. The Leopards went nine minutes without a field goal and Ambridge cut away the huge lead.

But Midland found the range when Ron Alston entered the lineup in the third quarter and with aid from Sallis, moved the Leopards to a lead of more comfortable proportions, 42-27.

Ambridge, now 1-2, managed only two points in the fourth quarter as Henry Slappy, Norm Vanlier and Ray Hoppa turned in strong defensive games for Midland. The visitors saw two starters leave on personals in the final period.

Sallis finished with 17 points and Perkins had 14 for Midland. Alston also hit in double figures with 10.

The Leopards hit 23 of 70 field goal attempts for 33, while the losers hit 13 of 54 for 26%. Sallis speared eight rebounds for Midland, while Alston, Slappy and Flasco had seven each.

Midland won the reserve game, 44-34, behind 12 points by Gary Shannon and 11 by Pete Cilli.

Coaches Offer System To Pick Grid Champ

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A system for choosing the state's scholastic football champions which would give teams extra credit for wins over tougher opponents has been proposed to the Ohio High School Football Coaches Association.

The system, devised by Leo Strang of Massillon, would break Ohio Class AA teams into four divisions according to school size with the four top teams in each meeting in playoffs.

Under the proposed system, a school would get points not only for games it wins but also for games won by teams it beats. This, Strang says, will measure better teams by the type of opposition they play. Teams that pile up wins over losing teams would not get as much credit as would teams that beat other successful teams, he added.

In the point system, if team "A" beats team "B" it gets two points. Then it also gets two points for every game won by team "B." If "B" wins all the rest of its 10 games, Strang explained, "A" could pile up as many as 20 points for its win over "B" alone. But if "B" loses the rest of its games, "A" gets only two points for the win.

Strang's divisional breakdown places schools with 1,000 or more students in the top bracket, followed by those with 750-1,000, 500-750 and 250-500. Schools with less than 250 students play Class A football and would not be involved in the proposed point system.

At the coaches' meeting here, southern Ohio coaches are selecting the South team for next summer's North-South all-star grid classic. The North also was to have been selected today but the snowstorm that paralyzed the area prevented most of the northern coaches from attending the meeting. They plan to meet next weekend in Cleveland.

AAU-NCAA Federation War Back In Full Swing

CHICAGO (AP) — The war between the national Amateur Athletic Union and the NCAA-sponsored U.S. Track and Field Federation was back in full swing today.

The federation Friday accused the AAU of "bad faith" and announced it was proceeding "full speed with its broad, progressive track and field program for all age groups."

Executive director Charles (Chick) Werner of the federation released a resolution stating the federation's governing council regretted that an expected agreement between the sparring factions could not be implemented because of the "AAU's repudiation at their Detroit convention of the Olympic house documents which were developed in good faith."

The reference was to the Nov. 12-13 meeting between the AAU and federation in New York called by Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy at which time a truce was declared.

However, federation officials claim the AAU endorsed a coalition plan at the Detroit convention last weekend but charged it was not the same as the one agreed upon in New York.

"They (the AAU) had displayed such bad faith there's no chance for the coalition to be revived," Werner said. "Sooner or later there has to be a point of no return and this seems to be it."

Werner said there was no suggestion made at the federations meeting yesterday to determine if Kennedy might wish to arrange another meeting between the two groups.

In New York, Col. Donald F. Hull, executive director of the AAU, released a statement that the NCAA is attempting "to screen the basic facts in the existing controversy."

"The International Olympic Committee rules positively require that each United States track and field participant in the Olympic Games must belong to the recognized governing body in this country, in this case the AAU," Hull said.

"The NCAA will not permit their student-athletes to belong to the AAU or to participate in AAU meets. This policy of the NCAA denies the track and field men qualification necessary for Olympic participation. I believe this policy to be legally and morally wrong," Hull said.

Cumberland Posts 2nd Straight As Newell Drops First Tilt, 64-38

Slow starting Newell didn't score a field goal in the first quarter and New Cumberland jumped off to a big lead and wound up with a 64-38 victory over the Vikings Friday night at New Cumberland.

The Blue Raiders chalked up their second straight victory while Newell dropped its first encounter after two wins.

Fred Farrell converted two fouls for Newell and that was all the scoring by the Vikings in the first eight minutes as New Cumberland moved out to a 13-2 lead. Coach John Kuzio's team was on top 28-15 at halftime and led 43-28 after three periods.

Ken Freshwater was the big gun for the winners with 17 points. He was the only Blue Raider to gain the double figures.

Newell had shown a balanced scoring attack in its two previous victories but Sam Simmons with 10 points was the only Viking in the double numbers.

In the reserve game, Newell defeated the New Cumberland jayvees, 49-26, as Denny Smith, Dave Gibas and Neil Rayle each had eight points. Blake netted the same number for New Cumberland.

Griffith Puts Title On Line

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Emile Griffith of New York risks his world welterweight title tonight and will enter the ring as a solid favorite to retain it against Jorge Fernandez of Argentina.

A crowd of around 6,000 is expected to attend the 15-round fight in the Las Vegas Convention Center, and television fans around the nation can see it via the ABC network, starting at 10 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

For Griffith, a 23-year-old native of the Virgin Islands, this will be the second defense in his second reign over the 147-pound division.

Fernandez, 27, can view his chance as the climax of more than two years of effort to get Griffith into the ring again.

In 1960, the then little known Griffith twice outpointed the Argentine, the first time on a controversial split decision, the second by unanimous verdict. Both were 10-round fights staged in New York.

The betting people in this community like Griffith by odds of 12-5. To some observers, the margin seems a little hazardous.

Fernandez is a veteran of 81 fights. He has lost but five and claims to have knocked out 51 opponents.

Griffith, who regained the championship with his fatal 12th round knockout over Benny (Kid) Paret in New York last March, retained the title on a 15-round decision in Las Vegas July 13 over Ralph Dupas of New Orleans.

Oilers, Bills Continue Title Chase In AFL

By The Associated Press

The American Football League's Eastern Conference takes over the spotlight this weekend, beginning with today's game in New York between the Titans and Buffalo Bills in which the Bills try and put together their first winning season.

Houston and Boston continue their chase for the division title Sunday, with the two-time champion Oilers at home to winless Oakland while Boston has a much tougher chore at hand in San Diego against the Chargers. Western Division king Dallas plays host to Denver in the other game.

Buffalo, with a 6-6-1 record, winds up its 1962 season. A victory would not only get the first winning season in its 3-year AFL history, but would also assure Buffalo of third place.

The game matches the league's busiest rushing offense, led by record-maker Cookie Gilchrist against the aerial antics of the Titans' Lee Grosscup and Johnny Green. Gilchrist set a league rushing mark last week, totaling 953 yards so far, and the Bills set a team mark with 2,196 yards.

Houston, with a 9-3 record, is heavily favored over the Raiders, winless in 12 games this season and 18 since last year. With San Diego on the rise and the Patriots battered by injuries, Houston could get its third straight title if Boston loses.

Cleveland Hoping To Climb In NFL Battle In New York

CLEVELAND (AP) — It has been said that statistics often lie. But they're telling the truth about the Cleveland Browns' mediocre football season.

Figures released by the National Football League show no Browns leading any individual departments. Nor does the team lead in any of the 54 offensive and defensive statistical classifications.

Still, they hope to climb in Sunday's game against the Giants in New York.

Jim Brown, with 90 points on 15 touchdowns, got none last Sunday and fell to third place in scoring. Don Chandler, Giants' placekicking and punting ace, moved into second place behind Jim Taylor of Green Bay.

Brown, the NFL's leading ground gainer five straight seasons, slipped to fourth place in rushing as Don Perkins ran by him with 92 yards in Dallas' 45-21 victory over Cleveland. Brown, held to 29 yards in eight carries, has a season total of 806 yards in 194 tries.

Frank Ryan, who replaced injured Jim Ninowski at quarterback, is in a respectable fourth place among the passers. With a 59.6 completion percentage, Ryan has thrown 10 touchdown passes. His 90 completions have gained 1,274 yards.

Ross Fichtner is tied for second in pass interceptions with seven, and Gary Collins is sixth in punting with a 43.9-yard average.

Skins, Colts Clash Today

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Washington Redskins, hoping to cap a Cinderella season with a second place finish in the National Football League's Eastern Conference, can't afford a stumble today when they meet the Baltimore Colts in Baltimore.

The game, to be televised nationally, will launch the NFL's next-to-the-last weekend, which the Green Bay Packers can use to nail down at least a tie for their third straight Western Conference title.

The Redskins, fourth now with a 5-5-2 record, must win both of their remaining games and hope that the second-place Pittsburgh Steelers and the third-place Cleveland Browns lose at least once.

The Steelers, with a 7-5 record, are in Philadelphia against the Eagles while Cleveland, now 6-5-1, plays in New York against the Eastern champion Giants.

Green Bay takes its 11-1 mark to San Francisco where a victory automatically gets at least a tie for the Western title. If the Detroit Lions, who are 10-2, lose to Minnesota, the Packers will clinch the title and set up the second straight Giants-Packers title encounter, this one in New York on Dec. 30.

In other Sunday NFL activity, Los Angeles is at Chicago and Dallas plays at St. Louis.

J. G. Spink, Baseball's Unofficial Voice, Dies

ST. LOUIS (AP)—J. G. Taylor Spink, the "unofficial conscience of baseball," is dead, but the legacy of his progressive policies, cleanliness and honesty for the growth of baseball remain.

Spink, publisher of the Sporting News since 1914, died in his home here Friday after being ill for more than a year.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon.

The gruff-spoken Spink, known for his 16-hour work days, was one of the newspaper industry's prominent figures through the Sporting News, referred to as the Bible of Baseball. He also published the Sporting Goods Dealer, a trade magazine, and an assortment of record books.

But it was through his "bible" that Spink became known as the voice of baseball through his crusades for its betterment. The internationally-known sports weekly became a spokesman to which players, officials and fans turned for information and leadership.

Spink used the publication to battle against the Federal League player raids on the American League in 1914. He used it to help uncover the Black Sox scandal of 1919. He used it to fight for the minor leagues as well as the majors. And he strongly supported baseball in foreign countries and in the sandlots of America.

Old Pro Ramsey Sparks Celtics' Win Over Lakers

By The Associated Press

Old pro Frank Ramsey can do 'most anything demanded of him on a basketball court. He can run, score, play the corners or backcourt, rebound, handle the ball—just about anything you need.

One of the things he does best is come off the bench.

He did it twice Friday night, each time triggering an important scoring burst for the Boston Celtics that helped the defending National Basketball Association champions defeat Los Angeles 126-112.

Syracuse romped over Chicago 149-129 in Rochester and Detroit beat San Francisco 123-116 in the other games. The loss was the ninth straight for San Francisco.

Ramsey, long known as "the best sixth man in basketball," personally nailed down the Celtic triumph with his fourth period appearance. Boston had a shaky 107-100 lead when the former Kentucky ace re-entered the game. He struck for six quick points and Boston had a secure 113-102 lead. The Celts weren't in trouble again.

Regular Football Season Ends, Bowl Business Begins

UCLA Faces Syracuse In College Final

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

College football's regular season ends and the bowl business begins today with at least two titles carrying national labels up for grabs among the smaller schools.

The visit of Syracuse to UCLA is the only regular season game—and the last one—on schedule.

It will serve as the nightcap to a national television (CBS-TV) doubleheader. The opener features the National Football League game matching Baltimore and Washington, with the Redskins struggling to stay in the running for the No. 2 spot in the East and the Playoff Bowl Jan. 6 in Miami.

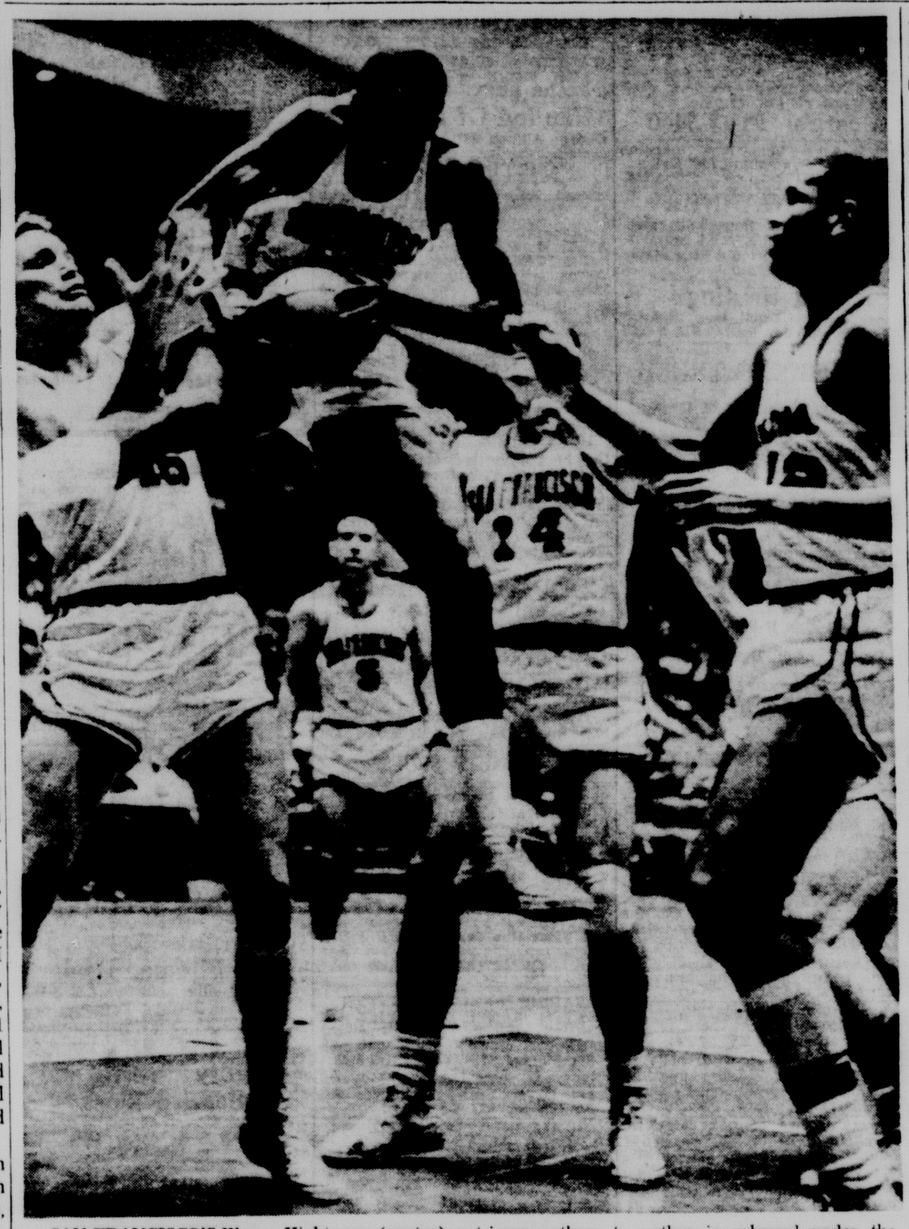

Two of the nation's 15 unbeaten, untied teams will battle for the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championship in the Camellia Bowl at Sacramento, Calif., while the mythical national title for Negro schools will be on the line in Miami's Orange Blossom Classic.

Central Oklahoma State, 10-0, and Lenoir Rhyne, 11-0, will play for the NAIA national title while defending champion Florida A&M plays Jackson, Miss., State, 9-1, for the Negro title. Florida A&M, 9-0 this season and winner of 21 straight, won the national small college title in the final Associated Press poll of the season. Central Oklahoma State was No. 3 and Lenoir Rhyne No. 5.

There is little at stake in the UCLA-Syracuse contest. Each takes a 4-5 record into the game, with Syracuse a slight favorite.

Lenoir Rhyne of Hickory, N.C. will be seeking its second NAIA title in three years in the match with Central Oklahoma State. Each team features a strong running game, Lenoir Rhyne out of a single wing and the Edmond, Okla. team from a split-T.

Florida A&M and Jackson State are meeting for the second straight year in the Orange Blossom Classic, won by Florida A&M 14-8 last season.

MONTEBELLO, Calif. (AP)—Dick Martinez, whose professional golfing career spans all of three weeks, was still four strokes ahead today going into the second round of the $8,000 Montebello Open Tournament.

The remainder of the field played its opening round Friday. Amateur Larry Bouchey of Torrance, Calif., and professionals Bull Nunnally of Whittier, Calif., and Jim Donahue of Pasadena, Calif., shot 67s. This put them in a second place tie with Leon Pounders of Omaha, Nev., who played his first round Thursday.

By The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Rens and the Kansas City Steers have moved to within striking distance of first place in the American Basketball League.

Pittsburgh and Kansas City are in a virtual tie for second place but the Rens lead by percentage points. Long Beach's won-lost record is 11-3, Pittsburgh is 7-3 and Kansas City 10-6.

Baker Cited As Top Pacific Coast Player

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Another honor came to Terry Baker, Oregon State's great quarterback, today as he proved a landslide winner of the W. J. Voit Memorial Trophy as the outstanding collegiate football player on the Pacific Coast.

He already has won the Heisman Trophy as the nation's best player and has been named to the All-America team.

WARREN, Ohio (AP)—A cave-in in a 7-foot-deep ditch at nearby Hubbard took the lives of two men Friday. Killed were Charles Markle, 50, of Kittanning, Pa., and Wright Bradley, 55, of Vienna, Ohio.

Employes of the Automatic Sprinkler Corp., which is installing a line at the Sherwin-Williams Co. plant, Markle and Bradley were dead when fellow workers dug them out.

Bill Collins Takes Lead In $20,000 Open

By THEODORE A. EDIGER

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP)—There's nothing like par-busting therapy for an ailing back.

That was the way Bill Collins, who hadn't played much golf recently because of vertebra trouble, felt today as he led 66 surviving pros and 10 amateurs into the third round of the $20,000 Coral Gables Open.

"My back feels fine," beamed the 205-pound Miami pro after carding a 31-35—66 for a 9-under-par 133 at the halfway mark.

Collins was three strokes ahead of his nearest rivals, young Al Kelley of Coral Gables, making his pro debut, and Gardner Dickinson of Tequesta, Fla., whose 66 shared low honors.

Collins, recently returned to the circuit after being sidelined five weeks because of his back, said he would go to his Baltimore home to rest after this tournament, then compete in the Los Angeles Open.

Failing to make the grade at the 143 cutoff mark were such well known campaigners as Doug Ford, who had 146, and Julius Boros, Bobby Nichols and Pete Cooper, 147s.

More fortunate were Dave Ragan, winner of the Texas Open at Beaumont, the Florida PGA championship, and the West Palm Beach Open, and Rex Baxter of Amarillo, Tex., who were two strokes off the lead with 137s.

Bill Collins 67-66—133
Al Kelley 68-71—136
Gardner Dickinson 70-66—136
Rex Baxter 67-70—137
Dave Ragan 66-71—137
Ed Furgol 68-70—138
Jim Ferree 69-69—138
Bob Shave Jr. 69-69—138
Eight tied at 139.

100 Evacuated When Fire Hits Fostoria Hotel

FOSTORIA, Ohio (AP)—A fire broke out at the three-story new Ohio Hotel in downtown Fostoria on East Tiffin Street early today and 100 persons were evacuated. About 25 - 30 of the guests were travelers who had been stranded because of the heavy snowstorm.

"It was quite a sight seeing these people coming out in their nightclothes," said Fire Capt. Harold Walters. "It was pretty cold, too, about 28 degrees."

There was only one injury, Don Pelpier, a man in his early 40s, who suffered burns of his back and was taken to Fostoria Municipal Hospital. He was reported in good condition, although he was in shock.

The fire began at 4:35 a.m. in Pelpier's apartment suite on the first floor and destroyed two other apartments. Most of the damage was caused by heavy smoke throughout the hotel.

No estimate was made of the loss.

All off-duty firemen were summoned and battled the fire for 90 minutes. It was under control in less than an hour.

This city of 16,000 in northwest Ohio has only one main road open—Ohio 12 eastbound to Fremont. All other roads remain clogged with snow from the two - day storm.

Girl Dies In Blaze That Destroys Home

CHARDON, Ohio (AP)—A 4-year-old girl died Friday night in a fire that destroyed her three-story home in Bainbridge.

The victim was Katie DeHammel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. DeHammel. The child was asleep in a second-floor bedroom when the fire followed an explosion in the basement.

Mrs. DeHammel and two older children were on the first floor watching television when the explosion occurred. They escaped but the mother's efforts to reach Katie were thwarted by flames. The father was in Chicago.

Cause of the blast was not determined. Two firemen were treated for smoke inhalation.

Seattle Topples Beavers; Colorado, Marquette Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that Seattle has cut seventh-ranked Oregon State down to size, the losing Beavers may have to cut 7-foot Mel Counts in two.

Watching coach Amory Slats Gill send his Oregon State basketball team through a workout recently, a rival coach noticed the skyscraping Counts move with the speed and agility of a smaller man and suggested, "Cut Counts in half and Gill wouldn't have a bad pair of guards."

It was that weakness—partially caused by the absence of football star Terry Baker—which enabled Seattle to upset the Beavers 60-58 Friday night on a last-minute field goal by sophomore Charlie Williams.

Baker, an All-America and Heisman Trophy winner, is a regular for the basketball Beavers, but currently is preparing to quarterback Oregon State's football forces against Villanova in the Liberty Bowl at Philadelphia a week from today.

Counts collected 31 points—13 in a row at the start of the second half—but it wasn't enough.

Meanwhile, top ten hopefuls Colorado and Marquette cruised to easy triumphs. Butler, Tulsa and Creighton furnished the night's other surprises and Nick Werkman of Seton Hall and NYU's Barry Kramer supplied some point-scoring pyrotechnics.

Colorado's defending Big Eight Conference champions held touted Walt Hazzard to four points, got 19 from Ken Charlton and blasted UCLA 82-60. The Warriors subdued Texas Western 77-65 as Dave Erickson and his relief, John Stone, both scored 16 points.

Butler beat Michigan 70-69 when Wolverine Bill Buntin was charged with goaltending on Jerry Williams' shot with 4 seconds left. James King scored six of the last eight points on foul shots as Tulsa knocked off Purdue 73-65 and Creighton collected 14 consecutive points during one stretch of a 52-34 walloping of St. John's, N.Y.

Werkman, who wound up third in the major college scoring derby with a 33.0-average last season and is favored to take the crown with Utah's Billy McGill and Holy Cross' Jack Foley graduated, scored 42 points in the Hall's 75-57 pasting of Loyola of Baltimore.

Kramer led NYU's eight-man squad, which this week lost leading scorer Happy Hairston and previously had been deprived of Clem Gaillard, Tom Boose and Don Blaha, to a 85-65 opening decision over Georgetown with 42 points. It was the Violets' 600th victory.

In other major games, Southern California defeated Meiji Univ. in Hawaii 130-71, Oklahoma City topped Brigham Young 79-71, Centenary upended TCU 64-61, Utah State beat Montana State 79-72, and Boston University edged Rutgers 90-88 in overtime.

Bobo Newsom, One-Time Big League Hurler, Dies

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Bobo Newsom, the roly-poly nomad who changed uniforms 26 itmes during a flamboyant 25-year baseball career in which he ultimately wound up a loser, died Friday at 55, less than 10 years after he pitched in his last major league game.

The affable South Carolinian, born Louis Norman Newsom on Aug. 11, 1907, got a late start in organized baseball with Raleigh of the Piedmont League some 21 years later. But he made up for that. Not until the end of the 1953 season did he step off the mound for the last time.

In between, Newsom's career was marked by a well-balanced ledger equally filled with achievements and failures, an elongated card in the record book listing 18 teams in the minors and majors and some newspaper clippings dealing with his off-the-field antics.

Big was the word for Newsom. He stood 6-foot-3 and weighed in the neighborhood of 220 to 240 pounds. And he talked big, acted big—and pitched almost that well. He pitched for almost every team in the majors and addressed everybody from the bat boy to the owner as Bobo. Naturally, they started calling him the same.

Newsom took his big frame out to the pitchers' mound for nine different major league teams—he shares the American League record by having played on six clubs—and made the rounds with four teams 11 times.

He was with the Washington Senators four different times, played for the St. Louis Browns on three occasions and shared hotel space with the Brooklyn Dodgers and Philadelphia Athletics twice each. He also spent some time with New York's Giants and Yankees as well as with the Detroit Tigers, Boston Red Sox and Chicago Cubs.

Newsom finished at Philadelphia in 1953.

He won 20 games three times, with St. Louis in 1938, St. Louis and Detroit in 1939, and Detroit in 1940. He matched that by losing 20 in 1934 with St. Louis, in 1941 with Detroit and in 1945 with Philadelphia.

His best year was with the Tigers in 1940 when he helped pitch Detroit to the American League pennant by posting a 21-5 record.

Newsome's death was attributed to cirrhosis. He died while a patient at an Orlando Hospital.

Survivors include the widow, Ruth, a daughter and a son.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

UCLA Faces Syracuse In College Final

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

College football's regular season ends and the bowl business begins today with at least two titles carrying national labels up for grabs among the smaller schools.

The visit of Syracuse to UCLA is the only regular season game—and the last one—on schedule.

It will serve as the nightcap to a national television (CBS-TV) doubleheader. The opener features the National Football League game matching Baltimore and Washington, with the Redskins struggling to stay in the running for the No. 2 spot in the East and the Playoff Bowl Jan. 6 in Miami.

Two of the nation's 15 unbeaten, untied teams will battle for the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championship in the Camellia Bowl at Sacramento, Calif., while the mythical national title for Negro schools will be on the line in Miami's Orange Blossom Classic.

Central Oklahoma State, 10-0, and Lenoir Rhyne, 11-0, will play for the NAIA national title while defending champion Florida A&M plays Jackson, Miss., State, 9-1, for the Negro title. Florida A&M, 9-0 this season and winner of 21 straight, won the national small college title in the final Associated Press poll of the season. Central Oklahoma State was No. 3 and Lenoir Rhyne No. 5.

There is little at stake in the UCLA-Syracuse contest. Each takes a 4-5 record into the game, with Syracuse a slight favorite.

Lenoir Rhyne of Hickory, N.C. will be seeking its second NAIA title in three years in the match with Central Oklahoma State. Each team features a strong running game, Lenoir Rhyne out of a single wing and the Edmond, Okla. team from a split-T.

Florida A&M and Jackson State are meeting for the second straight year in the Orange Blossom Classic, won by Florida A&M 14-8 last season.

2 Of Big Ten Quintets Jolted

By The Associated Press

Michigan and Purdue took a double jolting Friday night but six other Big Ten basketball teams will try to make amends tonight.

Michigan dropped a 70-69 decision to Butler and Purdue suffered a 73-65 loss at Tulsa.

The loss was the first this season for the Wolverines while Purdue is now 1-2 against intersectional competition.

Michigan led throughout the game but lost out in the final seconds. Purdue trailed Tulsa throughout.

Martinez 4 Strokes Ahead At Montebello

MONTEBELLO, Calif. (AP)—Dick Martinez, whose professional golfing career spans all of three weeks, was still four strokes ahead today going into the second round of the $8,000 Montebello Open Tournament.

The 242-player field was divided into two groups for the first round of the 54-hole event. Martinez, playing Thursday with the first group, shot a 9-under-par 63, missing the competitive course record by only two strokes. He scored eight birdies and an eagle.

The remainder of the field played its opening round Friday. Amateur Larry Bouchey of Torrance, Calif., and professionals Bull Nunnally of Whittier, Calif., and Jim Donahue of Pasadena, Calif., shot 67s. This put them in a second place tie with Leon Pounders of Omaha, Nev., who played his first round Thursday.

Rens And Steers Win ABL Games

By The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Rens and the Kansas City Steers have moved to within striking distance of first place in the American Basketball League.

Pittsburgh and Kansas City are in a virtual tie for second place but the Rens lead by percentage points. Long Beach's won-lost record is 11-3, Pittsburgh is 7-3 and Kansas City 10-6.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Another honor came to Terry Baker, Oregon State's great quarterback, today as he proved a landslide winner of the W. J. Voit Memorial Trophy as the outstanding collegiate football player on the Pacific Coast.

He already has won the Heisman Trophy as the nation's best player and has been named to the All-America team.

Bill Collins Takes Lead In $20,000 Open

By THEODORE A. EDIGER

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP)—There's nothing like par-busting therapy for an ailing back.

That was the way Bill Collins, who hadn't played much golf recently because of vertebra trouble, felt today as he led 66 surviving pros and 10 amateurs into the third round of the $20,000 Coral Gables Open.

"My back feels fine," beamed the 205-pound Miami pro after carding a 31-35—66 for a 9-under-par 133 at the halfway mark.

Collins was three strokes ahead of his nearest rivals, young Al Kelley of Coral Gables, making his pro debut, and Gardner Dickinson of Tequesta, Fla., whose 66 shared low honors.

Collins, recently returned to the circuit after being sidelined five weeks because of his back, said he would go to his Baltimore home to rest after this tournament, then compete in the Los Angeles Open.

Failing to make the grade at the 143 cutoff mark were such well known campaigners as Doug Ford, who had 146, and Julius Boros, Bobby Nichols and Pete Cooper, 147s.

More fortunate were Dave Ragan, winner of the Texas Open at Beaumont, the Florida PGA championship, and the West Palm Beach Open, and Rex Baxter of Amarillo, Tex., who were two strokes off the lead with 137s.

Bill Collins 67-66—133
Al Kelley 68-71—136
Gardner Dickinson 70-66—136
Rex Baxter 67-70—137
Dave Ragan 66-71—137
Ed Furgol 68-70—138
Jim Ferree 69-69—138
Bob Shave Jr. 69-69—138
Eight tied at 139.

100 Evacuated When Fire Hits Fostoria Hotel

FOSTORIA, Ohio (AP)—A fire broke out at the three-story new Ohio Hotel in downtown Fostoria on East Tiffin Street early today and 100 persons were evacuated. About 25 - 30 of the guests were travelers who had been stranded because of the heavy snowstorm.

"It was quite a sight seeing these people coming out in their nightclothes," said Fire Capt. Harold Walters. "It was pretty cold, too, about 28 degrees."

There was only one injury, Don Pelpier, a man in his early 40s, who suffered burns of his back and was taken to Fostoria Municipal Hospital. He was reported in good condition, although he was in shock.

The fire began at 4:35 a.m. in Pelpier's apartment suite on the first floor and destroyed two other apartments. Most of the damage was caused by heavy smoke throughout the hotel.

No estimate was made of the loss.

All off-duty firemen were summoned and battled the fire for 90 minutes. It was under control in less than an hour.

This city of 16,000 in northwest Ohio has only one main road open—Ohio 12 eastbound to Fremont. All other roads remain clogged with snow from the two - day storm.

Girl Dies In Blaze That Destroys Home

CHARDON, Ohio (AP)—A 4-year-old girl died Friday night in a fire that destroyed her three-story home in Bainbridge.

The victim was Katie DeHammel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. DeHammel. The child was asleep in a second-floor bedroom when the fire followed an explosion in the basement.

Mrs. DeHammel and two older children were on the first floor watching television when the explosion occurred. They escaped but the mother's efforts to reach Katie were thwarted by flames. The father was in Chicago.

Cause of the blast was not determined. Two firemen were treated for smoke inhalation.

Seattle Topples Beavers; Colorado, Marquette Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that Seattle has cut seventh-ranked Oregon State down to size, the losing Beavers may have to cut 7-foot Mel Counts in two.

Watching coach Amory Slats Gill send his Oregon State basketball team through a workout recently, a rival coach noticed the skyscraping Counts move with the speed and agility of a smaller man and suggested, "Cut Counts in half and Gill wouldn't have a bad pair of guards."

It was that weakness—partially caused by the absence of football star Terry Baker—which enabled Seattle to upset the Beavers 60-58 Friday night on a last-minute field goal by sophomore Charlie Williams.

Baker, an All-America and Heisman Trophy winner, is a regular for the basketball Beavers, but currently is preparing to quarterback Oregon State's football forces against Villanova in the Liberty Bowl at Philadelphia a week from today.

Counts collected 31 points—13 in a row at the start of the second half—but it wasn't enough.

Meanwhile, top ten hopefuls Colorado and Marquette cruised to easy triumphs. Butler, Tulsa and Creighton furnished the night's other surprises and Nick Werkman of Seton Hall and NYU's Barry Kramer supplied some point-scoring pyrotechnics.

Colorado's defending Big Eight Conference champions held touted Walt Hazzard to four points, got 19 from Ken Charlton and blasted UCLA 82-60. The Warriors subdued Texas Western 77-65 as Dave Erickson and his relief, John Stone, both scored 16 points.

Butler beat Michigan 70-69 when Wolverine Bill Buntin was charged with goaltending on Jerry Williams' shot with 4 seconds left. James King scored six of the last eight points on foul shots as Tulsa knocked off Purdue 73-65 and Creighton collected 14 consecutive points during one stretch of a 52-34 walloping of St. John's, N.Y.

Werkman, who wound up third in the major college scoring derby with a 33.0-average last season and is favored to take the crown with Utah's Billy McGill and Holy Cross' Jack Foley graduated, scored 42 points in the Hall's 75-57 pasting of Loyola of Baltimore.

Kramer led NYU's eight-man squad, which this week lost leading scorer Happy Hairston and previously had been deprived of Clem Gaillard, Tom Boose and Don Blaha, to a 85-65 opening decision over Georgetown with 42 points. It was the Violets' 600th victory.

In other major games, Southern California defeated Meiji Univ. in Hawaii 130-71, Oklahoma City topped Brigham Young 79-71, Centenary upended TCU 64-61, Utah State beat Montana State 79-72, and Boston University edged Rutgers 90-88 in overtime.

Bobo Newsom, One-Time Big League Hurler, Dies

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Bobo Newsom, the roly-poly nomad who changed uniforms 26 itmes during a flamboyant 25-year baseball career in which he ultimately wound up a loser, died Friday at 55, less than 10 years after he pitched in his last major league game.

The affable South Carolinian, born Louis Norman Newsom on Aug. 11, 1907, got a late start in organized baseball with Raleigh of the Piedmont League some 21 years later. But he made up for that. Not until the end of the 1953 season did he step off the mound for the last time.

In between, Newsom's career was marked by a well-balanced ledger equally filled with achievements and failures, an elongated card in the record book listing 18 teams in the minors and majors and some newspaper clippings dealing with his off-the-field antics.

Big was the word for Newsom. He stood 6-foot-3 and weighed in the neighborhood of 220 to 240 pounds. And he talked big, acted big—and pitched almost that well. He pitched for almost every team in the majors and addressed everybody from the bat boy to the owner as Bobo. Naturally, they started calling him the same.

Newsom took his big frame out to the pitchers' mound for nine different major league teams—he shares the American League record by having played on six clubs—and made the rounds with four teams 11 times.

He was with the Washington Senators four different times, played for the St. Louis Browns on three occasions and shared hotel space with the Brooklyn Dodgers and Philadelphia Athletics twice each. He also spent some time with New York's Giants and Yankees as well as with the Detroit Tigers, Boston Red Sox and Chicago Cubs.

Newsom finished at Philadelphia in 1953.

He won 20 games three times, with St. Louis in 1938, St. Louis and Detroit in 1939, and Detroit in 1940. He matched that by losing 20 in 1934 with St. Louis, in 1941 with Detroit and in 1945 with Philadelphia.

His best year was with the Tigers in 1940 when he helped pitch Detroit to the American League pennant by posting a 21-5 record.

Newsome's death was attributed to cirrhosis. He died while a patient at an Orlando Hospital.

Survivors include the widow, Ruth, a daughter and a son.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Chili Cheese Muffins Have A Perky Flavor

Whether hot and fiery like Chili Pequins, or warm and fruity like Paprika are seasoners that can run the gamut from soup to nuts! They add the tingling spark that make foods interesting, not necessarily hot —that depends on the amount you use.

Chili con carne seasoning is a perky addition to tomato soup, it can add a spark of interest to salad dressing, or season the main course with a Spanish accent. It has given a distinctive flavor to Chili Cheese Muffins.

2 cups biscuit mix
1 cup grated, sharp cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon chilli con carne seasoning
½ teaspoon oregano
2 teaspoons chervil
¾ cup milk
1 egg, slightly beaten

Combine biscuit mix, cheese, oregano and chervil. Beat milk and egg together until well blended. Add, all at once, to dry ingredients. Stir until just blended. Spoon into 12 greased, medium - size muffin cups. Bake in a 400 degree oven (hot) 25 to 30 minutes until golden. Turn out onto a rack to cool.

Makes 12 medium - size muffins.

Diet Has Role In Heart Disease

In our land of good living, overweight is a major health problem. What connection does obesity have with the prevention and control of heart disease? This was one of the subjects discussed recently at a Nutrition Institute sponsored by the Washington Heart Association and the D. C. Dietetic Association.

Ida Jean Kain

"The role of diet in heart disease can be two - fold," according to Dr. Herbert Pollack, eminent nutrition authority. "Diet may play an important part in the cause and treatment of atherosclerotic heart diesease. Particular attention must be paid to the achievement and maintenance of optimum body weight. The obesity per se has just as strong a correlation with heart attacks as the other known factors," the doctor emphasized.

EXCESS FAT imposes a burden on heart and circulation. After 40, creeping poundage often betrays itself in excess puffing with a little exertion. Significantly, heart attacks are more common after 40.

As Dr. Pollack pointed out, we are presumably aiming at longevity. What weight favors good health and long life? From insurance statistics, one's ideal weight at 25 years of age is the weight most consistent with living to a ripe old age. Unfortunately with today's mechanized way of living, it is easy to pile on pounds with birthdays and to slip into overweight.

Food seems to get more fattening as time goes by. Why? Dr. Pollack explained, it is not only that we are appreciably less active in middle age, but the body itself uses less fuel to cover internal processes.

Weight gaining is a matter of simple calorie arithmetic. A pound of body fat equals 3,500 calories. Just one hundred extra calories a day can add up to approximately a 10 pound weight gain in a single year. It's easy to come by 100 excess calories—a pat of butter, a roll, or a sliver of cake — each furnishes 100 calories. When these calories are extra, they are inevitably stored.

EATING THE same as usual it's hard to realize we are eating too much. But as Dr. Pollack made clear, when we eat the same but use slightly less as the years go by, the small increments of food are stored, and gradually weight creeps up.

If we'll eat just a little less and exercise just a little more, we'll come out even on the calorie score.

Send a long, self - addressed envelope for "Choose To Lose Diet." Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of The Review. Post card requests cannot be answered.

Newell Man Forfeits On 3 Parking Tickets

Donald DeLong of the Congo Rd., Newell, forfeited a $21.50 bond Friday in Municipal Court on a charge he had failed to pay the penalty for three parking tickets issued in August and September.

DeLong was cited in an affidavit signed by "Meter Maid" Virginia Chambers. It alleged he had not paid the penalty for tickets issued Aug. 27, Sept. 1 and Sept. 9. The bond was forfeited when he failed to appear for a scheduled hearing before Acting Judge Paul Tobin.

Bonuses Totaling $7.3 Million Go To 1,337 In Firm

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cash bonuses totaling $7,375,000 were distributed by the Lincoln Electric Co. Friday to 1,337 employes in recognition of their efforts to reduce company costs and increase sales.

The firm has paid $900,000 for employment retirement annuities in addition to the 29th annual bonus distribution, according to President William Irrgang.

Lincoln Electric has paid a total of $104,707,000 in bonuses above regular wages since it started the bonus program. Typical bonuses have ranged from $2,000 to $10,000 for office and factory workers, but go higher for executives.

The bonuses are distributed from cash remaining after expenses, taxes, reserves and dividends. They are paid to all employes, regardless of length of service, on a merit basis.

This recognition of individual performance has resulted in high efficiency and permitted Lincoln Electric to reduce selling prices of the welding equipment and electric motors it manufactures, the company claims.

Ohio Fuel Co. Customers May Get Rate Slash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An announced refund of $134 million by the Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. may result in a savings to customers of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., a spokesman said today.

The refund plus a reduction of about $28.5 million annually in rates charged by the transmission company were suggested Friday by a Federal Power Commission examiner. The settlement is designed to end a five-year wholesale gas rate fight.

Walter D. Betsch, vice president of Ohio Fuel, said the change in wholesale rate could reduce the cost of gas to customers almost two cents a thousand cubic feet, for one year.

The examiner's findings now must be certified to the commission for its consideration and action.

Man, 63, Critical After Being Wounded

CINCINNATI (AP)—A 63-year-old Cincinnati grocer, shot down trying to defend his wife against a teen-age bandit, was in critical condition today at General Hospital.

Police said grocer John E. Chapman was wounded in the chest as he swung a wooden pole at the youth who menaced his wife with a rusty revolver Friday night.

Mrs. Chapman said the boy and a companion fled after the shooting.

Chili Cheese Muffins Have A Perky Flavor

Whether hot and fiery like Chili Pequins, or warm and fruity like Paprika are seasoners that can run the gamut from soup to nuts! They add the tingling spark that make foods interesting, not necessarily hot—that depends on the amount you use.

Chili con carne seasoning is a perky addition to tomato soup, it can add a spark of interest to salad dressing, or season the main course with a Spanish accent. It has given a distinctive flavor to Chili Cheese Muffins.

2 cups biscuit mix
1 cup grated, sharp cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon chilli con carne seasoning
½ teaspoon oregano
2 teaspoons chervil
¾ cup milk
1 egg, slightly beaten

Combine biscuit mix, cheese, oregano and chervil. Beat milk and egg together until well blended. Add, all at once, to dry ingredients. Stir until just blended. Spoon into 12 greased, medium - size muffin cups. Bake in a 400 degree oven (hot) 25 to 30 minutes until golden. Turn out onto a rack to cool.

Makes 12 medium - size muffins.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Diet Has Role In Heart Disease

In our land of good living, overweight is a major health problem. What connection does obesity have with the prevention and control of heart disease? This was one of the subjects discussed recently at a Nutrition Institute sponsored by the Washington Heart Association and the D. C. Dietetic Association.

Ida Jean Kain

"The role of diet in heart disease can be two - fold," according to Dr. Herbert Pollack, eminent nutrition authority. "Diet may play an important part in the cause and treatment of atherosclerotic heart diesease. Particular attention must be paid to the achievement and maintenance of optimum body weight. The obesity per se has just as strong a correlation with heart attacks as the other known factors," the doctor emphasized.

EXCESS FAT imposes a burden on heart and circulation. After 40, creeping poundage often betrays itself in excess puffing with a little exertion. Significantly, heart attacks are more common after 40.

As Dr. Pollack pointed out, we are presumably aiming at longevity. What weight favors good health and long life? From insurance statistics, one's ideal weight at 25 years of age is the weight most consistent with living to a ripe old age. Unfortunately with today's mechanized way of living, it is easy to pile on pounds with birthdays and to slip into overweight.

Food seems to get more fattening as time goes by. Why? Dr. Pollack explained, it is not only that we are appreciably less active in middle age, but the body itself uses less fuel to cover internal processes.

Weight gaining is a matter of simple calorie arithmetic. A pound of body fat equals 3,500 calories. Just one hundred extra calories a day can add up to approximately a 10 pound weight gain in a single year. It's easy to come by 100 excess calories—a pat of butter, a roll, or a sliver of cake — each furnishes 100 calories. When these calories are extra, they are inevitably stored.

Conversely, a small but consistent expenditure of energy works on the same principle. One hundred calories spent in walking one mile will counteract the 100 calories which would otherwise be surplus.

EATING THE same as usual it's hard to realize we are eating too much. But as Dr. Pollack made clear, when we eat the same but use slightly less as the years go by, the small increments of food are stored, and gradually weight creeps up.

If we'll eat just a little less and exercise just a little more, we'll come out even on the calorie score.

Send a long, self - addressed envelope for "Choose To Lose Diet." Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of The Review. Post card requests cannot be answered.

Newell Man Forfeits On 3 Parking Tickets

Donald DeLong of the Congo Rd., Newell, forfeited a $21.50 bond Friday in Municipal Court on a charge he had failed to pay the penalty for three parking tickets issued in August and September.

DeLong was cited in an affidavit signed by "Meter Maid" Virginia Chambers. It alleged he had not paid the penalty for tickets issued Aug. 27, Sept. 1 and Sept. 9. The bond was forfeited when he failed to appear for a scheduled hearing before Acting Judge Paul Tobin.

Bonuses Totaling $7.3 Million Go To 1,337 In Firm

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cash bonuses totaling $7,375,000 were distributed by the Lincoln Electric Co. Friday to 1,337 employes in recognition of their efforts to reduce company costs and increase sales.

The firm has paid $900,000 for employment retirement annuities in addition to the 29th annual bonus distribution, according to President William Irrgang.

Lincoln Electric has paid a total of $104,707,000 in bonuses above regular wages since it started the bonus program. Typical bonuses have ranged from $2,000 to $10,000 for office and factory workers, but go higher for executives.

The bonuses are distributed from cash remaining after expenses, taxes, reserves and dividends. They are paid to all employes, regardless of length of service, on a merit basis.

This recognition of individual performance has resulted in high efficiency and permitted Lincoln Electric to reduce selling prices of the welding equipment and electric motors it manufactures, the company claims.

Ohio Fuel Co. Customers May Get Rate Slash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An announced refund of $134 million by the Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. may result in a savings to customers of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., a spokesman said today.

The refund plus a reduction of about $28.5 million annually in rates charged by the transmission company were suggested Friday by a Federal Power Commission examiner. The settlement is designed to end a five-year wholesale gas rate fight.

Walter D. Betsch, vice president of Ohio Fuel, said the change in wholesale rate could reduce the cost of gas to customers almost two cents a thousand cubic feet, for one year.

The examiner's findings now must be certified to the commission for its consideration and action.

Man, 63, Critical After Being Wounded

CINCINNATI (AP)—A 63-year-old Cincinnati grocer, shot down trying to defend his wife against a teen-age bandit, was in critical condition today at General Hospital.

Police said grocer John E. Chapman was wounded in the chest as he swung a wooden pole at the youth who menaced his wife with a rusty revolver Friday night.

Mrs. Chapman said the boy and a companion fled after the shooting.

"Rollo, that joke your boss told when we all nearly killed ourselves laughing—what WAS the point?"

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I remove old stains that have penetrated my wooden floors?

A. These can be removed with a solution of oxalic acid. This liquid must be used with great care, since it is a deadly poison — and be sure to wear rubber gloves! To treat a whole floor, dissolve a half-pound of oxalic acid crystals in about three quarts hot water. While still hot, apply it to the floor with a brush, letting it remain overnight. Next day, wash floor with clear water several times. After dry, it can be sandpapered and then finished as you desire.

Q. How can I reopen a shellac jar after it has been used and resealed?

A. It will be much easier to open if you'll turn the jar upside down and apply some grain alcohol along the inside edge of the metal cover. The alcohol will dissolve the shellac so that the top will turn.

Q. Any suggestions on the prevention of trouble with a septic tank?

A. About once a month, mix a cake or package of compressed yeast with a little molasses or sugar, and flush this down the commode. This provides new, active bacteria and is especially helpful if you use detergents in your laundry or dishwashing — since some detergents, when used in large quantity, kill bacteria necessary to the successful operation of a spetic tank.

Q. How can I make a hotter fire in my log fireplace?

A. Do not remove all the wood ashes from the open fireplace. Leave some of them as a bed for the next fire. These ashes will retain a great amount of heat and give a quicker and hotter fire.

Q. How can I clean draperies that are faded and dusty?

A. Use a mixture of two parts of cornmeal and one part of flour. Place this mixture and the draperies in a bag, and shake thoroughly. The result will be gratifying.

Junior Editors Quiz on THE MARINES

QUESTION: Why do we have a marine corps?

ANSWER: America always has been especially proud of that courageous, hard-fighting body of men, the Marines. As far back as 1775, when our nation was coming to birth, our leaders realized that there should be a special body of soldiers who would be trained for the particular purpose of making landings from the sea on various shores which might be important in battle operations. On Nov 10, 1775, the Continental Congress founded the Marine Corps as a separate branch of the Army and Navy. The first beachhead landing was made in 1776 in the Bahama Islands. Since then, marines have made over 300 landings on foreign soil and have earned the title "First to fight." Their operations have carried them all over the world, in the stirring words of The Marines' Hymn, "From the Halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli." "The Halls of Montezuma" means the royal palace in Mexico City, which the marines were first to enter in the Mexican War. Tripoli, in north Africa, was attacked by the marines in 1805. Besides being an aggressive, alert fighting force, ready for any emergency, marines have many other duties aboard battleships and guarding important buildings.

FOR YOU TO DO: We have sketched only a highlight of two of the marines' gallant story. Find a book or article dealing with the corps and learn more of this gallant service.

County Program Slated To Assist Aged At Home

A "homemaker" program to assist aged residents of Columbiana County in their homes will be launched early next spring, according to plans of the County Commission on Aging.

The county has been divided into six areas for organizing the program in which elderly persons would receive the assistance of workers in cooking meals, household duties and some personal services.

The project would be the first of its kind in Ohio, according to Mrs. Margaret Stiver of Salem, commission head.

Plans for the project were mapped at a meeting of the commission Thursday night at Salem.

Miss Katherine Gibson of Salem was named executive secretary for promotion of the program.

Mrs. Carl McConnor of Salem, retiring president of the Home for Aged Women, will be chairman.

Mrs. Stiver, said a chairman will be appointed for each of six areas. These chairmen will contact persons from all county churches or others interested.

The service may range from a half-day each week to a full week in the cases of emergencies, such as people returning from the hospital. The duties of homemaker may include shopping, cooking hot meals, light housework and some personal services.

All workers in the program will be volunteers except homemakers who do the actual work.

To facilitate complete coverage of the county with as little traveling as possible, the county has been divided into areas of about 10 miles each. They include:

South central section from Bethesda south to county line including Salineville and 10 miles east from Carroll County line.

Southeast section east from the Beaver County line and south from Williamsport to the Ohio River and including Wellsville and East Liverpool.

Northeast section running east from Route 7 to Lawrence County line and south to meet the northern boundary of area 3, including East Palestine, Negley and Rogers.

Central section, meeting all surrounding area borders with Lisbon as the central point.

Doctors and ministers in the county are to notify Mrs. McConnor or Miss Gibson of persons needing this service.

Co-operating in the homemaker service are the County Welfare Department and the Aid for the Aged office.

Boosts Reported In County Road Deaths, Damage

The number of fatal accidents and amount of property damage from highway mishaps in Columbiana County continued to show increases over 1961 in a summary for the first nine months of the present year, issued by the Ohio Department of Highway Safety.

There were 23 deaths for the nine-month period of this year, compared to 12 at the same time last year, the report shows.

Accidents totalled 1,156 — up from the 1,152 of 1961, but injury accidents were down, 391 to 395, according to the department. The number of persons hurt declined from 634 to 621.

However, besides the number of dead, there was a rise in property damage from highway accidents from $463,400 to $484,680.

Snow Delays Hearing For Warren Motorist

The heavy snow Friday forced postponement of a scheduled Municipal Court hearing for a Warren motorist.

Chester Geer was due before Acting Judge Paul Tobin at 9 yesterday morning on a citation issued by police Dec. 1, charging him with failure to stop in the assured clear distance. Police said he was cited following a crash at the intersection of Dresden Ave. and the new freeway.

Geer telephoned the court's office from Washington, Pa., and said he was stranded there by the deep snow. The acting judge marked the case "continued" and said the date will be set later.

Man Gets Prison Term For Burglary In City

Richard E. Bankerd, 37, of Alliance was sentenced to prison Friday by Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard when his request for probation was denied.

He was sentenced to 1-15 years at the State Penitentiary for the burglary Sept. 2 at Central Service in East Liverpool and 30 days for driving a motor vehicle without the owner's consent. He took a car from the auto agency.

Arrested by East Liverpool police, he was indicted by the September Grand Jury and pleaded guilty to both offenses.

Judge Buzzard said his past record did not warrant probation.

Windup Of 2-Day Meeting

Republican Leaders Meet In Closed-Door Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders lock the door and let down their hair today in the wind-up of a two-day meeting at which differences over issues and candidates have been muted.

So far, unity in '64 has been the keynote of the gathering of the party's national committeemen and state chairman who were told, "If we want to fight anybody, let's fight the Kennedys."

Today, however, the party chiefs get a chance to stir up coals.

National chairman William E. Miller barred the press and invited the Republicans to speak their minds about anything and everything.

One subject for discussion may be Miller himself.

There has been some talk of replacing Miller, who is unpaid and who divides his time between Congress and the national committee, with a full-time, paid chairman. But there appeared to be no strong move in this direction now.

Miller and other speakers at the opening sessions on Friday struck an optimistic note about Republican prospects in 1964 despite the failure of last month's elections to live up to their hopes, especially in races for the House.

"The Republican party stands substantially stronger than it did before the election," Miller said. "We are growing in popular favor."

The GOP leaders were told that the party's candidates would have fared better had not the Cuban crisis broken such a short time before the Nov. 6 election.

"The Cuban crisis cost us as much as 20 seats in the House," said Rep. Robert Wilson, R-Calif., chairman of the GOP Congressional Campaign Committee, who protested that President Kennedy should have acted "far earlier" to rid Cuba of Soviet missiles and bombers.

Wilson said that members of the House Armed Services and Foreign Affairs committees were told by administration leaders at a secret briefing six weeks in advance of the election that as many as 10 Russian jet bombers were in Cuba.

He also said the House members were told that missile bases appeared to be under construction in Cuba but that no information was available at the time on whether Soviet missiles had been shipped to Cuba.

Wilson, who addressed a luncheon of the GOP leaders and later elaborated on his remarks in talking with newsmen, said he and other House members had been enjoined to secrecy at the briefing but that he felt free to talk now because "it's all over — it's history."

Policy From Cuban Crisis

U.S. Will Try To 'Sell' Lesson To NATO Allies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States will try next week to sell its NATO allies on adopting a lesson from the Cuban crisis—a lesson U.S. officials believe could prevent some European crisis from turning into nuclear war.

The Americans will urge that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization alliance deploy greater conventional firepower against the Soviet force in Europe, thus giving both sides a choice other than surrender or holocaust.

To reach this strength, NATO will be asked to achieve the long-sought goal of 30 divisions, according to officials here.

Arguing the American case before the NATO council in Paris Dec. 13-15 will be a high-ranking team led by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

The 30-division goal was set several years ago, but so far only 22 to 23 divisions, including five full-strength American divisions, are at the disposal of NATO's supreme commander.

Beyond one further division pledged by West Germany for 1963, there is no immediate sign indicating that the other directly interested Allies—Britain, France, and the Benelux countries—are in any hurry to bolster their forces in central Europe.

The U.S. delegation does not plan to raise other problems at the conference, described by State Department officials as a stock-taking meeting and an opportunity for the ministers to make a top-level assessment of the Cuban crisis.

It will also give Rusk an opportunity to express U.S. gratification over the unanimous support the United States received from the 15-nation alliance during those dangerous days.

Rusk and his colleagues, officials stressed, have no intention to bring up the controversial issue of a nuclear force for NATO, but the American contingent feels sure that the question will come up anyway.

The United States has offered Polaris-equipped submarines and also land-based, mobile middle-range missiles to the alliance, provided the European nations can agree on their control and use.

This country, officials said, has no intention to renege on these offers, although it has made clear in recent months that the U.S. nuclear deterrent is adequate and that there is really no need for duplication in form of a NATO nuclear force.

Reservists To Drill; Unit Seeks Recruits

A multiple drill will be held Sunday at 8 a. m. at the Poplar Ln. Armory by Co. A of the 7th Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor.

Classes will be on emergency medical care, escape and evasion and maintenance. The instructors will be M. Sgt. Charles Kelly, Sfc. Vincent Ferlaino, Spcl. 5C Larry Miller and Spcl. 5C Roy McKinney.

There are vacancies in the unit for anyone between 17 and 25. Those interested may contact M. Sgt. Arthur Johnson, who is stationed at the armory Monday through Friday from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m.

The unit is commanded by Capt. John Muller Jr.

Much "pumpkin" pie is really made with squash. Hard-shelled winter squash has been an important American food since Indian days.

Budget Requests For Marshall U., Others Awaited

CHARLESTON (AP) — Budget requests for Marshall University, state colleges and other agencies administered by the State Board of Education, will be presented Wednesday to the Board of Public Works.

The board of education plans to work the budget requests into a two - day meeting here.

Some construction contracts probably will be awarded Thursday when the education group is scheduled to review several building projects.

A contract may be awarded for construction of a $400,000 addition to Glenville State College's student union-dining hall building. The board will study plans for a $550,000 renovation of the Fairmont State College administration building.

A $200,00 contract is expected to be awarded after recommendations from Marshall University officials for renovation of two dormitory - type buildings on the school's Marshall Heights campus at Huntington.

The board will consider plans for construction of a new school for blind children at the West Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind at Romney. The Legislature allocated about $548,000 for that project.

Freeway Extension Listed 25% Finished

Extension of the Freeway north of the city limits to Route 170 is 25 per cent complete, the Ohio Highways Department Division 11 at New Philadelphia reported in a summary of area road projects.

The Great Lakes Construction Co. is contractor for the 2.7-mile project.

A 0.2-mile relocation of Route 172 east of New Garden is 18 per cent complete, according to William McKenna, division deputy director.

Soldiers at Camp Century live in a maze of tunnels cut 30 feet inside Greenland glacier that is 2,000 years old.

Life Under a Glacier— GI Style

Beneath Greenland's frozen wastes, U.S. soldiers live and work in a city wrested from the snow

By ROBERT DRISCOLL

PHOTOGRAPHS BY ARTHUR SCHATZ

Food is frozen solid in corridors and thawed in refrigerators. Quart of milk takes 10 hours to thaw.

NO DOUBT about it. This coming holiday season will assuredly be a white one for some 150 Americans. Their whole year has been white.

They are soldiers doing Arctic research in a military base dug 30 feet beneath Greenland's desolate Ice Cap. Eight hundred miles below the North Pole, these GIs are set for winter temperatures of 50 to 70 degrees below zero, while overhead winds of more than 100 miles an hour whip blinding crystals of ice and snow. It's nighttime, of course—it has been since fall and it will be until spring.

This is Camp Century—popularly known as the "City Under the Ice"—a project in Arctic living by the U. S. Army Polar Research and Development Center. The igloolike base was completed in October, 1960, and is expected to defy nature's worst for another seven years. Why? In case the United States needs to expand its defense in the polar regions, the Army wants to know how men and equipment can function best.

One thing the Army has learned is that the best source of power in isolated regions is a nuclear reactor. The prefabricated unit in Camp Century goes 24 hours a day, yet requires less than 100 pounds of atomic fuel a year; if diesel generators had been used, the Army would have had to cart more than half a million gallons of oil into the glacial wasteland every year.

About men, Camp Century has learned that living in subwinter conditions is bearable if personnel are rotated regularly, keep busy (the work week is 60-70 hours), and have plenty of recreational outlets. Game rooms, workshops, radios, movies, and a library help fight monotony.

The camp consists of a honeycomb of tunnels which house 38 prefabricated plywood buildings used for work and living quarters. One of the puzzles which the self-styled "ice worms" must unravel is how to keep the snow walls from closing in and crushing their buildings. Crews work constantly shaving off about 40 tons of contracting "snowcrete" material each week.

CHRISTMAS, of course, is a big time of the year this close to the North Pole, and elaborate preparations already are under way. Whether all the mail and gifts get into Camp Century, however, will depend on storms, fog, and "whiteouts," which may cut off the GIs for days, except for radio communication.

Yet nobody is worried about the traditional holiday feast. Turkeys and stuffing are sitting in the tunnels waiting to be picked up—and then thawed out in refrigerators. Just an ordinary procedure in an extraordinary Army camp.

Just for You

emphasizes your own eye color (for example, blue shadow makes blue eyes bluer), while other colors make eyes appear bigger, paler, smaller, and so on. And while you're experimenting with eye shadow, here's another basic rule: a smidgen goes a long, long way.

Eye Liner: This is the most valuable cosmetic I ever found. After experimenting with many kinds, I think black pancake make-up is ideal. To use it properly, get the tiniest make-up brush you can possibly find, mix the make-up with water, and paint the line on instead of draw-it as you would with a pencil. It never comes off or smears the way pencil does.

Skin Foundations

If you have an average complexion, you don't need a foundation for the daytime. At night, cream or liquid foundation is helpful for dry skin.

Perhaps you've noticed how your skin varies from place to place. My nose is oily and my cheeks are dry. If your complexion tends to be oily, try using pancake make-up with a sponge.

Before you go out to buy, however, study your skin tone carefully, then experiment with two or three basic shades that approximate your own tone. Complexion and make-up should match as closely as possible. Never wear make-up that doesn't blend with your neck. If your skin is olive, for instance, get olive-tone make-up. This rule holds, with one exception: if you have a sallow skin tone, or yellow cast, buy make-up that matches closely but has an added touch of pink.

Lipstick

For most women, this is a good rule: darker by night, lighter by day, coordinated with the color of your outfit.

The most efficient way to apply lipstick is the model's technique: outline lips with a pencil slightly darker than your lipstick. Pencil helps define your lips so they don't smear into the rest of your face. I know some girls who reshape their lips, and it helps considerably. Next, apply lipstick, staying inside the penciled borders, then blot lightly with a tissue.

Powder

The greatest invention since aluminum foil and something I'd recommend to anyone, young or old, is "translucent" powder. It takes on the color of any make-up you have underneath or reflects your own natural coloring, never turns orangey, and can be used with any other make-up.

I use two kinds: loose for morning (once it's on, pat your face with wet cotton so it won't look powdery) and the pressed kind in a compact for my purse.

Hair Care

It took me a long time to learn the basic rule of hair beauty: choose a definite style. Until I did, I just kept on wearing it long and curly because that's the way it grew. Now I know I'm very limited in the ways I can wear my hair. If it's long, it makes me look neckless and pares inches off my height. My best style is medium length, never too short.

I think every teen-age girl should earn some money so she can afford a trip to the beauty parlor once a week, or enjoy a trim every five weeks or so.

When you get there, make the most of it. Watch how the beautician trims, shapes, and sets it. If you don't understand, ask. If you can't remember, draw a little diagram or take notes: "First row, four big rollers turned back and under, etc."

Here's how you can simplify your problems at home:

Setting: Investigate some of the shampoos that encourage straight hair to hold a curl longer. Combined with longer-lasting wave lotions, you can sometimes get a setting that lasts four or five days instead of one or two.

The next idea may raise a few eyebrows, but I've seen it done in all the exclusive beauty salons: use stale beer. It has to be flat, left out of the refrigerator with the cap off for two or three days. Wash your hair with regular shampoo, rinse thoroughly, then soak with beer just before setting. It adds tremendous body to fine or limp hair.

How to Tease: This is one of the most useful tricks a girl can learn. It involves back-combing the hair from underneath, which adds body, so that with very little curl you can make your hair look like something special. How can you learn? Well, I asked a man in the beauty shop to show me. You should do the same.

Shampoo: Wash your hair as often as necessary to keep it clean and shining. If it's every two days, then that's the way it has to be.

Brushing: I'm not a "100-strokes" girl because I don't have the time, but it does help keep your hair clean and makes your head feel wonderful. For an extra tingle, massage the scalp with fingertips.

Here is one last thought for making yourself up: the test isn't how much you can put on; it's how much you can put on and still look as though you're not wearing any.

WILL AMERICA

LEARN TOO LATE?

Our lead in science and invention, in business, trade and world affairs came from learning how. Today higher education is the main teacher of our future leaders . . . in technical skill and in world outlook.

But higher education is facing a crisis. Colleges are in a squeeze. Many have actual shortages, while in less than 10 years college applicants will double.

If we are to hold our lead, our higher institutions must have modern laboratory facilities, more classrooms and, above all, qualified teachers.

80 Colorful Pages, Richly

Now, the book many readers of Family Weekly have asked for $1.50

A BOOK TO ENJOY, A BOOK TO TREASURE, TO READ AGAIN AND AGAIN.

Patty Johnson's comments often express your own thoughts or opinions . . . more eloquently and with sensitive understanding.

She often introduces a new subject in a way that encourages independent evaluation in terms of your experience.

She skillfully simplifies controversial issues to help you understand them better.

Often she focuses a familiar picture in a light that reveals unexpected details of its full beauty, so that you see the subject as wholly new and marvelously interesting.

". . . JUST WHAT I HAVE BEEN TRYING TO SAY!" or "I WISH I HAD SAID THAT!" . . .
That is Patty Johnson's unique talent, her great gift to her readers . . . to use the magic of words to evoke and provoke, teach and inspire, pose new questions and suggest new answers . . . and, above all . . . to entertain!

Just for You

emphasizes your own eye color (for example, blue shadow makes blue eyes bluer), while other colors make eyes appear bigger, paler, smaller, and so on. And while you're experimenting with eye shadow, here's another basic rule: a smidgen goes a long, long way.

Eye Liner: This is the most valuable cosmetic I ever found. After experimenting with many kinds, I think black pancake make-up is ideal. To use it properly, get the tiniest make-up brush you can possibly find, mix the make-up with water, and paint the line on instead of draw it as you would with a pencil. It never comes off or smears the way pencil does.

Skin Foundations

If you have an average complexion, you don't need a foundation for the daytime. At night, cream or liquid foundation is helpful for dry skin.

Perhaps you've noticed how your skin varies from place to place. My nose is oily and my cheeks are dry. If your complexion tends to be oily, try using pancake make-up with a sponge.

Before you go out to buy, however, study your skin tone carefully, then experiment with two or three basic shades that approximate your own tone. Complexion and make-up should match as closely as possible. Never wear make-up that doesn't blend with your neck. If your skin is olive, for instance, get olive-tone make-up. This rule holds, with one exception: if you have a sallow skin tone, or yellow cast, buy make-up that matches closely but has an added touch of pink.

Lipstick

For most women, this is a good rule: darker by night, lighter by day, coordinated with the color of your outfit.

The most efficient way to apply lipstick is the model's technique: outline lips with a pencil slightly darker than your lipstick. Pencil helps define your lips so they don't smear into the rest of your face. I know some girls who reshape their lips, and it helps considerably. Next, apply lipstick, staying inside the penciled borders, then blot lightly with a tissue.

Powder

The greatest invention since aluminum foil and something I'd recommend to anyone, young or old, is "translucent" powder. It takes on the color of any make-up you have underneath or reflects your own natural coloring, never turns orangey, and can be used with any other make-up.

I use two kinds: loose for morning (once it's on, pat your face with wet cotton so it won't look powdery) and the pressed kind in a compact for my purse.

Hair Care

It took me a long time to learn the basic rule of hair beauty: choose a definite style. Until I did, I just kept on wearing it long and curly because that's the way it grew. Now I know I'm very limited in the ways I can wear my hair. If it's long, it makes me look neckless and pares inches off my height. My best style is medium length, never too short.

I think every teen-age girl should earn some money so she can afford a trip to the beauty parlor once a week, or enjoy a trim every five weeks or so.

When you get there, make the most of it. Watch how the beautician trims, shapes, and sets it. If you don't understand, ask. If you can't remember, draw a little diagram or take notes: "First row, four big rollers turned back and under, etc."

Here's how you can simplify your problems at home:

Setting: Investigate some of the shampoos that encourage straight hair to hold a curl longer. Combined with longer-lasting wave lotions, you can sometimes get a setting that lasts four or five days instead of one or two.

The next idea may raise a few eyebrows, but I've seen it done in all the exclusive beauty salons: use stale beer. It has to be flat, left out of the refrigerator with the cap off for two or three days. Wash your hair with regular shampoo, rinse thoroughly, then soak with beer just before setting. It adds tremendous body to fine or limp hair.

How to Tease: This is one of the most useful tricks a girl can learn. It involves back-combing the hair from underneath, which adds body, so that with very little curl you can make your hair look like something special. How can you learn? Well, I asked a man in the beauty shop to show me. You should do the same.

Shampoo: Wash your hair as often as necessary to keep it clean and shining. If it's every two days, then that's the way it has to be.

Brushing: I'm not a "100-strokes" girl because I don't have the time, but it does help keep your hair clean and makes your head feel wonderful. For an extra tingle, massage the scalp with fingertips.

Here is one last thought for making yourself up: the test isn't how much you can put on; it's how much you can put on and still look as though you're not wearing any.

WILL AMERICA

LEARN TOO LATE?

Our lead in science and invention, in business, trade and world affairs came from learning how. Today higher education is the main teacher of our future leaders . . . in technical skill and in world outlook.

But higher education is facing a crisis. Colleges are in a squeeze. Many have actual shortages, while in less than 10 years college applicants will double.

If we are to hold our lead, our higher institutions must have modern laboratory facilities, more classrooms and, above all, qualified teachers.

Good Housekeeping

My Beauty Secrets—

■ THE FIRST "cosmetic" I ever used was cherry juice for lipstick, and from then on the main topic at our house was: "Connie! What's that stuff on your face now?"

I really learned about cosmetics from the make-up man at the television studio (I was 16 then, and appearing on tv weekly). In exchange for a piece of cake, he gave me free beauty samples and priceless advice, which I'm glad to share with you now.

How to Start

Considering that millions of dollars are spent by teen-agers on cosmetics alone every year, beauty definitely has a price these days. So let's begin with the two basic rules of good make-up:

1. Make the most of your best feature. (That means looking at yourself objectively, then knowing what to do about it.)

2. Dark minimizes, light accentuates. (Play down your bad points and emphasize your good points with make-up.)

For instance, my nose is too wide, so I always use a darker make-up on its sides than on the rest of my face. If you wake up with shadows under your eyes the day yearbook pictures are scheduled, you can camouflage them with make-up that's lighter than skin tone. For puffy eyelids, do the reverse—apply make-up that's darker than skin tone, or even the lightest tint of brown eyeshadow (so light nobody knows but you).

Now that we have a framework, let's get down to specifics.

Your Eyes

My best feature is my eyes, so I finally got up enough courage to go out and buy eye make-up. I used to pick a day like Saturday to practice, since there wasn't any school and I could spend two hours putting it on and wiping it off again. After many errors, here's what I found:

Eyebrows: You may tweeze them too thin at first, which means that you end up taking them off and putting them back on with pencil. Don't! The only thing a pencil should do is follow the natural arch, not draw a new shape. Remember this rule: the outer line of the eyebrow should end at a 45-degree angle from the tip of the nose.

Eye Shadow: Subtle color changes make a big difference. Matching eye shadow

Meet Mr. Conservative—

BARRY GOLDWATER

The man behind the label is surprisingly versatile—

he has even invented an automatic flag raiser

By FLORA RHETA SCHREIBER

BARRY M. GOLDWATER has replaced the Grand Canyon as Arizona's most talked-about phenomenon. Throughout the United States, he is the symbol of conservatism.

But labels like Mr. Conservative tend to oversimplify and obscure as much as they explain. As a result, although people are familiar with the Senator's handsome, square-jawed face and his militant, right-wing politics, they still ask: what is Barry Goldwater really like?

The truth is that the Senator is a man of many facets—most of them relatively unknown to the general public. Only the last 10 of his 53 years have been spent in the national spotlight, and it was his earlier years that molded the man.

A typical Westerner, Goldwater loves the outdoors and is an enthusiastic skin diver, swimmer, golfer, and explorer of Arizona's wild hinterland. He also is a dedicated investigator of the State's Indian and Spanish lore; the blue dots tattooed on his left hand are the mark of membership in the Smoki Clan, a group formed to preserve ancient dances of the Indians.

During World War II, Goldwater's zest for action and adventure found an outlet when he became a pilot. For a while he ferried planes, but finally he got himself transferred to a fighter-replacement wing. Today he is a major general in the Air Force reserve.

There is a strong inventive streak in Goldwater. The flag on the pole outside his Phoenix home automatically goes up at dawn and down at dusk. The mechanism, which is activated by the sun, was dreamed up by the Senator and his younger son Michael, 22, who shares his interest in gadgets.

Has Greatly Varied Interests

Goldwater's 1955 Thunderbird also bears the stamp of his mechanical bent. The car is equipped with a short-wave radio, aircraft instruments, and weather-data devices.

But the Senator's creativity does not stop at gadgets. When he and his family moved into their Washington apartment, Goldwater served as his own interior decorator. He blended purples, blues, oranges, and yellows so successfully that the effect is that of an Arizona sunset. He struck the home-state motif again by hanging paintings by Arizona artists on the living-room walls.

In decorating the bathroom, Goldwater gave free rein to his often unrecognized sense of humor. Hanging there is a painting of Cyclone II, the family bulldog, and prominent in the picture is the animal's gold tooth, which replaced one that had to be extracted.

The magic of imagination has carried this writer to fame—but at 14, it caused her to suffer the searing pain of being misunderstood

By ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS
Author of "Final Verdict," the best-selling biography of her father

that she knew that the girls gathered in my room at night and that I told tall tales —such as the one about spending nights on a ferryboat in San Francisco Bay. As it happened, this was true; it occurred during a case Papa was involved in.

But here I was, up against the things that had plagued me so often before: I was that little Rogers girl, the biggest liar on the block, in the neighborhood, in town. I remembered the day I had hopped a grocery wagon and ridden as far as East Lake Park. I couldn't hook a ride back, so I didn't get home until after dark. My aunt, with whom I was staying at the time, was furious, so I swore I had been kidnaped—and I stuck to this in spite of all she could do.

But my father took me on his knee and said: "Nora (he always called me by my second name), you're going to get somebody in serious trouble if you stick to this. Is it true?"

WITH A HOWL, I admitted that it wasn't, and then he explained the difference between creative fiction and lies. He said it was splendid of me to tell stories: where would the world be without its storytellers? Dickens had taken things from his own life and passed them through the spectrum of his inspired imagination and out had come the greatest of all novels, "David Copperfield." Kipling had delved into pure make-believe for "The Jungle Book," as Shakespeare had for "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

But, said Papa, when I was asked why I was three hours late getting home, I must present the naked truth and take my licks with courage and character.

I had been trying to live up to this; yet here I was convicted, not of a scarlet sin like staying out all night, for which the last girl had been expelled, but of a cheap, petty-larceny crime like cheating—of which, moreover, I was innocent.

Back in my room, I tried to prepare for Papa's arrival. Once, in the famous Boyd murder case, I had said to my father: "He didn't do it, Papa. I know because I know he couldn't." That time he had believed me; he had defended and acquitted the dark handsome Southern boy who was accused of shooting the Louisville Sport over a poker game at Catalina Island. But this, I knew, was different; this was my word.

PAPA CAME IN, and I stood up and faced him. I realize now how young and good-looking he was and why he was a public idol before we had movie stars in our town. But then I only saw that, while he looked troubled, he didn't look ashamed. That was what had been choking me up: suppose he was ashamed of me?

I still wasn't sure he'd believe me. Not quite. Suppose he remembered that the little Rogers girl was a liar? I truly thought I would die on that spot if he wouldn't believe me.

He said, "Nora?"—and just waited.

I said, "I didn't, Papa. I didn't."

The room, the world spun around me in that relative time which makes the millionth part of a second long enough to orbit the globe. Then Papa said: "I thought you didn't; it didn't seem at all one of the things you'd be likely to do." Then he added: "Well, you must go down and tell Mrs. W——— about it."

"I did," I said. "She doesn't believe me. She won't believe me."

"Yes, she will," Papa said. "It is time for you to learn that truth always has the power to make itself believed. You may rely on that. Speak it with that faith."

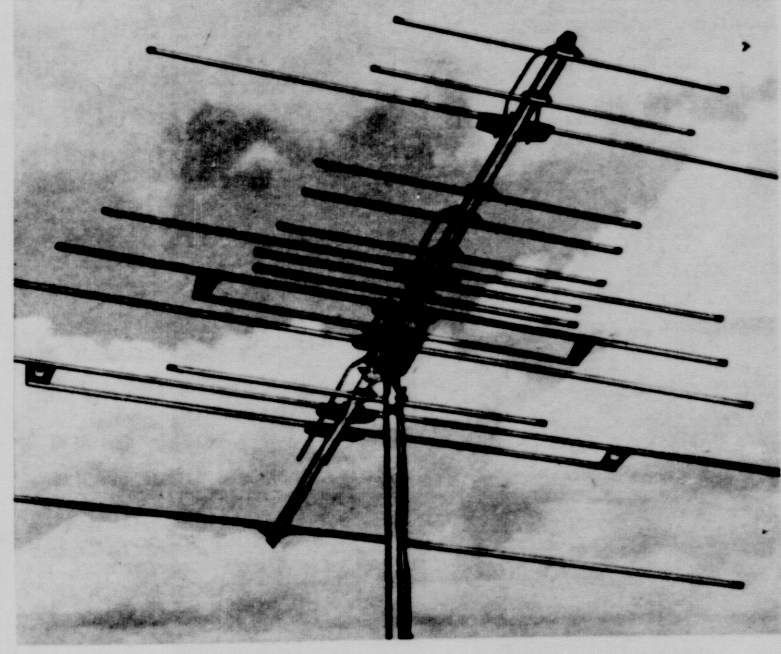

So, by myself, I went back down and I said: "I have to say it to you once more, please. It is the truth, and you will believe it: I didn't cheat."

Her eyes stayed frosty, but after a moment she said: "Very well. I accept that."

So I knew Papa was right. Truth spoken with faith does have the power to make itself believed. That is a great thing for a child to know in this world. Without it a young heart grows bitter and defiant.

Goldwater also has originated designs for clothes and fabrics as part of his experience as former owner of a Phoenix department store. He is interested in being well dressed, but as he says: "I don't work at it—I'm more interested in comfort."

In his Washington apartment, the Senator has a hi-fi set which he built himself. He often spends an entire Sunday listening to the music, which is piped into every room. His favorite composer is Richard Wagner; his favorite opera, Die Walküre.

When it comes to reading, he enjoys Westerns, Mickey Spillane adventures, Erle Stanley Gardner mysteries, and, as he puts it, "a few good novels like 'Twilight of Honor' and 'The Cypresses Believe in God.'"

Ever since his wife gave him a camera as a gift, Goldwater has been a photography fan. His Indian pictures and studies of the Old West have been collected into two books, now out of print and extremely valuable. The quality of his work is so professional that he has been granted membership in the Royal Photographic Society of London.

The culinary arts also have attracted his attention; his specialty is barbecuing. At the table, however, he is a sparing eater who concentrates on lean meats and avoids starches. Following his mother's advice, he has never smoked or drunk coffee. "I'm glad she said nothing about whisky," the Senator quipped.

For Goldwater, a man always in motion, there is no typical day. But after five hours sleep, he is likely to be up and in his den by 5 a.m. Often he arrives at his Senate office by 6:45 and almost always by 7:30.

The Senator's health is excellent. At 53, his only malady is a muscle spasm in his neck, which is being treated by Dr. Janet Travell, who is also President Kennedy's physician.

Goldwater entered politics late in life, and as his friend Michael Bernstein points out: "He approaches it with missionary zeal."

Began in Grass-Roots Tradition

It all began when he was delegated to draw up a slate of "good government" candidates for city office in Phoenix. Because no other candidate was available, he ended up running for the city council himself. He served two terms and then got into state politics by becoming campaign manager for gubernatorial candidate Howard Pyle in 1950. Two years later, Goldwater was elected to the United States Senate. In 1960 his name was put in nomination for President at the Republican convention.

Everything happened with breathless speed —and marked a sharp change from anything he had done before.

Born on New Year's Day, 1909, in Phoenix, Barry Morris Goldwater grew up in comfortable circumstances. The man responsible for this comfort was his paternal grandfather, Michael Goldwater (originally Goldwasser), a Polish-Jewish tailor who fled persecution in his homeland to make his way in the New World. Big Mike, as he was called, arrived in Arizona as a peddler of notions and spirits; he ended up as founder of J. Goldwater Bros., a department-store chain.

Baron Goldwater, Big Mike's son and inheritor of his business, married a woman of entirely different background from his own. Josephine Williams was a Scotch-Irish Protestant from Nebraska who numbered Roger Williams among her forebears. A victim of tuberculosis, she was sent to Arizona to pass her few remaining years. But she upset all predictions and is now a spry woman in her 80s.

For Barry, son of Baron and Josephine, life was full of contrasts. Although he was raised in his mother's religion, he always has cherished his father's ancestry. There also was the contrast of having a sophisticated, debonair father who loved good talk and good living and a tough-willed mother who encouraged her children to rough it, to shoot, to explore. Each year Mun, as Barry calls her, would load the family's Apperson touring car with camping equipment and head for the beaches of Southern California.

He Was an All-Around Youth

But parental contrasts did not keep Barry from enjoying his youth. He played basketball and football in school, was elected president of his high-school freshman class, became Arizona's first disk jockey, and achieved an excellent record at Staunton Military Academy.

After Staunton, he entered the University of Arizona, but his student days were cut short. "I would have liked nothing better than to have stayed in college," he recently reminisced, "but my father died and I had to leave at the end of my freshman year to go into the family business. This left me with an inferiority feeling—a sense of incompleteness. I went to work in the store six months before the Depression. To keep it going, I worked not only days but also five nights a week. This taught me economics and conservatism, but it also gave me a nervous breakdown. The doctor warned, 'Take a vacation, don't get upset. That's all you need.'"

Barry worked hard and lived hard. And when at 24 he fell in love, he fell hard, too. As he recalls it:

"A Mrs. Johnson from Muncie, Ind., came into the store one day. She was living in Phoenix temporarily because of her son's health. She told me her daughter Peggy was coming for a visit and that she wanted her to meet some young people. When Peggy arrived, I took one look at her—and decided I was the fellow she ought to meet. But it took more than a year to get her to marry me, even though I chased her all over the country."

Barry made himself omnipresent in Peggy's life. He sent a caged lovebird to the airport when he knew she would arrive. He sent a crate of apples to her roomette when he learned her train was full of doctors heading for a medical convention—he figured an apple a day would keep them away from Peggy.

"On New Year's Eve, Peggy and I had a date," the Senator recalls. "She was in a telephone booth, wishing her mother a Happy New Year. I told her, 'Peggy, I'm running out of money and patience. Will you marry me? Is your answer yes or no?' This time she said yes.

"Peggy and her mother went ahead with previously made plans for a world cruise, however. I was afraid Peggy would fall for someone else so I sent flowers to every port and letters to be read at various times of day from breakfast to nightcap. Finally, when she returned, we were married on Sept. 22, 1934, in Muncie's Grace Episcopal Church."

The clan gathers for a cruise: Mrs. Goldwater (l.), Peggy, Barry, Mike, Joanne, and the Senator.

As a Muncie society girl and heiress to the Borg-Warner fortune, Peggy was not equipped for the outdoor life her husband loved. But she learned, and today Barry proudly calls her "the best deep-sea fisherman I know."

Sharing interests has not extended to politics, however. "I have never asked her to make a political speech," the Senator told me. Nor has Mrs. Goldwater gone in for elaborate Washington hostessing. Instead, she confines entertaining to small parties.

Once, at a party for staff members of a Senate committee, the Senator entertained by play-

The magic of imagination has carried this writer to fame—but at 14, it caused her to suffer the searing pain of being misunderstood

By ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS
Author of "Final Verdict," the best-selling biography of her father

that she knew that the girls gathered in my room at night and that I told tall tales —such as the one about spending nights on a ferryboat in San Francisco Bay. As it happened, this was true; it occurred during a case Papa was involved in.

But here I was, up against the things that had plagued me so often before: I was that little Rogers girl, the biggest liar on the block, in the neighborhood, in town. I remembered the day I had hopped a grocery wagon and ridden as far as East Lake Park. I couldn't hook a ride back, so I didn't get home until after dark. My aunt, with whom I was staying at the time, was furious, so I swore I had been kidnaped—and I stuck to this in spite of all she could do.

But my father took me on his knee and said: "Nora (he always called me by my second name), you're going to get somebody in serious trouble if you stick to this. Is it true?"

WITH A HOWL, I admitted that it wasn't, and then he explained the difference between creative fiction and lies. He said it was splendid of me to tell stories: where would the world be without its storytellers? Dickens had taken things from his own life and passed them through the spectrum of his inspired imagination and out had come the greatest of all novels, "David Copperfield." Kipling had delved into pure make-believe for "The Jungle Book," as Shakespeare had for "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

But, said Papa, when I was asked why I was three hours late getting home, I must present the naked truth and take my licks with courage and character.

I had been trying to live up to this; yet here I was convicted, not of a scarlet sin like staying out all night, for which the last girl had been expelled, but of a cheap, petty-larceny crime like cheating—of which, moreover, I was innocent.

Back in my room, I tried to prepare for Papa's arrival. Once, in the famous Boyd murder case, I had said to my father: "He didn't do it, Papa. I know because I know he couldn't." That time he had believed me; he had defended and acquitted the dark handsome Southern boy who was accused of shooting the Louisville Sport over a poker game at Catalina Island. But this, I knew, was different; this was my word.

PAPA CAME IN, and I stood up and faced him. I realize now how young and good-looking he was and why he was a public idol before we had movie stars in our town. But then I only saw that, while he looked troubled, he didn't look ashamed. That was what had been choking me up: suppose he was ashamed of me?

I still wasn't sure he'd believe me. Not quite. Suppose he remembered that the little Rogers girl was a liar? I truly thought I would die on that spot if he wouldn't believe me.

He said, "Nora?"—and just waited.

I said, "I didn't, Papa. I didn't."

The room, the world spun around me in that relative time which makes the millionth part of a second long enough to orbit the globe. Then Papa said: "I thought you didn't; it didn't seem at all one of the things you'd be likely to do." Then he added: "Well, you must go down and tell Mrs. W——— about it."

"I did," I said. "She doesn't believe me. She won't believe me."

"Yes, she will," Papa said. "It is time for you to learn that truth always has the power to make itself believed. You may rely on that. Speak it with that faith."

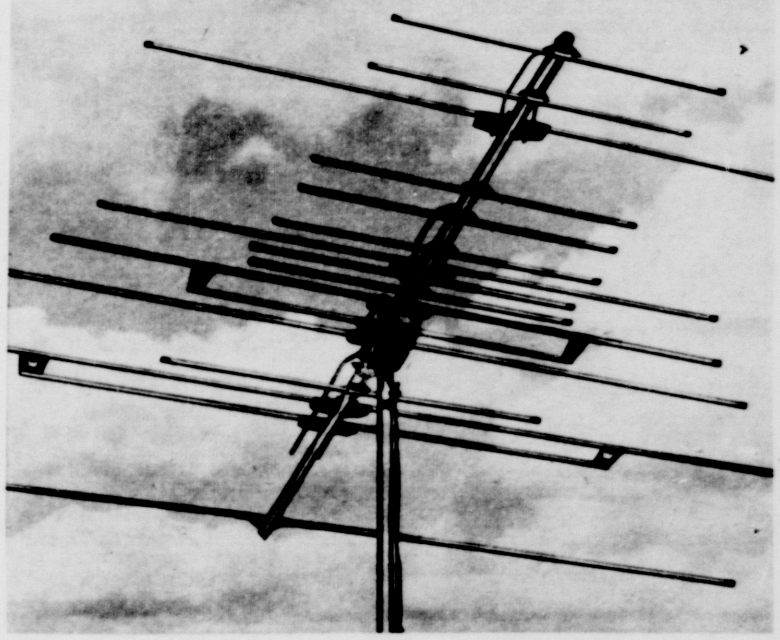

So, by myself, I went back down and I said: "I have to say it to you once more, please. It is the truth, and you will believe it: I didn't cheat."

Her eyes stayed frosty, but after a moment she said: "Very well. I accept that."

So I knew Papa was right. Truth spoken with faith does have the power to make itself believed. That is a great thing for a child to know in this world. Without it a young heart grows bitter and defiant.

THE GIRL WHO MADE THINGS UP

In her crisp, clipped voice, the headmistress pronounced my sentence: expulsion from finishing school.

"I'M SORRY, Adela, it is impossible for me to believe you."

The headmistress looked at me with a frosty eye. In her crisp, clipped voice she had just pronounced upon me the sentence of expulsion from the finishing school—the one that automatically put you into the Blue Book, California's forerunner of the Social Register.

She had wiped out my denial, and there we were: me at 14, or thereabouts, in pleated blue skirt, middy blouse, red ribbons on my pigtails; the headmistress well-corseted in a black dress with high-net collar.

From time to time, my aunts and grandmother forced my father to send me to boarding school. But such schools separated me from Papa, then the West's leading criminal lawyer. They kept me from living with him, spending half my time in his office, and taking care of him. This spelled purgatory to me, and to date I had always succeeded in getting out somehow.

As a result, it seems I should have been happy at being expelled. Yet now that it was happening for something I didn't do, a fiery sense of injustice started at my toes and I could feel it coming out my ears. I had done a good many forbidden things; I had deliberately made a nuisance of myself. But cheat in an exam I had not. This was outside our own rules, my father's and mine. My father would be ashamed if I got thrown out for cheating.

Desperately I said again to the headmistress: "I didn't do it. I don't see why you won't believe me."

Her hands, which she kept folded at her waist, made a quick gesture of casting me forth. I could see that in spite of my grandmother and my aunts she wasn't at all sure that her school ever should have accepted the daughter of a man who defended murderers and got on the front page instead of the society page.

In a cold, impersonal tone, she said I had a shocking reputation in school as a liar. I made things up, she said, adding clothes and fabrics as part of his experience as former owner of a Phoenix department store. He is interested in being well dressed, but as he says: "I don't work at it—I'm more interested in comfort."

In his Washington apartment, the Senator has a hi-fi set which he built himself. He often spends an entire Sunday listening to the music, which is piped into every room. His favorite composer is Richard Wagner; his favorite opera, Die Walküre.

When it comes to reading, he enjoys Westerns, Mickey Spillane adventures, Erle Stanley Gardner mysteries, and, as he puts it, "a few good novels like 'Twilight of Honor' and 'The Cypresses Believe in God.'"

Ever since his wife gave him a camera as a gift, Goldwater has been a photography fan. His Indian pictures and studies of the Old West have been collected into two books, now out of print and extremely valuable. The quality of his work is so professional that he has been granted membership in the Royal Photographic Society of London.

The culinary arts also have attracted his attention; his specialty is barbecuing. At the table, however, he is a sparing eater who concentrates on lean meats and avoids starches. Following his mother's advice, he has never smoked or drunk coffee. "I'm glad she said nothing about whisky," the Senator quipped.

For Goldwater, a man always in motion, there is no typical day. But after five hours sleep, he is likely to be up and in his den by 5 a.m. Often he arrives at his Senate office by 6:45 and almost always by 7:30.

The Senator's health is excellent. At 53, his only malady is a muscle spasm in his neck, which is being treated by Dr. Janet Travell, who is also President Kennedy's physician.

Goldwater entered politics late in life, and as his friend Michael Bernstein points out: "He approaches it with missionary zeal."

Began in Grass-Roots Tradition

It all began when he was delegated to draw up a slate of "good government" candidates for city office in Phoenix. Because no other candidate was available, he ended up running for the city council himself. He served two terms and then got into state politics by becoming campaign manager for gubernatorial candidate Howard Pyle in 1950. Two years later, Goldwater was elected to the United States Senate. In 1960 his name was put in nomination for President at the Republican convention.

Everything happened with breathless speed —and marked a sharp change from anything he had done before.

Born on New Year's Day, 1909, in Phoenix, Barry Morris Goldwater grew up in comfortable circumstances. ing bongo drums. But parties are of less interest to him than they were in his prepolitical days. Often he is too restless to relax in public. And when he is tired, he prefers to retreat to the apartment and build a toy ship, as a boy might. For solace, he also is fond of taking off on jaunts in his light plane.

But the pressures of politics have not destroyed the tight-knit feeling of the Goldwater family. The Senator is closest to his oldest daughter, Mrs. Joanne Ross, 26, and he worries most about Barry, Jr., 24, who is in the family business and suffers from living in the shadow of his father's fame. His other children are Michael, 22, who plans to enter law school, and Peggy, 18, a college student.

He enjoys an unusually close rapport with another godson, Jack Overall, Jr., son of the Goldwaters' close friends, the Jack Overalls. Once, the Senator and young Jack left the grownups to discuss their own affairs and retreated to another room to talk about the intricacies of ship construction.

In private life, Goldwater stresses the same fundamental forces on which his allegiance to conservatism is based. To his children, he has always emphasized oneness with nature and nature as a source of solace. When he learned that Barry, Jr., had an ulcer, he suggested they go "up for a day or two with our sleeping rolls and cut some wood for the fireplace. While we're doing that, I think we can have one or two of our old-fashioned talks and try to unscramble what's twisting your insides."

The understanding that unites this father, mother, and children finds eloquent expression in a letter written by the Senator to Joanne when she was 12. Referring to beautiful quaking aspens they had seen in the forest and which reminded him of "Mommy and me and you kids," he wrote:

"Now think about Mommy and me as aspens standing there quaking ourselves in the winds that blow, catching the cold snows of life, bearing the hot rays of the sun, all to protect you from those things until you are strong enough to do them yourself. We aren't quaking from fear but from the joy of being able to see your life develop and you grow into tall, straight men and women."

During World War II, Goldwater was a fighter pilot. Today, the Senator flies jets as a major general in the Air Force reserve.

I was just thinking...®

WHENEVER I remember that I pay 10 percent more for the privilege of owning a handbag, my blood pressure rises to 212 degrees.

I have yet to meet a woman rich or poor, married or single, better or worse, who didn't possess some sort of pocketbook for which she paid a 10 percent "luxury" tax.

If I were in charge of luxury taxes, I would remove them from handbags and place them on men's trousers.

Then wouldn't we hear such a moaning and wailing and gnashing of teeth as to crowd all the international crises off the front page of this newspaper?

I expect there would be a special session of Congress so that the senators and representatives could hurriedly repeal the trouser tax. I already know the arguments they would use. They would say that trousers are necessary and that most men are knobby-kneed and hairy-legged so that, without trousers, the male sex would be subjected to the snickers and sneers of the female sex. This is certainly true. I don't know of a single case where a woman married a man because of his alluring legs.

BUT JUST exactly why are handbags any less necessary? It's true that women are decently covered without one, but they don't function very well. A homemaker can't buy groceries, taxi the kids, comb her hair, replace a coat of lipstick, or even stay out of jail without a handbag.

She has no place to carry money, car keys, cosmetics, or even the credentials which permit her to be a law-abiding citizen.

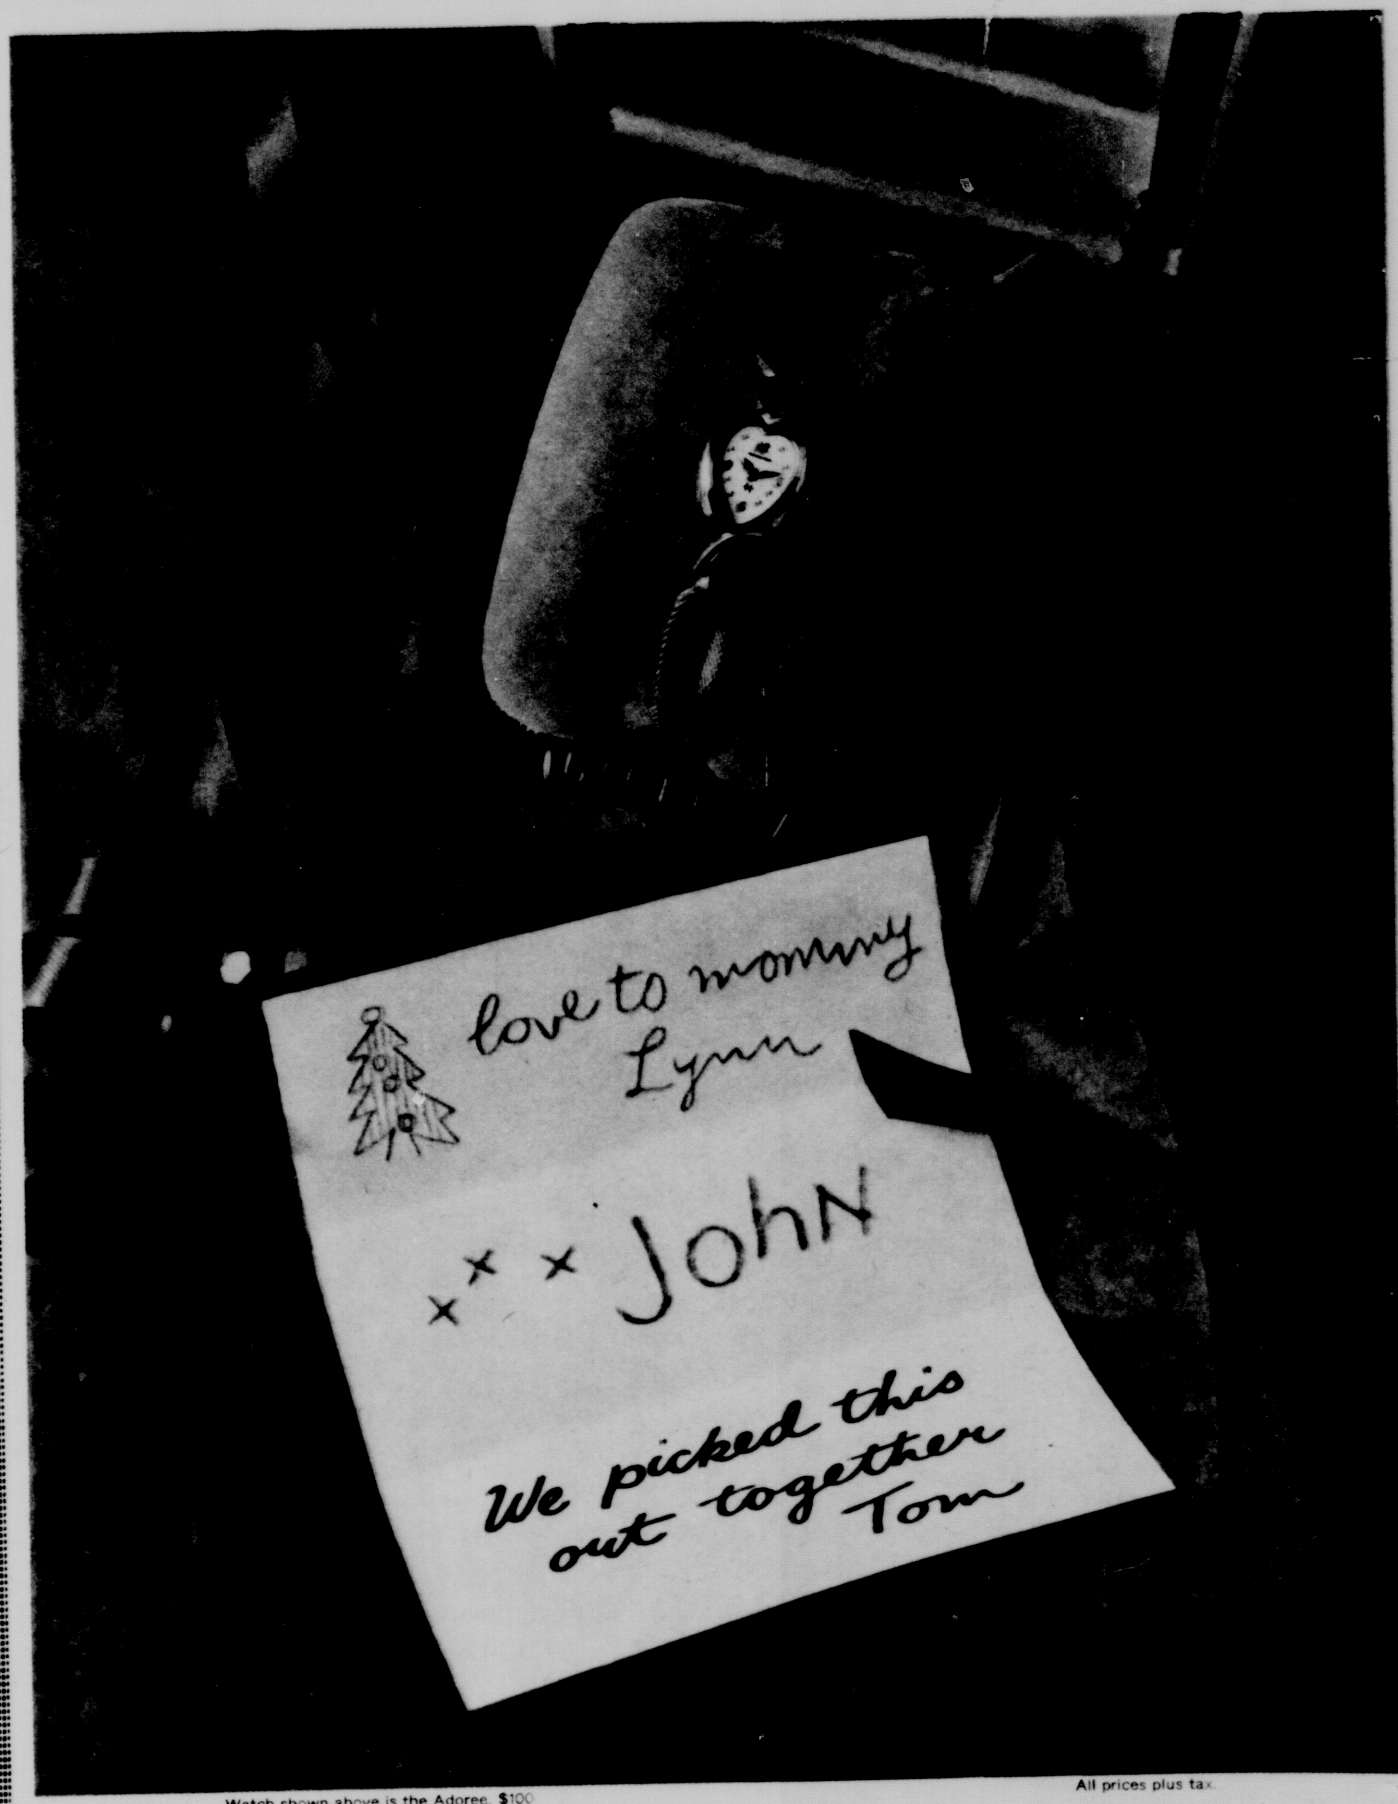

There's an alternative. Women can wear trousers, too, and sadden more men than are already slack-sad. She could literally wear the pants and stuff her hip pockets with cards, keys, compacts, hankies for the baby, and be a true object of beauty.

Men don't think women need handbags, however. For years we have been paying for the "luxury" of a pocketbook —leather, plastic, or cardboard.

But, after all, maybe women aren't so dumb. Who pays that 10 percent tax in most American homes? That's right, ladies. The men do. The senators and representatives and the breadwinners right on up to Jackie's husband.

So okay, then. Let 'em pay and pay and pay. . . .

WHEN SOMEONE'S COUNTING ON YOU...YOU CAN COUNT ON LIFE INSURANCE

I was just thinking...®

WHENEVER I remember that I pay 10 percent more for the privilege of owning a handbag, my blood pressure rises to 212 degrees.

I have yet to meet a woman rich or poor, married or single, better or worse, who didn't possess some sort of pocketbook for which she paid a 10 percent "luxury" tax.

If I were in charge of luxury taxes, I would remove them from handbags and place them on men's trousers.

Then wouldn't we hear such a moaning and wailing and gnashing of teeth as to crowd all the international crises off the front page of this newspaper?

I expect there would be a special session of Congress so that the senators and representatives could hurriedly repeal the trouser tax. I already know the arguments they would use. They would say that trousers are necessary and that most men are knobby-kneed and hairy-legged so that, without trousers, the male sex would be subjected to the snickers and sneers of the female sex. This is certainly true. I don't know of a single case where a woman married a man because of his alluring legs.

BUT JUST exactly why are handbags any less necessary? It's true that women are decently covered without one, but they don't function very well. A homemaker can't buy groceries, taxi the kids, comb her hair, replace a coat of lipstick, or even stay out of jail without a handbag.

She has no place to carry money, car keys, cosmetics, or even the credentials which permit her to be a law-abiding citizen.

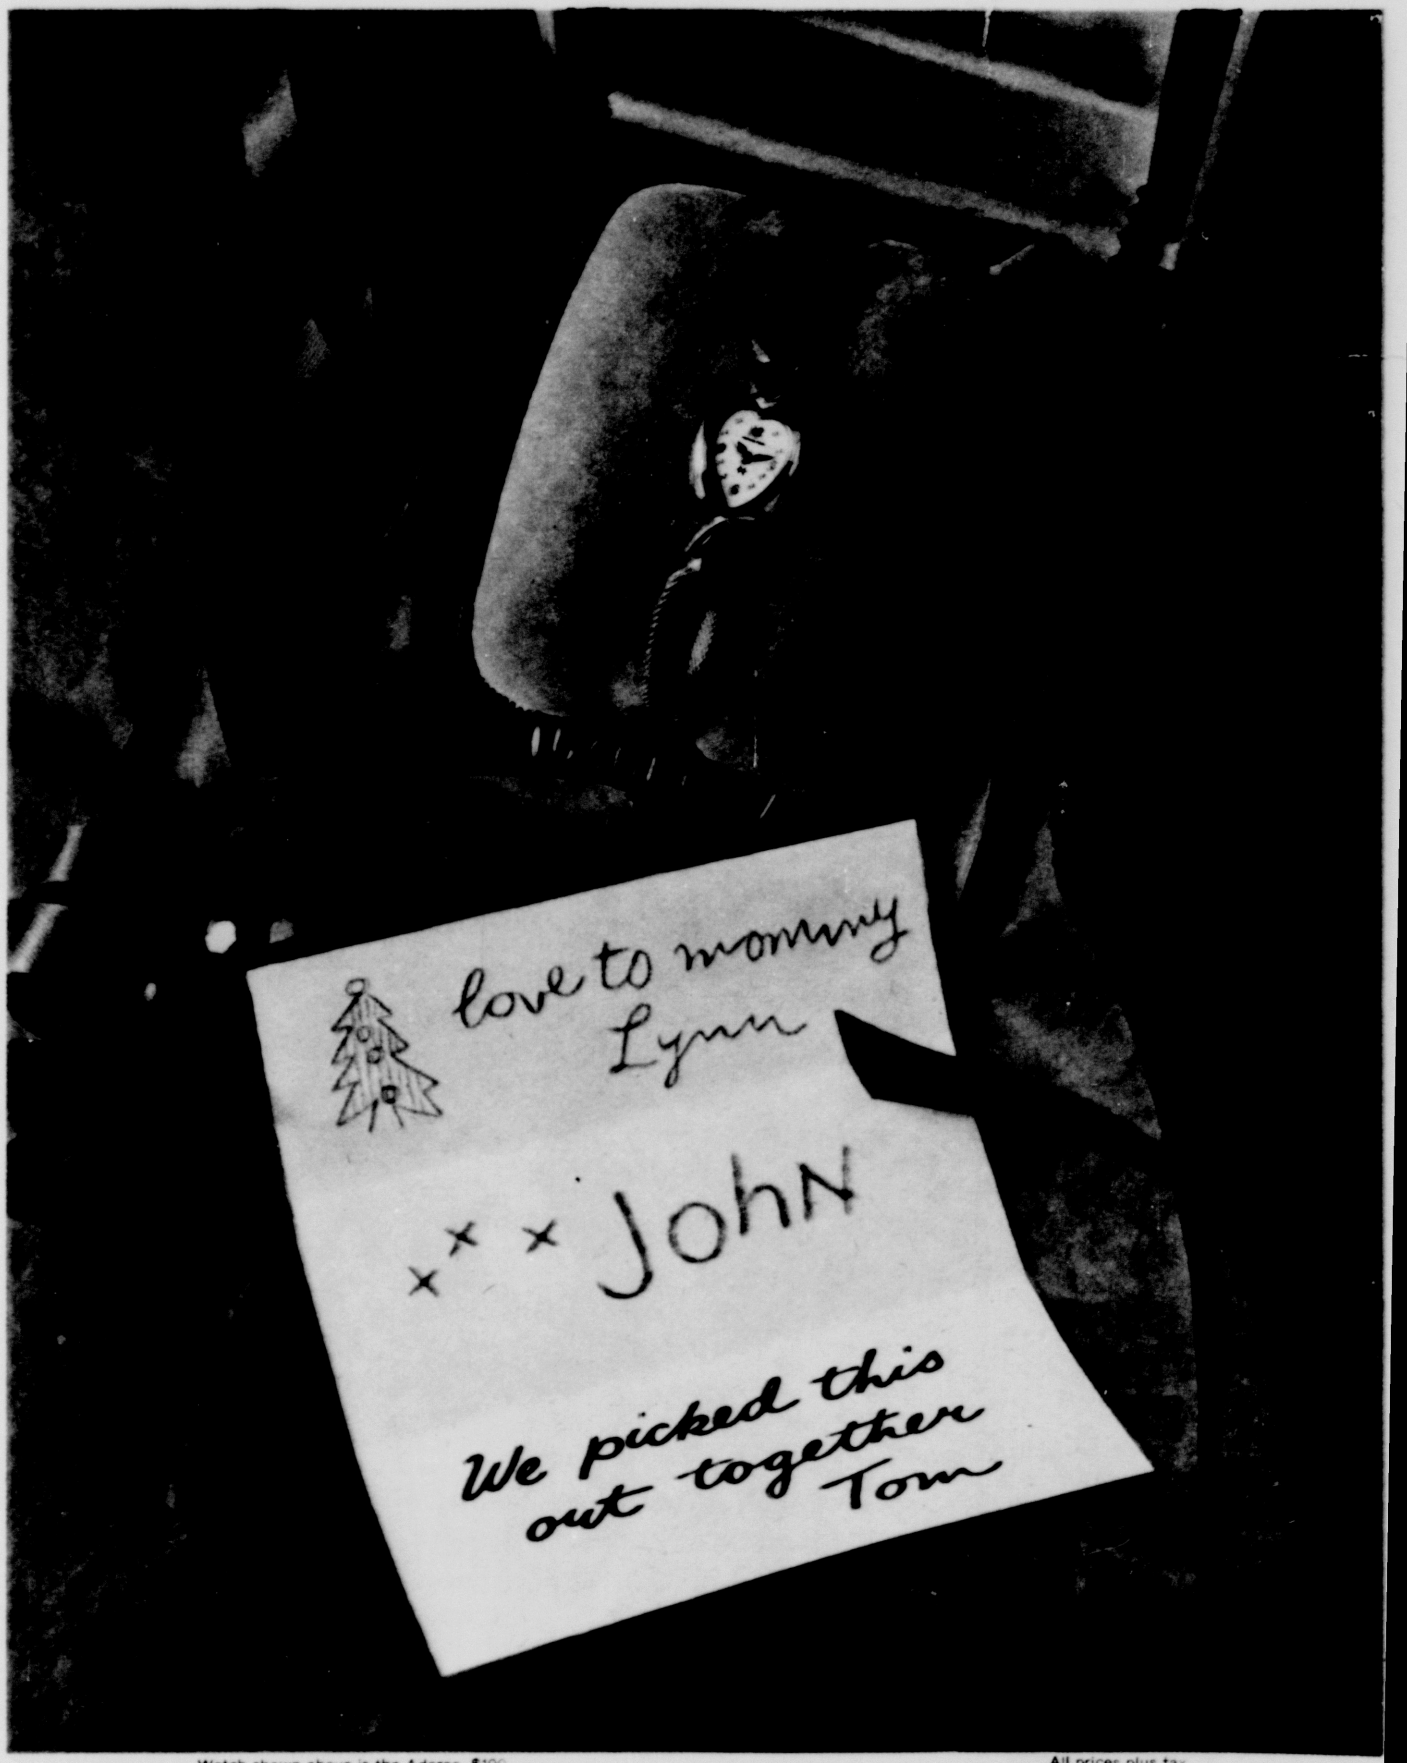

There's an alternative. Women can wear trousers, too, and sadden more men than are already slack-sad. She could literally wear the pants and stuff her hip pockets with cards, keys, compacts, hankies for the baby, and be a true object of beauty.

Men don't think women need handbags, however. For years we have been paying for the "luxury" of a pocketbook —leather, plastic, or cardboard.

But, after all, maybe women aren't so dumb. Who pays that 10 percent tax in most American homes? That's right, ladies. The men do. The senators and representatives and the breadwinners right on up to Jackie's husband.

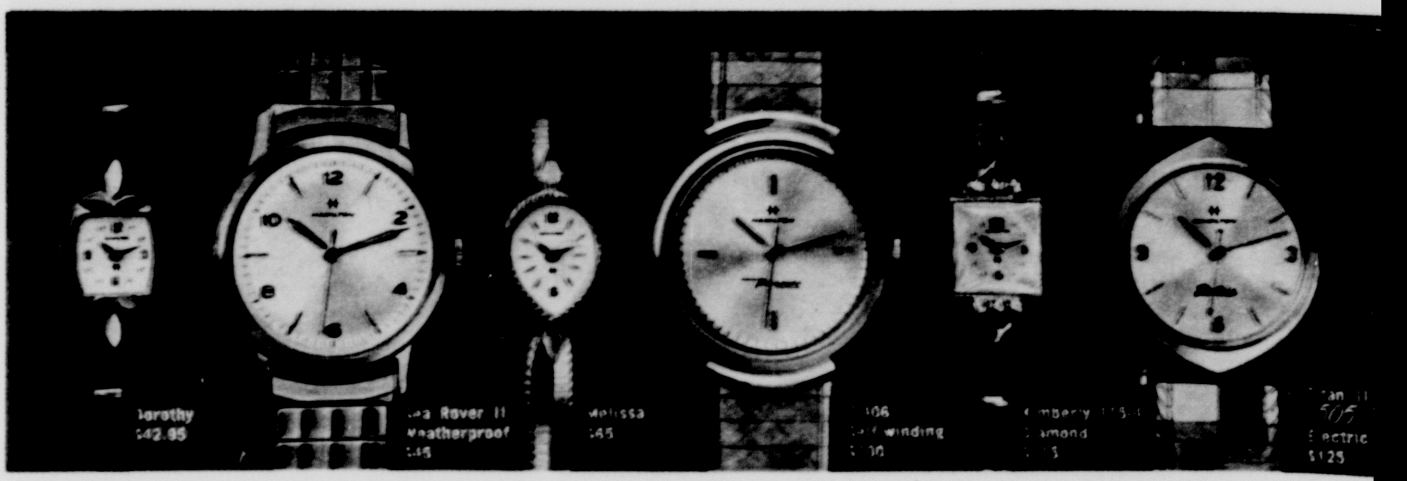

So okay, then. Let 'em pay and pay and pay. . . .

The leader passes out pencils and paper to the group and asks each player to print his name at the top of his paper. At a signal, the players print as many names as they can in one continuous line, using the last letter of one name as the first letter of the next. When players can no longer think of names, they drop out, and the one with the longest list wins.

Example: If a player's name is Laurie, she might have a list as follows—Laurielsiedwardoranne, which is Laurie, Elsie, Edward, Dora, Anne.

Blow, Bubbles, Blow! By Bea Kiles

Players are divided into two teams, and one from each team is appointed as counter for the other team.

The boys and girls are each given a clay pipe for blowing soap bubbles. A stand with a basin of soapy water is put up on opposite sides of the room for each team to use.

Players are given 10 minutes for getting their bubbles into the air. The team that has the greater number wins, but counters must be quick on the count!
